Every political party must have opposition. There is no other really good excuse for the existence of the democratic party in Oregon.

If you want to see The Dalles grow give to it and its enterprises your entire unqualified support. If you don't, send away for everything you want.

The human family living on earth today consists of about 1,450,000,000 souls—not fewer, probably more. These are distributed literally all over the earth's surface, there being no considerable spot on the globe where man has not found a foothold.

The extremes of the blacks and whites are as five to three, the remaining 700,000,000 are intermediate, brown, yellow and tawny in color.

All savages believe in a future state, though civilization shudders at the manner in which the Dahomeyan proceeds. When King Behanzin found that escape was impossible he summoned his aged mother and said to her, "I am going to surrender to France. My father must know it. You therefore shall see him and tell him." The king thereupon had his mother beheaded, while he calmly looked on smoking a pipe.

Two most extraordinary bills have been introduced in the Ohio legislature. The first bill provides for the abolishment of hanging as a penalty in cases of capital punishment, and substitutes the use of anesthetics and vivisection.

The Supreme Tribe of Ben-Hur is the name of a new order which was incorporated recently in Indianapolis. The society was christened by General Lew Wallace, the author of the famous book "Ben-Hur." The ritual and its features are founded upon the principles laid down in the beautiful story of "The Tale of the Christ."

The Roseburg Review has something to say about the $165,000 jute mill job. It isn't a very big job yet, and it isn't likely to be. With the exception of some $2,500 expended in making a million and a half of brick at the penitentiary for the buildings for the jute mill, the $165,000 is yet in the state treasury—or rather in the pockets of the tax payers, or in the vaults of the banks, for it has not yet reached the state treasury.

The secretary of the United States treasury, appearing before the house committee on judiciary Feb. 10th, in answer to inquiries, said in regard to coining the seigniorage and issuing certificates calling for dollars: "The effect would be that the secretary of the treasury would issue treasury certificates calling for dollars (I suppose when there were no dollars behind them), and if they came in for redemption (as they might), the secretary of the treasury would be compelled to issue gold or whatever else he had to redeem them."

The highest legal authority in the United States recently declared silver certificates were warehouse receipts. Bar silver in London in 1893 sold at 59.875 pence per ounce. During twenty years following it never sold higher than 61.875 pence per ounce, which was the highest price of 1893, and equivalent to $1.348 per ounce (American money).

In 1848 it sold as low as 58.5 pence per ounce. In 1864 it touched 62.5 pence per ounce, or $1.348 per ounce (American money). In 1871 the world's product was 52 1/2 million ounces, and the price 61d; in 1873, 62 1/2 million ounces, and the price 59.9d. It recently sold for 27 1/2d. The output in 1893 was 140.7 million ounces.—Clapp's Market Letter.

CHANGES IN IRISH NAMES.

Keely Comes from Caolle and Kennedy from Crineidigh.

Keely, or Keely, and sometimes the name is written Cayley, but according to the Boston Post, more correctly O'Keely or O'Kieley, is a name derived from Caolle, an individual of the same blood as the O'Donovans of Munster, and is written O'Caolle and MacCaolle. pronounced like O'Keely and MacKeely. Mac Tire was chief of U-Mac-Caolle at the time of the English invasion of Ireland and, according to old annals, slew Raymond Le Gros. His name still survives in the name of the village Balle-Mac-Tire, now Castlemartyr, in County Cork. The name Kennedy, or more correctly written O'Kennedy, is derived from Crineidigh or Crinneidigh (pronounced Kennedy) the king of Munster and father of Brian Boromha (Brian Boru). The sept of O'Regan, in Irish O'Riagain, O'Caathasigh, anglicized O'Casey, and O'Twomey or O'Toomey, in Irish O'Tuama, are also descended from Donchuan, pronounced like Donnegan. The name MacNeill, or McNeill, originated with one of the progenitors of the O'Ruairc (now written O'Rourke), the prince of Brefney family. It signifies son of Neill (formerly written Niall). The name has been anglicized to Neilson and Nelson. This name is different from O'Neill, which is derived from Niall of the Nine Hostages, king of Ireland in the fourth century.

Coyle, MacCawmel, MacCawell and Cawmill are derived from Fearach, a brother of Murtogh Mor MacBarca (Marta More McGarke), the one hundred and thirty-first monarch of Ireland. This Fearach had a son named in Irish Cathmaoil (pronounced Cawmill), whose son took the name Mac-Cathmaoil (signifying son of Cathmaoil). The Clan Campbell, of Ireland, had the same common progenitor, and the name is pronounced to the present day Cawmill in many parts of Ireland. The name is derived from the Irish word cath, a battle, and maoil, a heap. Caulfield is from the same root; so also is the name Cagwell and several other corruptions of the old Clan Cathmaoil. The clan were located in Ulster, where many representatives yet remain. The name Hegarty, O'Hagarty and Haggarty is of Irish origin, and written O'H'Eigheartaigh (pronounced O'Hagarty). The name Desmond has its origin in the Irish word Deas-Mhumhan (pronounced Dasvoan) which was afterward anglicized to Desmond, and means South Munster. Some of the owners of the name have tried to Normanize it into D'Esmond. Dillon, Le Dillon and Diluane is traced back to Irish history to an individual named Lochan Dilmhain (Loghan Dilwin) who fled to France in ancient times, and one of whose descendants, Robert Le Dillon, or Dillon, returned with Dermot MacMurrough at the time of the Norman conquest of Ireland. He was afterward given a large territory in Leinster, which his descendants held until the reign of Queen Elizabeth. The Dillon family have been famous in Irish history for the past three hundred years. A number of them were chiefs of the Irish brigade in the service of France, in which there was a Dillon regiment.

Mrs. Emily Thorne, who resides at Toledo, Washington, says she has never been able to procure any medicine for rheumatism that relieves the pain so quickly and effectually as Chamberlain's Pain Balm and that she has also used it for lame back with great success. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton, druggists.

The firm of J. H. Zeilin & Co., proprietors of Simmons Liver Regulator, which is advertised in this paper, recently made advance payment for all their newspaper contracts. This was an appreciative act especially that it put a considerable sum of money into circulation, Simmons Liver Regulator being one of the extensive advertised medicines on the market. This firm must have taken some of their own medicine to wake up their liver, or else they could not take such a hopeful view of the future business prospects, and pay out thousands of dollars on faith. We commend Simmons Liver Regulator to the thousands of business people and others whose vision of the future of this country is so clouded that they see nothing but ruin. It's good to wake up the liver and get these dependent symptoms out of mind.—Record.

LARD MUST GO. since COTTOLENE has come to take its place. The satisfaction with which the people have hailed the advent of the New Shortening Cottolene evidenced by the rapidly increasing enormous sales is PROOF POSITIVE not only of its great value as a new article of diet but is also sufficient proof of the general desire to be rid of indigestible, unwholesome, unappetizing lard, and of all the ills that lard promotes. Try Cottolene at once and waste no time in discovering like thousands of others that you have now NO USE FOR LARD. REFUSE ALL SUBSTITUTES. Get it only by N. K. FAIRBANK & CO., ST. "When I was a Boy," Writes Postmaster J. C. WOODSON, Forest Hill, W. Va., "I had a bronchial trouble of such a persistent and stubborn character, that the doctor pronounced it incurable with ordinary medicines, and advised me to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I did so, and one bottle cured me. For the last fifteen years, I have used this preparation with good effect whenever I take

A Bad Cold, and I know of numbers of people who keep it in the house all the time, not considering it safe to be without it. "I have been using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for 20 years, with the most satisfactory results, and can cheerfully recommend it as being especially adapted to all pulmonary complaints. I have, for many years, made pulmonary and other medicines a special study, and I have come to the conclusion that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral occupies a position pre-eminent over other medicines of the class."—Chas. Davenport, Dover, N. J.

THE DALLES

Wasco County, Oregon. The Gate City of the Inland Empire is situated at the head of navigation on the Middle Columbia, and is a thriving, prosperous city.

ITS TERRITORY. It is the supply city for an extensive and rich agricultural and grazing country, its trade reaching as far south as Summer Lake, a distance of over two hundred miles.

The Largest Wool Market. The rich grazing country along the eastern slope of the Cascades furnishes pasture for thousands of sheep, the wool from which finds market here.

The Dalles is the largest original wool shipping point in America, about 5,000,000 pounds being shipped last year.

ITS PRODUCTS. The salmon fisheries are the finest on the Columbia, yielding this year a revenue of thousands of dollars, which will be more than doubled in the near future.

The products of the beautiful Klickitat valley find market here, and the country south and east has this year filled the warehouses, and all available storage places to overflowing with their products.

ITS WEALTH. It is the richest city of its size on the coast and its money is scattered over and is being used to develop more farming country than is tributary to any other city in Eastern Oregon.

Its situation is unsurpassed. Its climate delightful. Its possibilities incalculable. Its resources unlimited. And on these corner stones she stands.
