MARS' MONTH.

A Record of Lesser Events for the Thirty-one Days.

House-cleaning time is near at hand. When man will tidy room And realize as he'er before There is no place like home.

Mrs. L. Labalister of Seattle has rented the Stacy Shown jewelry store and will open a large millinery establishment in a few days.

There will be a business meeting of the Epworth League tomorrow (Friday) evening at 7:30 o'clock. All members requested to be present.

The Hood River Glacier says that since so much territory has been subtracted by the Cascade Forest Reserve, Cascade county will no longer be an issue.

Not a word of news has yet been heard from Ben McAtee. His disappearance is as much a mystery as if the earth had swallowed him up. His friends believe, however, he is still alive, and will some day return.

Mr. E. E. Lytle is being spoken of by sympathizing friends for recorder. The reason of the sympathy is because his salary is cut down and now he has plenty of time to do his own work and the work of the recorder, too, and by both employments his revenue will reach the old figure.

Three workmen already have been disabled by having their foot crushed with the iron rails. One man lifts at one end and two at the other of a 750-pound iron rail, taking turn about, and as the single workman is not quite as strong as Sandow, he cannot sustain the 425 pounds weight long enough to keep it from falling on his feet. The force ought to be increased one man.

Mays & Crowe have refitted their store in a handsome manner. The office has been moved so that half of it is in the warehouse. The safe has been inset into the wall, and in like manner a convenient set of drawers adjoining is quite handy for files. The office is quite roomy, is supplied with every convenience and is lighted by a large sky-light. The changes add greatly to the attractiveness of the store.

THE DURKEE WRECK.

Fred Lusso Scalded to Death—Brakeman Phillips Killed.

Further particulars of the Durkee wreck, reported yesterday, are learned today. The wreck was caused by the train running into a cow. The fireman, Fred Lusso, was scalded to death. A brakeman named Phillips was also killed. The engineer was injured, but not fatally.

Lusso lived in La Grande, where he owned a pretty home, besides another residence adjoining. He married one of twin sisters in 1890, and leaves two children. He was a member of the K. of P., and was universally liked. Only a few days ago he had written to a friend in Mosier, saying that he soon intended to quit railroading and inquiring if land could not be secured there suitable for a fruit farm.

Concerning the brakeman nothing can be learned.

Tremendous Slides and Washouts.

The excess of rains have placed the road-bed in a fearful condition below this point. Washouts are frequent all along the mountain sides. The most serious is that between Cascade Locks and Eagle creek, where it is said a mountain is moving slowly toward the river. It has already moved a foot and made a curve of a straight piece of track at its base. More trouble, also, is expected at Reed's farm, as all indications are to that end. It cannot be told when a train will arrive from Portland. All trains just now are annulled.

The Fruitgrowers' Association.

The Northwestern Fruitgrowers' Association, embraces the states of Idaho, Oregon and Washington, and our northern neighbor, the province of British Columbia. The object of the association is stated by Mr. Wilcox, president of the Washington division, as of the greatest benefit to the fruit industry in all ways possible, and especially an aid to members in marketing their products and obtaining the largest returns. The time has come when nearly every industry must consolidate and systemize itself or become overpowered, and the growing of fruit is no exception.

"It is our purpose to open communication with wholesale fruit dealers in the leading markets of the country, thus forming a connecting link and completing a chain between the producer and the consumer, whereby we will be constantly informed of the condition of both supply and demand. We shall thus become possessed of information which cannot but be of inestimable value to shippers of fruit and vegetables.

"We also have reasonable assurance that arrangements will be made with the different railroads whereby local branches of this association will receive the benefit of carload rates, providing a car be filled among the different societies along one line of road."

Anyone not already a member of this association who can see anything in it for them, should correspond with the secretary, Mr. S. A. Clarke of Salem. The membership fee is but one dollar for each individual, and this amount but feebly represents the benefits to be derived.

If you want any kind of garden seeds, grass seed or field, call at H. H. Campbell's, where you can get what you want at reasonable rates. Next door to the postoffice.

Jackson Disaffected.

An exchange charges the East Oregonian with attacking leading democrats, to which it replies: "Yes, it will continue to attack them so long as they pose as democratic representatives and at every opportunity vote to further despoil the masses. Brice a democratic leader? Bah! He is a democratic parasite. Hill a democratic leader? Bah! He is a democratic spoilsman, with no principle but 'rewarding' his henchmen and increasing his grip on the machine. Murphy a democratic leader? Bah! He is a plutocratic brewer, who was given the great office of United States senator because he freely supplied the 'sinews of war.' He is only a 'tool of Hill's. Butler a democratic leader? Is he? What has he ever done for the cause? Nothing. Simply drew fat salaries all his life and existed on the generosity of the people. Gorman a democratic leader? Then so is Boss Croker. Gorman is a trickster of the most ordinary kind. Bright and resourceful, we admit; but he is no more a democrat than Captain Kidd was a Christian."

ARC LIGHTS.

Another Solution of the Pending Question of the Council.

The question of municipal ownership of electric light plants is being agitated throughout Connecticut cities just now and there are many arguments in favor of cities owning and operating the electric light plants with which their streets and public buildings are lighted. For instance, The Dalles is paying about $3,500 a year for lighting streets and public buildings, which constitutes a great share of the company's business in this city. The city could operate this plant and probably pay all expenses from outside patronage, securing the arc lights free. The plan is ventured to the city council as a paying investment, if a proposition agreeable to both parties could be made. This would settle the pending discussion about the lights in an agreeable manner. The writer does not know if the plan is feasible at present, the charter may be a fatal obstacle, but it is time our charter was amended anyway.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Ex-Gov. Moody of Salem is in the city.

Mr. H. A. Pratt of Hood River is in town.

We regret to learn that Dr. Vanderpool of Dufur is lying dangerously ill. Dr. Logan was called to his bedside yesterday.

Coyote Versus Eagle.

While walking the flats near Portland, Ore., early one morning a traveler witnessed an exciting fight between an eagle and a coyote. The eagle had caught a rabbit, and the coyote, appearing upon the scene about that time, undertook to take it away. The man made up his mind at once that the eagle would tear the coyote to pieces, but to his surprise the coyote got away with the rabbit, and so demoralized the eagle that the kingly bird had all it could do to 'flop feebly away.'

BEWARE OF THEM:

Fakirs in Tacoma with a Smooth Confidence Scheme.

A pair of very smooth fakirs have been swindling Tacoma merchants in a successful manner during the last few months, and their operations were so shrewdly conducted as to give the impression that they will be heard from again in the same role in other sections of the Northwest. Two men came to Tacoma in December and registered at the Fife hotel under the names of Baldwin and Willow of Chicago. Willow presented himself at E. J. McManus' grocery store at Eighteenth and J streets, shortly afterward, and stated that he was desirous of securing a business for a friend of his who had $3,000 to invest. Next day Willow brought the friend in and introduced him as C. P. Byham, who was pleased with the store and readily agreed to pay $1,700 for it, the cash to be forthcoming with the arrival of his family from Chicago. The family came, but not so the coin, which the Byhams explained would be forwarded from their bank at the windy city, and telegrams to that effect were shown Mr. McManus, who yielded up possession of the building containing both stock and residence with a portion of his furniture. Then commenced a series of commercial transactions with tailors, furniture dealers and, in fact, everyone who could be induced to sell articles for half cash and half groceries, until the family of five were well stocked up, and the grocery store had done a mighty large business, but none of the cash promised ever materialized. Finally Mr. McManus began to suspect the true state of affairs and commenced proceedings to regain possession of his business. He succeeded, but found little but the building left, the Byhams having gone so far as to rob the house of the furniture, while a mysterious fire occurred the night of their departure, doing further damage amounting to over $500. Taken all in all Mr. McManus' experience with the sharpers was disastrous in the extreme, and dealers would do well to act with caution in putting too implicit confidence in the promises of strangers who approach them to purchase their business.

About Indian Tribes.

The following are the names of Indian tribes that were in Oregon at the close of 1893, says an exchange. The names were revised by Major J. W. Powell. In many cases the corrupt names have come into such general use that the reviser deemed it impolitic to change them: Kalapuya, Klamath, Kikiamute, Molele, Nezucca, Rogue River, Santiam, Shasta, Tumwater, Umpqua, Yamhill, Klamath, Modoc, Walapapa, Yuhuskin band of Snakes (Shoshoni), Ailsia, Coquille, Kusa, Skoton, Salustkal, Suislaw, Toootootna, Cayuse, Umatilla, Walla Walla, Wasco and Paiute.

Mothers, and especially nursing mothers, need the strengthening support and help that comes with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It lessens the pains and burdens of child-bearing, insures healthy, vigorous offspring and promotes an abundant secretion of nourishment on the part of the mother. It is an invigorating tonic, made especially for women, perfectly harmless in any condition of the female system, as it regulates and promotes all the natural functions and never conflicts with them. The "Prescription" builds up, strengthens, and cures. In all the chronic weaknesses and disorders that afflict women, it is guaranteed to benefit or cure or the money is refunded.

For every case of Catarrh which they cannot cure, the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy agree to pay $500 in cash. You're cured by its mild, soothing, cleansing, and healing properties, or you're paid.
