DENVER IS EXCITED

The City Now in the Hands of the Military.

WAITE ORDERS OUT THE MILITIA

He is Determined to Enforce the Changes Announced by Him in the Police Force.

DENVER, March 16.—The trouble between the city police and the militia is not yet ended, though it is now believed Gov. Waite is willing for any reasonable compromise. The trouble arose over the governor's effort to oust the two members of the fire and police board, Jackson Orr and D. J. Martin, whom he removed for protecting gambling-houses, and place in office their successors, S. G. Barnes and Dennis Mullins. Messrs. Orr and Martin, having obtained from the district court an injunction restraining Governor Waite from forcibly removing them, were determined to resist to the uttermost. They accordingly kept the entire police force at the city hall all day under orders to resist the soldiers if attacked. In addition, several hundred of the tougher citizens, many of whom have records as man-killers, were sworn in as deputies of Sheriff Burchinell and placed in the city hall as a reinforcement of the police department. Each deputy was armed with two six-shooters and instructed to use them in case of necessity. The police were armed with shotguns in addition to their clubs and revolvers.

This force was opposed by the militia, the First regiment and the Chaffee light artillery and a proclamation was issued to the entire state militia to hold themselves in readiness for marching orders. Efforts were later made for arbitration, which which successful to the extent of preventing bloodshed. The governor is in retirement at his home, which is guarded by patrolmen, as he is in mortal fear of assassination.

At 9 o'clock this morning everything is quiet, awaiting a conference between General McCook, commanding the federal troops, and Governor Waite. Five companies of the Seventh United States infantry are camped at the Union depot. The police force has greatly increased since yesterday, and still holds the city hall. It is understood the force numbers 350, and will under no circumstances surrender. It is expected the governor will order state troops from other points, now under arms at their armories, to come here. They number 750 enlisted men.

Governor Waite has addressed a letter to General McCook asking that the government troops be withdrawn from the city because the latter refuses to assist in carrying out the governor's purposes, but simply confines himself to maintaining peace.

This action was taken by the governor after having held a brief and it is understood peppy conference with General McCook, in which the latter declined to Progress and Cookery.

"The World Moves."

There is no better illustration of this old saying than the numerous schools now-a-days devoted to practical kitchen processes. These schools have been alert to find a reasonable substitute for lard, the use of which is so generally condemned. This want has been fully met by the new vegetable lard. When science strikes the kitchen, it strikes home and everybody gets the benefit. Cottolene is a clean, delicate and economical substitute for lard—cleaner than the hog, delicate as the finest vegetable oil, economical from its low price and small quantity required to be used. Prove it for yourself by a trial.

use the United States troops to assist in seating the governor's appointees. In a letter to General McCook, the governor says he interpreted McCook's offer yesterday to put seven companies of federal troops in Denver to mean an offer to assist the state to enforce the law, and his letter asking that the troops be moved into the city for the specified object to assist the state troops in the execution of the law and to prevent bloodshed. Finding, in McCook's opinion, he had no right, he would withdraw his request for troops. This is taken as evidence that the governor has weakened and that he will soon accept a proposition for a reasonable compromise.

A Grand Jury Called.

Judge Bailey has issued an order for the drawing of a grand jury to meet on Monday. District Attorney Steele has for some time been contemplating the calling of a grand jury to act on several cases pending, and he thinks it would be well to have it in session until the danger of riot is past. He said this afternoon:

"If anybody is killed by the controversy between Governor Waite and the old police board, the person who does the killing and the one who incites the act will be tried for murder."

General McCook received a joint letter from Chief of Police Stone and Chief Pearce, of the fire department, stating that Governor Waite had some "malicious fiendish and desperate scheme" on foot, which he might put into execution either this evening or early in the morning and asking him to call at the city hall at once for conference. It is feared that tomorrow, being St. Patrick's day, may give an opportunity to those inclined to stir up a fight leading to a general riot. The city hall is being fortified. The street report is that the governor and his henchmen are swearing in all the deputies they can, and a night attack upon the hall is feared.

FEARS ASSASSINATION.

DENVER, March 16.—Gov. Waite acknowledged today to Gen. McCook that he feared assassination. The general says there is no doubt that had there a gun been fired yesterday, the governor would have been lynched within half an hour, to the state's lasting disgrace. The cause of Gov. Waite's obduracy, it is learned on excellent authority, is his wife. She attended last night's conference in an angry mood and declared, with clenched fist, that the fight should go on until the last national guardsman in the state lay dead on the pavement. Many populists do not uphold Governor Waite, and Judge Croxton, one of the best known populists in the state, has asked General McCook to use his influence with the governor to avert further trouble. Referring to the governor's action, General Croxton said: "This is not politics, it is anarchy."

UNION PACIFIC EMPLOYEES.

Their Conference With the Receivers Amounts to Nothing.

OMAHA, March 16.—The conference between employes and receivers of the Union Pacific has flashed in the pan, at least temporarily, and nothing short of further orders from Judge Caldwell is likely to bring them together again. Yesterday Receiver Clark, at the preliminary meeting, furnished the head of each organization represented a statement to the effect that the receivers did not recognize that any agreement with the employes as to wages or other matters in force before the receivership was binding on the receivers. Furthermore, the receivers had sought to put new schedules in effect as to only three classes of employes, engineers, train men and operators, and these were the only classes which they would recognize as entitled to take part in the conference, and with them it must be understood the receivers did not recognize any contract relations, and they were only ready to discuss with their proper representatives the question of the fairness and justice of the proposed new schedule. This did not meet the views of the men, and this morning not one appeared before Clark to begin argument. They are holding a private conference, but give it out they will never submit to the condition imposed by the receivers. The men decided they would never submit to Clark's terms.

Deserving Praise

We desire to say to our citizens, that for years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, as we stand ready to refund the purchase price, if satisfactory results do not follow their use. There remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. Snipes & Kinerly's druggists.

MISS POLLARD ON THE STAND.

Told of Her First Meeting With Congressman Breckinridge.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—At the opening of the Pollard-Breckinridge trial this morning the plaintiff took the witness chair. Witness went back to her first meeting with Breckinridge in April, 1884, when he approached her on a car between Lexington and Frankfort, professing to have met her before. Then came the story of her relations to James C. Rhodes, who undertook to educate her if she would marry him; of her sending for Breckinridge for counsel as an attorney; of the means he took to be alone with her without a chance of interruption; of the subsequent intimacy; of the birth of her children in 1885 and 1888. She produced letters and telegrams from him containing words of endearment, and closed her testimony by declaring that never since she knew him had she been intimate with any other man. Her frame was shaking with suppressed emotion as she passed out of the court-room, leaning on the arm of an attendant.

Before Miss Pollard left the stand she testified that Breckinridge had taken her with him on several occasions when he went out of the city to address religious bodies. He had given her no reason for the postponement of the dates fixed for marriage, and she had never asked for any until the scene in the office of Colonel Moore. "From the night he took me to Sarah's in 1884," said Miss Pollard, dramatically, "there never was a suggestion of a discontinuance of those miserable relations until he left me, with all sorts of promises, pleadings and loving words, on the 19th of May, 1893."

MAY MAKE A DIFFERENCE.

A certificate filed in the health department by Rev. Dr. John R. Paxton shows that W. C. P. Breckinridge married Louisa R. Wing April 29, 1893. This was a secret marriage; the public ceremony was last July. It is thought this may play a part in the Pollard-Breckinridge trial, as going to show that when he promised to marry Miss Pollard, in the presence of Colonel Moore, chief of police of Washington, last May, he was not in a position to redeem his promise, being already married.

THE DEAD-LETTER OFFICE.

Statistics Show That We Are Learning to Address Letters More Accurately.

The number of pieces of dead mail matter received at the dead-letter office during the fiscal year 1893 was 7,131,027, an increase over the receipts of the previous year of 249,847 pieces, or a little more than 5 per cent. This increase of undelivered matter, according to the Albany Press and Knickerbocker, is less than the per cent. of increase of matter mailed, as shown by the statistics of other branches of the postal service, and would seem to indicate more care on the part of the people in addressing their letters, as well as increased vigilance on the part of postmasters to secure proper delivery.

The number of pieces treated in the dead-letter office, including those on hand from the previous year, was 7,330,038. These were classified as follows: 5,408,945 were ordinary unclaimed letters; 204,445 were addressed to persons in the care of hotels; 218,180 were mailed to foreign countries and returned by the various postal administrations as undeliverable; 50,941 were addressed to initials or fictitious persons, and 7,106 were domestic registered letters. There were 633,957 pieces of mail matter of foreign origin, and 182,050 were ordinary letters without inclosures, which had once been returned by the dead-letter office to addresses contained therein, and, failing of delivery, were again sent to the dead-letter office for final disposition.

The number of letters classed as un-mailable comprised 1,144, containing articles which were not transmissible in the mails; 98,234 were either entirely unpaid or paid less than one full rate, and could not, therefore, be forwarded; 400,832 were either deficient in address or addressed to places not post offices or to post offices which had no existence in the state named, and were classed under the general head of "Mis-directed;" 35,918 were without any address whatever, and 2,040 were classed as "Miscellaneous." There were also received 83,246 unclaimed and un-mailable parcels of third and fourth-class matter.
