LONGEST OF SWING SPANS.

That Now Being Constructed at Omaha

Will Mensure 520 Feet. A bridge is now in course of erec-tion across the Missouri river, between East Omaha and Council Bluffs, which will be remarkable when completed as-Pierce's Favorite | possessing the longest swing span in the world—five hundred and twenty Prescription, feet-being fifteen feet longer than the isn't "just as swing span of the bridge over the good." Proof of Thames river, in Connecticut. The structure has been designed by Prof. J. A. I. Waddell, of Kansas City. The construction of the pier of this swing span was completed a few months ago and presented many features of interest to engineers. From a long article in Engineering News it appears that the work was begun by sinking a steel caisson for a foundation, much as A. P. Boller started work on the swing span of the large bridge in New York city a year ago. The outer shell of the caisson is forty feet in diameter and the inner twenty feet, the latter spreading out at the base to join the former and thus give a cutting edge. Both shells are made of half-inch steel, reenforced at the lower edge, where they meet, by two bands of inch steel, one inside and the other outside. The two shells were kept in their proper relative positions by braces running between them, of which there were twenty in all, made of halfinch plates. The caisson proper is sixteen feet high. Above this the two steel cylinders extend to a height of one hundred feet, making a total of one hundred and sixteen feet from the entting edge to the top of the cylinder. Above the caisson the plates are reduced in thickness to three-eighths of an inch and are braced by bars and rods rather than the heavier and more costly plates required in the lower part. The friction of the earth against such a long 'cylinder is very great, and to reduce it a number of pipes run down the whole length of the caisson and shell. These open at the bottom of the caisson and at intervals of ten feet above, so that by forcing water through them it was possible to diminsh the hold of the surrounding earth on the steel. The space between the two shells was filled with rubble concrete. The sinking progressed with no more than the usual delays; as the shells went down under the weight of the concrete placed between them, aided by the removal of the earth within by means of bucket dredges, plates were added to the top until the whole was at the required depth. The masonry pier built on top of this cylinder is of limestone backed by concrete. It is thirty-eight feet in diameter and eighteen and one-half

FAME OF FRENCH ARTISTS.

It Is Increased by the Reproduction of Their Paintings

The proportion of artists in France of wide fame, whose work is frequently seen in print, is undoubtedly greater than in any other country; and one of many good reasons for this is certainly the exceptional skill and experience of the French in their use of reproductive processes, and especially those which not only translate the form of the original, but the color as well, says Scribner's Magazine. These color reproductions, printed from metal relief plates and not from lithographic stones-the method usually resorted to by the rest combined with a verve and character quite indescribable, is one of which only the French printer artist is complete master. Just across the border the German printer has developed lithovoted to the relief plate, each practi-cally making few excursions into the other's methods of accomplishing the same thing.

A still further reason for this great superiority is the innate artistic sense of the French printer, or, more properly, the pressman. In other countries, where engraver and printer are looked upon by the illustrator as his natural enemies, into whose hands a drawing is given grudgingly, the statement, which is not infrequently made by the French artist, that the reproduction or translation of the original into printed form is as effective in its way as the drawing itself, calculated to excite de-

CHANCE OF MARRIAGE.

Ten Thousand Women Have Lost It, Says Walter Besant.

"Therefore 10,000 women have now lost their chance of marriage." Those fateful words, it is almost unnecessary to say, are from the pen of Walter Besant.

He is commenting upon the fact that the Bank of England has decided to appoint women as clerks, that various merchants' offices, are doing the same thing, and that in certain branches of the civil service women are being employed. It all means, he argues, that 10,000 men will be unemployed, will seek fresh fields and pastures new, leaving 10,000 women in their places and 10,000 other women husbandless!

He finds no ray of light in the gloomy prospect. He admits that the country will save about £500,000 a year by the change. "But," he goes on, "10,000 possible families are not called into existence. Now 10,000 families may average 40,000 children. The country. therefore, loses the work, brains, productive power, fighting power, colonizing power of 40,000 men and wonien. Putting the productive power of one person at £100, we have a loss in the next generation of £4,000,000 a year. Which is better-to save £500,000 a year. or to secure the services and strength of 40,000 English men and women, reckoned at £4,000,000 a year?"

A CODDLED PRINCE. Young George of Wales Did Not Relish

When Prince George of Wales was a midshipman on the Canada, one of his old shipmates writes to the Youth's Companion, he delighted in escaping from the supervision of the captain and physician. This was not because the boy was a bad boy, or one who re-belled against the rigid discipline to which he was held like any other middy, but because the captain and doctor watched over him with the solicitude of a grandmother. The prince could not act freely like any other middy without exciting their anxiety lest he should fall overboard or make himself

One day, off the lonely coast of Newfoundland, part of the ship's company got leave to go seine-fishing and, for a wonder, the captain permitted the prince to go, too. We pulled a long distance from the ship. It was a clear autumn day and the sport was delight-

The prince, who evidently felt a boyish glee in the sport, became a regular Jack Tar for the time being. He insisted on doing two men's share of the work of hauling in the nets and collecting the fish. As a result, when the party returned to the ship in the evening the enthusiastic youth presented a sorry-looking figure, with not a dry stitch of clothing on him.

The old captain was shocked, the physician grew alarmed, and the imprudent boy was forced to hie himself to his cabin, go to bed and take some preventive dose. Thus has royalty to be watched and fondled and at the same time disciplined, till it is filled with sadness over the misfortune of its for Poorness of Vision. It is satisfactory to be told by Mr. Ellis that blindness in England is "slowly decreasing," though Great Britain still stands in this respect behind two other European countries and three more come before Ireland. Shortsightedness, however, appears to be increasing everywhere, Germany having a signal and sinister preeminence in this respect..

A French doctor has noted the re markable fact that wild beasts caugh quite young or born in captivity be shortsighted, the conclusion being that the eye adapts itself to its habitual sphere of vision, and unless "educated" to use Mr. Ellis' term, to see objects at a distance, loses the capacity of so doing. Even in after life the eye may be, to some extent, so educated, though probably only when the myopia is not considered.

It is thus within the experience of the present writer, says the London Spectator, that his sight greatly improved in days gone by; when he became a volunteer, by practice at the butts, so that while at first he could not see the target to shoot at .without spectacles at a three hundred-yard range, after a twelve month or so he only needed to put on spectacles at four hundred yards.
