Gov. Penoyer, hearing that President Cleveland had begun to study up financial questions, had the nerve to mail him a copy of his Roseburg speech.

Editor Stead's airy assumption that he is competent to say what the founder of Christianity would think and say and do if he came to one place or another is just a trifle offensive to people who have any real reverence for the Christian faith.

On the 8th inst. Mr. Mitchell of Oregon presented petitions of sundry citizens of Pendleton, Corvallis, Eugene, Springfield, The Dalles, Antelope and Portland all in the state of Oregon, praying that federal society and college journals be admitted to the mails as second-class matter.

The New York Herald says editorially: "If an election were held now the democrats would be swept from power by a tidal wave of popular indignation such as the country has not seen for twenty years." The Herald need not be afraid that the intensity of the wave will be diminished by waiting two years longer. It will be rather greater. It will take a little more than one year's experience to change some of the old "wheel-horses," though they are coming home already in a very satisfactory manner.

Populists are free traders, notwithstanding what an occasional orator may say to the contrary. Their national platform declares it. The party votes with the democrats at the polls and in congress, goes into partnership with the democrats in the nomination of state and county candidates for office, and pets and cajoles the prohibitionists, another free trade party, while there are no words strong enough by which they can condemn the republican party, the only political organization that resolves, speaks, works and legislates for a protective tariff law.—Independent.

The Scandinavian system of regulating the liquor traffic, known as the Gothenburg system, is the next plan that will be vigorously attempted in the United States. Prohibition and high license have been tried in different sections of the country, and for brief periods, without finally solving the liquor question. Gothenburg's system is now likely to be tried, first perhaps in the state of Massachusetts. This system eliminates the possibility of personal profit from the sale of liquor and throws many restrictions around it. The income is used for various public purposes, and the sale of liquor is under the direct supervision of responsible men of high character. Social reformers in every part of the country are giving it close study with reference to our American conditions. An ardent believer in his system is Dr. E. R. L. Gould, who is one of our foremost students of social subjects, and who last year went to Norway to make personal study of this system. Dr. Gould writes in the March number of The Forum a definite explanation of how it would work when applied to American conditions.

LITERARY NOVELTIES.

"He who runs may read." Dictionaries embracing all the words commonly used, and small enough for the waistcoat pocket, are now being sold in little silver cases which may be attached to a watch chain.

In his new volume of "Anton Notenketscher," Moszkowski tells the tale of a composer who sent a new piece to five different critics, in each case with a different title: "Prometheus," "Columbus," "Romeo," "Bismarck." Each critic recognized in the MS. sent him patent allusions to events in the life of the supposed hero.

LATEST IN LITERATURE.

"Wee Ones of Japan" is the title of a new book by Mrs. Mae St. John Bramhall that is likely to prove popular.

A series of articles by Octave Thanet describes the many different types of Americans she saw while visiting the Chicago fair.

There is said to be but one British house remaining where the old feudal custom is observed of guests and servants all dining together on Christmas night and the dance afterward being led by the hostess with the game-keeper.

A DESPOTIC RULER.

The Stomach Not Easily Dothroned When Once It Obtains Mastery.

One of the greatest misfortunes that can happen to a man in his earthly career is to discover that he has a stomach. He may know it theoretically or recollect the lessons in physiology of his schoolboy days, but according to the San Francisco Chronicle, when he finds out by actual, personal experience that he has a stomach he is to be pitied. The whole science of gastronomy—and it is a science—has been devised and perfected for the benefit of the men who have made this discovery. All the studies of the whole glittering galaxy of gastronomists, all the culinary triumphs of the great restaurants in the capitals of the world, are due to the simple fact that men have found out that they have stomachs, and that that organ, when once discovered, must be petted and flattered and soothed and kept in good humor to prevent its revolting and creating revolution and civil war. It is safe to say that the primitive man never knew that he had a stomach. It has been reserved for civilization to make the discovery, and it is by no means a foregone conclusion that civilization should pride itself upon having done so.

The maxim that one never enjoys a good dinner until after it has been eaten is a refinement of modern and degenerate days, containing much sound philosophy from a certain standpoint, but that standpoint is a fictitious and mistaken one. There is no natural reason why a dinner, good or bad, should be enjoyed. The one object of eating is to satisfy hunger, and that being done, the dinner should be forgotten. It is only the imperious and arbitrary stomach which insists upon a further recognition of its claims, and it is only human weakness which submits to its demand. A modern philosopher, in terse though inelegant diction, has laid down this maxim, which is almost idiomatic: "You must down your stomach or your stomach will down you." There is more in this than will meet the eye of the casual reader. The stomach may, as certain of the ancients believed, be the real seat of the emotions, passions and affections, but we make a great mistake if we subordinate the ego to a single organ, and especially to one which is only too ready to presume upon the favor shown it and the license given it. Healthy children know nothing about their stomachs, except that they ache sometimes if called on to do double duty, and there is nothing so healthy and happy in the world as a healthy child. If children of a larger growth could but ignore the gastric organ or forget it, dyspepsia would become a lost disease, and all the evils that follow in its train would disappear.

DOES NOT LIKE CEREMONY.

The Sultan of Turkey Receives Visitors in Simple Style and Lights His Cigarettes.

The correspondent of an English paper was recently accorded an interview by the sultan of Turkey, and was surprised at the noticeable lack of ceremony with which he was received. When the newspaper man entered the royal presence he found his majesty standing ready to receive him. The descendant of Mahomet II. and of Selim had no rich turbans, no jeweled robes, no ornaments, nothing that distinguishes princes from ordinary people in the east, except the true ornaments of the noble and well born, polite bearing and refined expression. He appeared a perfect European prince, if anything politer and simpler than ordinary men. His majesty has even cast off the cigarette which his predecessors wore with the fez. There were no intricate ceremonies to be gone through as at the reception of the great mogul or at other eastern courts. There were no attendants present as are invariably to be seen in the private rooms of eastern princes. "Sentiment and tradition," says the correspondent, "compelled me to do homage to the caliph like an oriental, with a bow. As soon as the formality was gone through his majesty shook hands, took his seat and desired me to be seated. The sultan was dressed plainly, wearing no orders, stars or decorations of any kind. He is very fair, has a round head plentifully covered with grizzled gray hair, and possesses striking features." The interview was of the most chatty and friendly character, the sultan showing marked acquaintance with literature, especially that of the east, and his information on general subjects is extensive. When the correspondent arose to take his leave the Turkish ruler put his hand on the visitor's head and gave him by that act the caliphic blessing.

With the multifarious duties that he has to perform his majesty prays, according to the Mohammedan custom, five times a day with the regularity of a clock. He fasts for thirty days during the month of the Ramadhan. He abstains from all kinds of alcoholic beverages and from gambling. He patronizes religious and moral institutions not only among his own people but among all the Mohammedans of the world. Moreover, he does not confine his charity to the poor and needy of his own religion, but, according to the dictates of the Koran, he helps the deserving irrespective of their religious beliefs. He allows toleration to the highest degree, and is himself anything but a bigot. He is a great patron of learning of all kinds.

A Wonderful Tunnel.

The cities of Worsley and St. Helens, in north England, are sixteen miles apart, yet they are connected by the most wonderful canal in the world. A tunnel has been cut through the great vein of coal which underlies the whole of Lancashire, and this, filled with water from the drainage trenches of that great system of mines, makes a remarkable underground canal, in which the water is constantly five feet deep. This canal is provided with a regular system of coal boats, which are constantly moving thousands of tons of the bituminous fuel between the two cities.

STRANGELY CHRISTENED.

Some Instances of the Queer Names Given to Negro Children.

It is nothing new that the colored people of the south are as fond of large names as of bright colors, but the St. Louis Globe-Democrat furnishes two or three new and comical examples. The writer says:

I knew an old negro in Tennessee who rejoices in the name of Niagara Falls. His companions have shortened it to Nigger Falls, but he was really christened after the great cataract.

I also knew a colored woman who proudly tells you that her name is Virginia Georgia Alabama South. Another, who enjoys the cognomen of Amanda June Day is a school-teacher, and signs her name A. June Day.

In a Mississippi town I was passing along a side street, when a coal-black negress came out of a door shouting: "Glory! Glory Hallelujah!" I thought she was crazy, and stopped to see what she would do next.

She looked around a moment, and then repeated her call, louder than before. This time I heard the answer from behind a fence.

"Yere I is, ma'am. What yo' want?"

"Nebber you min' what I want; you come here."

Immediately there appeared from behind the fence one of the blackest picanninies I ever saw, and on inquiry I learned that his name was Glory Hallelujah Jones.

The Beginning of Manhood in China.

When one sees a lad in China with his head shaved one may be sure that, however boylike he may look, he has put aside all the things of youth and become a man. In fact, this event is celebrated in the household with great solemnity, for entrance upon manhood is a grave matter for the boys of the flowery land. Invitations are sent to the friends and relatives to a family gathering, and each is expected to bring a present—in money for choice—for the hero of the hour. The boy himself is dressed in fine silk robes and perfumed with spices. When everyone has arrived the father makes a speech in honor of the occasion, the presents are given and then a Chinese priest shaves the boy's head to prepare the way for the pigtail, which marks the man of the Celestial empire.

THE DALLES

Wasco County, - - - Oregon.

The Gate City of the Inland Empire is situated at the head of navigation on the Middle Columbia, and is a thriving, prosperous city.

ITS TERRITORY.

It is the supply city for an extensive and rich agricultural and grazing country, its trade reaching as far south as Summer Lake, a distance of over two hundred miles.

The Largest Wool Market.

The rich grazing country along the eastern slope of the Cascades furnishes pasture for thousands of sheep, the wool from which finds market here.

The Dalles is the largest original wool shipping point in America, about 5,000,000 pounds being shipped last year.

ITS PRODUCTS.

The salmon fisheries are the finest on the Columbia, yielding this year a revenue of thousands of dollars, which will be more than doubled in the near future.

The products of the beautiful Klickitat valley find market here, and the country south and east has this year filled the warehouses, and all available storage places to overflowing with their products.

ITS WEALTH.

It is the richest city of its size on the coast and its money is scattered over and is being used to develop more farming country than is tributary to any other city in Eastern Oregon.

Its situation is unsurpassed. Its climate delightful. Its possibilities incalculable. Its resources unlimited. And on these corner stones she stands.
