A FLEETING QUORUM

The Democrats Again Unable to Do Business Alone.

THE O'NEILL-JOY ELECTION CASE

Republicans Filibuster Against the Unseating of Joy and the House Is Left Without a Quorum.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—The house spent the entire day in filibustering over the O'Neill-Joy contested election case. The report of the committee is in favor of unseating Joy, republican, and the republicans are determined that this shall not be accomplished unless the democrats produce their own quorum. For five hours today the republicans filibustered and kept the house deadlocked. The highest number of democratic votes during the day was 166—13 short of a quorum. An unsuccessful attempt was made to adjourn over Good Friday, and the struggle will be resumed tomorrow.

After the roll call had been completed Livingston of Georgia called the attention of the house to the fact that the gentleman from Maine was in his seat and had refused to answer to his name. He demanded that he be brought before the bar of the house and asked to vote or give his reasons for not doing so. Bailey of Texas, in the chair, declared there was nothing in the rules requiring a member to appear before the bar of the house. Livingston then tried to shift his ground, claiming that the dignity of the house is in the keeping of the house, said the chairman, and it has not prescribed any method for forcing this rule.

"It is not a very large dignity," interrupted Reed, amid laughter. Livingston argued for some time with Bailey, but the latter ruled him out of order, and then announced the vote had resulted 150 to 1—still no quorum. Thereupon Patterson again moved a call of the house and Waugh moved an adjournment, which was lost. Van Vorhis then moved that when the house adjourned today it meet Monday next. Brown, chairman of the committee on elections, then gave up the contest, saying:

"It being apparent we can make no further progress today, I move the house adjourn."

Accordingly, at 5:30 the house adjourned.

Grover in Doubt.

WASHINGTON, Mar. 22.—There is good authority for the statement that the president has not yet decided what he shall do with the seigniorage bill. He is said to incline toward a veto and to take the position that the purposes of the act are now covered by the provisions of the existing law (the Sherman act) authorizing coinage of bullion, the secretary of the treasury being empowered to coin the seigniorage when earned.

SAYS HE WILL VETO IT.

CHICAGO, March 22.—The Post's Washington special says the president will veto the Bland bill. He reached this conclusion last night. He has prepared a draft of a veto message and will submit it to the cabinet tomorrow. For this statement there is the authority of one

The Natural Result.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 21.—If Dr. Houser is to be believed the deposed queen of the Hawaiian islands will soon be going around the country with him on a lecturing tour, wearing a crown on the stage and appearing in the same royal robes which she wore on state occasions at Honolulu. He made her an offer to go on the lecture stage and today said he had received letters which showed his offer will be accepted.

Bigamist Popper Sentenced.

NEW YORK, March 22.—Berthold Popper was sentenced to two years and eight months imprisonment for bigamy. Popper was convicted of marrying Mrs. Leslie Halleck, who afterward committed suicide.

New Gold Discovery.

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo., March 22.—A rich gold vein has been discovered near Lewiston, in the South Pass country. Prospectors report it to be the richest find ever discovered in the Rocky mountains.

NEWS NOTES.

Prendergast has been respited until April 6th by the court.

The Union Pacific employes say the conference with employers is a farce and will submit a demand.

The defense in the Pollard-Breckinridge case yesterday seemed to be simply that Miss Pollard was old enough to know better.

BOTH DEMAND AND SUPPLY.

But Unfortunately the Demand Was Not for the Thing Supplied.

Two little women ran up against each other enthusiastically the other day on a street corner, and the greeting over, the following conversation took place all in the same breath: "You're the very one I wanted to see." "And you're the very one I wanted to see." "Do you know of a house where a lovely woman and her daughter could be employed as janitress?" "No—I don't—but do you know of an intelligent girl who would go to a literary woman to read to her and dust around a little every day?" "No—but do you know of a place in the country where a good girl could work for her board?"

"No—haven't the least idea—but do you know of a— Here, as they each had paused for breath, the absurdity of the situation struck them and they fell against each other and roared merrily, as any jolly, light-hearted relief committee might be expected to do, and, after buzzing briefly, each sped on about her special errand not in the least discouraged.

It is at once occurs to a disinterested observer, one who is not a committee of anything, that when a labor bureau runs up against an intelligence office, each, as a writer in the New York Recorder says, in a condition of fermenting animation or animated fermentation, that the natural consequence would be that the wants of one would be fitted to the wants of the other. Such is, however, rarely the case. Adaptability is not one of the qualities roaming at large, even in a season of want and privation like the present one. The advertisements of "help wanted" rarely fit those in the column marked "employment wanted." It is the privilege of capital to expect to be sought by labor. The labor that seeks diligently stands a chance of becoming capital itself later on. The principle holds. The successful merchant watches the market and adjusts himself and his ideas to it. Mohammed is great, but the mountain is greater.

HEAP HOT ROPE.

How Some Indians Were Surprised by a Live Wire.

A party of Papago Indians wandered into Tucson, A. T., one day last summer, hatless and shoeless, and loafed around in approved Indian fashion. A couple of them were idly watching the stringing of the electric light wires near the post office, when one of the ropes by which they are hauled taut broke, the end of the wire flying back, and, crossing other wires, received a mild charge of electricity. One of the braves started to cross the street, and, reaching the innocent-looking copper wire, happened to place one bare foot on it. He gave a quick hop, without uttering a sound, and carefully examined his sole. He then daintily touched the wire again with his toe, and immediately gave another jump. By this time his companion had joined him, and, upon invitation, put his foot squarely upon the wire, and in turn gave an active leap in the air. Both then suddenly recollected themselves. Gazing at the number of spectators who were evidently enjoying the performance, they quickly walked away to talk over the mystery in the seclusion of their camp.

Unpleasantly Effective.

A striking and decidedly unpleasant advertisement lately placed in some of the Brooklyn street cars is an excellent representation of a man's hand holding a five-chambered loaded revolver, with the muzzle trained upon anyone looking at it. The ends of the bullets may be seen in the chambers and the forefinger of the hand seems to press nervously on the hair trigger. No matter where you may sit in the car the menacing black barrel points square between your eyes. "You may laugh at the notion," said a passenger the other day as he moved over into the far corner of the opposite seat, "but that picture makes me nervous. I've lived in the far west among the mining camps, but I'm uneasy all the time I'm in the car."

O. W. O. Hardman, Sheriff of Tyre Co., W. Va., appreciates a good thing and does not hesitate to say so. He was almost prostrated with a cold when he procured a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He says: "It gave me prompt relief. I find it to be an invaluable remedy for coughs and colds." For sale by Blakeley & Houghton, druggists.

CAN'T BE DONE BY MACHINERY.

Bottles That Have to Be Manufactured by Hand.

Many attempts have been made to supplant the glass-blower by machinery, says a trade journal, but up to this time none have attained commercial importance. Either the cost of production has been found to be higher than by the time-honored method or the ware produced was not of a quality up to the demands of the market. This is more especially the case in the kinds of bottles used to contain effervescent drinks, which must be capable of withstanding a pressure of several atmospheres without failure. This, in fact, is the critical point in the automatic manufacture of bottles, since the difficulty has always been to obtain a distribution of the glass forming the walls of the bottle as uniform as in the hand work. The attempt has been made to press the body and bottom separately, and to unite the two by fusing them together, but the bottles made in this manner were very heavy and of a poor appearance. The bottle machine invented by Ashby, England, aroused much interest and was much talked of, several companies being formed to engage in bottle manufacture by this method, but none, if they still survive, have succeeded in putting any great amount of ware on the markets of the world.

A Japanese Want Advertisement.

Another incontestable proof of the rapid advance of the Japanese in the civilization of the west is the following advertisement, which appeared in a Tokio paper recently: "A young lady wishes to get married. She is very beautiful, has a rosy face, which is surrounded by dark, curly hair. Her eyebrows show the form of the half moon and the mouth is small and pretty. She is also very rich, well read enough to admire the flowers in the day time at the side of a life companion, or at night to sing of the stars in heaven. The man whom she will choose must be young, handsome and well educated and be ready to share the same grave with her."

Mrs. Stubling and son have a fine assortment of dahlia bulbs, chrysanthemum, pansy and forget-me-not plants yet on hand. Those wanting such should call on them at once, as now is the time for successful transplanting.

If you want any kind of garden seeds, grass seed or field, call at H. H. Campbell's, where you can get what you want at reasonable rates. Next door to the postoffice.
