FIRST "REFERENDUM" CITY.

The city government of Haverhill, Massachusetts, population 30,000, has formally petitioned the legislature to amend the city's charter so that it may apply the Swiss initiative and referendum system to local legislation. As Haverhill is the first city in this country which is about to adopt the system, and as the republican and democratic parties of Maseachusetts have endorsed the system as a promising method of reforming municipal government, the pioneer experiment in this line will attract

The Haverhill plan provides that all ordinances passed by the council shall be classified as "urgent" and "nonurgent." The urgent ordinances are those referring to public health and peace and those which appropriate funds in any department greater than the average sum appropriated for the pre-ceding three years in that department. Such measures do not fall within the operation of the referendum and take effect at once.

All other ordinances are "non-urgent," and become operative in thirty days, unless, in the meantime, a petition, signed by fifteen per cent. of the voters of the city who voted at the preceding annual election shall be filed with the city clerk, asking for the submission of the measure to a popular vote for adoption or rejection. If adopted it is thereafter a municipal law. The Australian voting system is in use in Massachusetts, and the title of the proposed measure will be inserted in the official ballot. The mayor cannot veto a measure thus submitted, and he is thus shorn of an ancient prerogative.

Lord Rosebery felt compelled to explain in a speech at Edinburg recently that he had by no means abandoned home rule for Ireland. He says in substance that self-government for Ireland is achievable even without an English majority in parliament if the Irish party remain true to the liberal cause. But the young earl does not make any promise that home rule will be made a vital question during his period of office.

Congressman Breckinridge should try the insanity plea. It is not very manly to plead that Miss Pollard is the case of his downfall. He was both old and smart enough to be censor over his own actions. The Tacoma Union says: actions. The Tacoma Union says: The Stubling Greenhouse. of congress, a silver-tongued orator and the husband of a second wife, can suc- Having enlarged our Floral Garden and in cessfully plead in self-justification that a school girl seduced him, and for years held him in illicit relations, what can be done in the prosecution of young, every-day fellows on charges of seduc-

The passion-play is represented in Boston by marionettes. These figures are about the size and height of a 11year-old child. The words of the male characters are all spoken by the operator, and his daughter gives the women's voices. It may be supposed that the effect would be sacrilege, but a cultured woman who has seen the performance, but is not a linguist, said: "I did not understand one word that I heard, but I could not keep the tears back the voice was so burdened with sorrow. I never eaw anything more impressive. To me they were not figures, but my imagination was alive with the realistic scene. A more solemn hour and a half I have never passed."

There are many reasons why Speaker Crisp does not care to wear a senatorial toga in place of the simple tunic of the house. He believes himself, and his colleagues believe him to be the best ringmaster of their number, and certainly the clamorous session of Thursday, where he refused to entertain an 72 Washington Street appeal, refused to state his reason for not doing so, refused to recognize the rules requiring two tellers, and even refusing to put a motion to adjourn, stamp him as a bulldozer of the most approved pattern. But outside of these services there is a pecuniary difference of $5,000 a year on the wrong side of the ledger if Crisp accepted the honor conferred upon him by Gov. Northern. And as he is good for many years in the house at $10,000 a year it would be foolish, from a financial point of view, to take the gift of an unexpired term of senstorship.

PAINSTAKING FORGERS.

Their Efforts to Obtain the Signatures of "Men try in every way possible," said a prominent bank president re-"to obtain the signatures of

New York bankers. Their object is evidently to use them in committing forgeries. At least we suspect so, and for that reasigning letters.

"In this bank we have many letters from the west of such a trivial nature that we suspect an ulterior motive apon the part of the writers, and if we answer them at all do so by typewriter, even to the signature. "One forger or counterfeiter in Indiana is exceedingly systematic and persistent in his efforts to obtain the signatures of our officers. As regularly as the year comes around 'he writes, inclosing a ten dollar bill, and requests us to send him one of our new ten dollar national bank notes in exchange.

"He always gives the same reason for the request-that he wants it for 'his collection.' Of course that is nonsense. We believe that he wants a new bill so that he may discover if we have changed our officers and get their signatures 'He never does get them, though. We always return this bill, with a typewritten letter on paper containing no names, excusing ourselves on the ground that we have no circulation outstanding."

performed by Ayer's Sarsaparilla, one in particular being that of a little daughter of a Church of England minister. The child was literally covered from head to foot with a red and exceedingly troublesome rash, from which she had suffered for two or three years, in spite of the best medical treatment available. Her father was in great distress about the case, and, at my recommendation, at last began to administer Ayer's Sarsaparilla, two bottles of which effected a complete cure, much to her relief and her father's delight. I am sure, were he here to-day, he would testify in the strongest terms as to the merits of

THE CONDUCTOR OUTWITTED. A Sheriff Who Would Not Let a Raliroad

Law Bother Him-A ludicrous row over the separate coach law occurred on the Cincinnati Southern road recently. Sheriff Roberts, of Boone county, had a white and colored prisoner, destined for the peni-tentiary in this city, and took them both in the colored coach. The conson try to be as careful as possible in ductor, evidently not informed that nurses and prisoners are exempt from the provisions of the law, insisted that the sheriff should leave the colored car and take his white prisoner with him, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The sheriff refused to separate them, but took both to the white car. The conductor then told him he would have to place his colored prisoner in the proper car, and the sheriff replied he would not do it, and if put off would sue the company. The row became threatening, and the sheriff, in order to avoid trouble, went back into the colored car when the train stopped, and when again seen by the conductor got back into the white car. In this way they quarreled over the whole route to Georgetown, but the sheriff landed his prisoners in the penitentiary securely locked together.

ITS. TERRITORY.

It is the supply city for an extensive and rich agricultural and grazing country, its trade reaching as far south as Summer Lake, a distance of over two hundred miles.

The Largest Wool Market.

The rich grazing country along the eastern slope of the Cascades furnishes pasture for thousands of sheep, the wool from which finds market here.

The Dalles is the largest original wool shipping point in America, about 5,000,000 pounds being shipped last year.

ITS PRODUCTS.

The salmon fisheries are the finest on the Columbia, yielding this year a revenue of thousands of dollars, which will be more than doubled in the near future. The products of the beautiful Klickitat valley find market here, and the country south and east has this year filled the warehouses, and all available storage places to overflowing with their products. ITS WEALTH.

It is the richest city of its size on the coast and its money is scattered over and is being used to develop more farming country than is tributary to any other city in Eastern Oregon. Its situation is unsurpassed. Its climate delightful. Its possibilities incalculable. Its resources unlimited. And on these corner stones she stands.
