MONDAY, APR. 9, 1894
The year 1893 will be known for its democracy and soup houses.

The Rev. Dr. Joseph Parker, of London, is credited with a rather clever remark. The three present-day euphemisms for "the world," the "flesh" and the "devil," he said, are "society," "environment" and "tendency."
Minister Willis has made his peace with the provisional government by assuring President Dole that he had carried out the instructions of President Cleveland and had nothing more to do about re-enthroning Queen Lil unless further instructions were received.

Wm McKinley, of Ohio, for president. He is the champion of protection to American labor. James G. Blaine, the workingman's friend, was knocked down by professional politicians and never reached the white house. McKinley is the exponent of protection. Labor should see to it that they are heard; that McKinley is not shoved back by politicians envious of his popularity. Keep him in front.

Patrick Walsh, appointed by Governor Northern to succeed the late Senator Colquitt, is chief editor of the Augusta Chronicle, a member of the Roman Catholic church, and president of the Southern Associated Press. In 1888 he was defeated as member of the national democratic committee on account of his high tariff views. In 1892 he was defeated as a delegate to the national convention because he favored Hill for president. He has always been an ardent protectionist heretofore. He has never held a political office. He is in favor of the free coinage of silver. Mr. Walsh is about sixty years of age. Notwithstanding all this Speaker Crisp, referring to the appointment, said the selection by Governor Northern was one that would meet the approval of the people of Georgia. Mr. Walsh had for years been prominent in his profession, and his ability and character were everywhere recognized to be the highest class. On economic questions Mr. Walsh might be classed as a Randall democrat, the speaker said, but he had always loyally supported the platform and measures of the party. He had no doubt that in the senate Mr. Walsh would vote with his party on the tariff bill.

CURRENT PRESS COMMENT.

The South Carolinians have chosen a rather intemperate way of solving the temperance question.

It rained salt up in Pocatello, Idaho, a few days ago—spray caught up from the Great Salt Lake, 300 miles away. This storm will have to be followed up with a rain of hot beefsteaks before the Idaho populists are satisfied.

"What would Christ do if he came to Chicago?" Of course we do not know, but we should judge from what we have read of Christ, that should he ever be called there he would go around it, especially if Stead was there.—Glacier.

The annual convention of the Republican National League meets at Denver on June 26, and ends with a grand celebration of the Fourth of July. We are glad this national Republican gathering will be held there. It will broaden the Colorado Republicans to meet their brethren from other sections, and find that there are other issues vital to the people beyond their free silver heresy.

The woman who works, and is tired, will find a special help in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Perfectly harmless in any condition of the female system. It promotes all the natural functions, and builds up, strengthens, regulates and cures. For every woman approaching confinement, nursing mothers, and every weak, run-down, delicate woman, it is an invigorating, supporting tonic that's peculiarly adapted to their needs.

But it's more than that, too. It's the only guaranteed remedy for all the functional disturbances, painful disorders, and chronic weaknesses of womanhood. In "female complaints" of every kind, periodical pains, bearing-down sensations, internal inflammation, and kindred ailments, if it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.

All those holding city warrants of date prior to September 1st, 1891, will be paid on presentation at my office. Interest on same ceases after this date.

City Treasurer.

MIDWINTER FAIR.

[Weekly Circular Letter—No. 22.]
Added to the many attractions which have already made the California International Exposition famous as a center of entertainment and education, there will be reproduced on April 17, 18 and 19 the great Mardi Gras Carnival which has attracted multitudes to the city of New Orleans and which has made the name "Mardi Gras" and that of the "Crescent City" synonymous. This idea of reproducing in the City of the Golden Gate the wonderful pageant which has drawn people southward for so many years, was suggested as an accessory to the Midwinter Exposition, and it has been taken hold of so energetically by the business men of San Francisco that not only is its success assured in this instance, but there is already a strong probability that the "Mystic Argonauts of the Golden West" will play their part every year in the history of San Francisco just as the Mystic Crewe of Comus has played its part in Now Orleans.

The material for this great pageant has been accumulating for several weeks now in a large building temporarily erected in a secluded part of the exposition grounds, and a force of workmen and artists are constantly employed building floats and carrying out the plans of those who have the matter in charge. The carnival people call themselves "The Mystic Argonauts of the Golden West," and their beautiful colors of crimson, green and gold are beginning to be worn all over the city. On Tuesday, April 17, Rex arrives at the foot of Market street on his royal barge and will be escorted to the exposition grounds in triumph. There the keys of the city will be turned over to His Highness, metaphorically, and from that time on the King of the Carnival will have it all his own way. On Wednesday, the 18th, will occur the grand carnival parade in the evening. It will then be seen that not only is the great New Orleans Mardi Gras being produced here in San Francisco, but that there will have been added a great many unique and original features. It is proposed that the parade of floats and everything else in connection with the procession shall be made around the exposition grounds and through the great field that has been prepared for a recreation grounds. At that point an immense frame is to be erected, and each float or other feature will be halted directly behind that frame, and the great search light from the top of the electric tower will be turned full upon it in view of the vast concourse which will undoubtedly be assembled upon the grand stand and upon every available point of view.

On the evening of Friday, April 19, takes place the Carnival ball. As to the success of this ball of all nations there can be no manner of doubt, for every foreign commissioner and the Midwinter exposition commissioner and the Midwinter exhibit, have already promised to take part and to introduce in the grand march on that occasion, the funny and peculiar people of whom they have control. Arrangements are being made for the running of special trains from all parts of the Pacific Coast during this carnival season, and it is confidently expected that that week of the fair will be the greatest in the history of the exposition. The work that is being done in the preparation of the floats is already a guarantee that these are to be noteworthy accessories. There will be seen on this occasion some of the most artistic creations ever presented in a street pageant. An effort is being made to secure the closing of business houses throughout the city on the opening day of the Carnival, and it goes without saying that little or no business will be done on the evenings which are to be devoted to the exposition to the night parade and to the carnival ball.

The element of romance, which has doubtless existed under the rose ever since the inception of the exposition, has at last manifested itself in no uncertain terms. On Sunday, April 1, there was a marriage in one of the cars of the Firth wheel. The contracting parties were Alexander Von Gunther and Ernestine Schneider. The interesting part of the story in connection with this marriage is that this was not the first time that this same couple had united in matrimony. Years ago they took each other for better or for worse, and each decided that it was worse than better. They only met a few weeks ago on the platform of the Firth wheel where both had come to see the sights of the exposition. The meeting was so strange and the pleasure was so mutual that they at once forgot past differences and agreed to kiss and make up. What more natural than they should decide to be married on the very wheel whose turning brought them face to face after so long a separation? And where was the sense of being married a second time without some novel feature being connected with it? Hence it came to pass that this couple were married in the Firth wheel. The chimes in the tower of the Liberal Arts building pealed forth the wedding bells at the moment the preacher pronounced them man and wife. All the other cars of the wheel were full of wedding guests, and the wedding journey consisted of a trip twice round. This marriage would seem to have started a perfect matrimonial fever in the exposition. There have been two Indian marriages and one Esquimaux wedding within a week. One of the exposition guards married a girl who had been attending a soda water booth, and there have been two vacancies on the staff of the exposition typewriters occasioned by hasty resignations with matrimonial intent. And now the '49 Mining Camp has offered to furnish a justice of the peace and a hundred dollars to any Mexican couple who will come forward to be spliced in the old fashioned way, and the gates of the camp are besieged by Barksies.

DR. JOHNSON.

The Tenderness of a Most Tyrannical Dogmatist.
The writings of Hannah More had made her famous before she was twenty-five years of age, and she attracted the attention of Sheridan by her verses when she was scarcely eighteen. John Lord, in "Great Women," describes her as stern as a disciplinarian, but not objecting to healthy and natural amusements.
She was a model woman; beautiful, yet not vain; independent, yet respectful to authority; hospitable, without extravagance.
Dr. Johnson was her warmest friend, whom she ever respected for his lofty moral nature. He called her his child. Sometimes he was severe on her, when she differed from him in opinion, or when caught praising books which he, as a moralist, abhorred, like the novels of Fielding and Smollet, for the only novelist he could tolerate was Richardson.
Once when she warmly expatiated in praise of the Jansenists, the overbearing autocrat exclaimed, in a voice of thunder:
"Madam, let me hear no more of this! Don't quote your popish authorities to me; I want none of your popery!"
But seeing that his friend was overwhelmed with the shock he gave her, his countenance instantly changed; his lip quivered, and his eyes filled with tears. He gently took her hand, and with the deepest emotion exclaimed: "Child, never mind what I have said! Follow true piety wherever you find it."

This anecdote is a key to the whole character of Johnson, interesting and uninteresting; for this rough, tyrannical dogmatist was also one of the tenderest of men, and had a soul as impressive as that of a woman.

Wasco County, Oregon.

The Gate City of the Inland Empire is situated at the head of navigation on the Middle Columbia, and is a thriving, prosperous city.
ITS TERRITORY.
It is the supply city for an extensive and rich agricultural and grazing country, its trade reaching as far south as Summer Lake, a distance of over two hundred miles.
The Largest Wool Market.
The rich grazing country along the eastern slope of the Cascades furnishes pasture for thousands of sheep, the wool from which finds market here.
The Dalles is the largest original wool shipping point in America, about 5,000,000 pounds being shipped last year.

ITS PRODUCTS.
The salmon fisheries are the finest on the Columbia, yielding this year a revenue of thousands of dollars, which will be more than doubled in the near future.
The products of the beautiful Klickitat valley find market here, and the country south and east has this year filled the warehouses, and all available storage places to overflowing with their products.

ITS WEALTH.
It is the richest city of its size on the coast and its money is scattered over and is being used to develop more farming country than is tributary to any other city in Eastern Oregon.
Its situation is unsurpassed. Its climate delightful. Its possibilities incalculable. Its resources unlimited. And on these corner stones she stands.
