THE HAWAIIAN ISLANDS.

They Are Situated Many Miles Distant from Honolulu.

The group lies in a chain distant from Oahu seven hundred to twelve hundred miles, west by northwest. There are several records of its discovery. Ocean Island was quite well known as early as 1830. In that year the English vessel Gladstones was wrecked on its shores. In 1870 the United States cruiser Saginaw was lost in these waters. She had gone down there to dredge a channel and provide a station for old side-wheelers then setting out as Pacific mail liners. The only losses of life were from small boats. One boat, sent up this way for assistance, was lost just off Kauai. But one of the crew was saved. He brought the news to Honolulu. In a few hours Capt. King, now minister of interior, was off aboard a schooner carrying a relief expedition. Next day, at the request of the American minister, an island steamer was sent after the schooner. Long was master of the steamer, and Capt. Rice, now of the tug Eleu, was mate. They beat Capt. King only twenty hours to Ocean Island. The Americans were gone. They had been picked up by a sailing vessel. An inquiry that stirred naval circles followed the loss of the Saginaw, and Honolulu was made the port of call for the Pacific mail. Of the three side-wheel liners, one was burned at sea, one at Hong Kong, and the third lost off Panama.

Years ago two whalers went ashore in one night on Pearl and Hermes reef. The vessels were lost entirely and several men drowned. In 1885, the English craft Dunstater Castle, coal laden from Newcastle, was wrecked on an Ocean island reef. A small boat sent for help found its way here. The Waialeale, Hale, master, was dispatched to the rescue and brought all hands to Honolulu. The crew of the Saginaw first found water on Ocean Island.

At one time the carrying of guano and phosphates to the United States from the midway group promised to become a great business. The discovery of phosphates in Florida and other states along the Atlantic coast had a depressing effect on the fertilizer traffic in the United States.

Collar of Honor for Noble Dogs.

In France there exists an order of merit, founded by the society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, of which the members are dogs who have distinguished themselves by deeds of bravery. A tastefully designed "collar of honor" is awarded to the nominees of the order. Among the animals already decorated in this way one of the most celebrated is Baechus, a large bulldog, whose speciality it is to stop runaway horses by jumping up and seizing them by the bridle. It is calculated that the intelligent beast has already saved the lives of eight persons, if not more, in this way. Pat, another bulldog, received a collar in 1887 for saving his mistress from the attack of a footpad, and Turk, a splendid Newfoundland, has had a similar honor for saving three young children from drowning on different occasions.

THE Sioux Indians have a newspaper published at Madison, S. D., called the Anpokin. Its motto is from Luke i, 78: "Wankantanh Anpokin Hiyounhipi."

Ten days loss of time on account of sickness and a doctor bill to pay, is anything but pleasant for a man of a family to contemplate, whether he is a laborer, mechanic, merchant or publisher. Jas. O. Jones, publisher of the Leader, Mexia, Texas, was sick in bed for ten days with the grip during its prevalence a year or two ago. Later in the season he had a second attack. He says: "In the latter case I used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with considerable success. I think, only being in bed a little over two days. The second attack I am satisfied would have been equally as bad as the first but for the use of the remedy." It should be borne in mind that the grip is much the same as a very severe cold and requires precisely the same treatment. Who you wish to cure a cold quickly and effectually give this remedy a trial. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakeley & Houghton, druggists.

WING FEATHERS.

The Marvelous Mechanical Provisions of Nature.

Feathers are peculiar to birds, and in their typical form have a shaft or stiff central rod fixed at one end into the skin and free at the other. From the two opposite sides of this shaft grow thin, flat plates, constituting the web or vane of the feather. This web, however, is not a simple, solid structure like a piece of paper, or even the leaf of a plant. It is composed of an immense number of horny filaments placed side by side and set obliquely on the shaft, to which they are fixed by their inner ends.

To understand what follows, I would ask my reader, says a writer in Good Words, to take a goose quill, or a feather of the wing of any bird that may be at hand, and look at it carefully. He will see that these separate filaments of which the vane is composed, technically called barbs, although really distinct from each other and only attached to the common stem at their base, have a curious tendency to cling together, so as to form a continuous structure, and that it takes a slight but distinct amount of force to separate them, and that after they have been pulled or forced apart, if they are brought in contact again by gently stroking the feather in the right direction, or by waving it briskly through the air, they will join again as firmly as before. He will also find that this operation may be repeated an indefinite number of times.

Of all the marvelous mechanical adaptations we meet with in nature there is nothing more wonderful than that which is seen in every feather of a bird's wing. The object is evidently to produce an expanded surface, light, strong, and practically indestructible, one capable of resisting the pressure brought to bear upon it in buffeting the strongest winds without permanently splitting or being torn in tatters.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten-fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

The experience of Geo. A. Apgar, of German Valley, N. J., is well worth remembering. He then began using Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, of which one bottle effected a complete cure. It is for sale by Blakeley & Houghton, druggists.

PRETTY FACES BEHIND VEILS.

Moorish Women Sometimes Let These Screens Fall.

Writing about Moorish women, Richard Harding Davis says: "There is something continually interesting in the muffled figures of the women. They make you almost ashamed of the uncovered faces of the American women in the town, and, in the lack of any evidence to the contrary, you begin to believe every Moorish girl you meet is as beautiful as her eyes would make it appear that she is."

"Those of the girls whose faces I saw were distinctly handsome: they were the women Benjamin Constant paints in his pictures of Algiers, and about whom Pierre Loti goes into ecstasies in his book on Tangiers."

"The robe or cloak, or whatever the thing is they affect, covers the head like a hood, and with one hand they hold one of the folds in front of the face as high as their eyes. The only times I ever saw the faces of any of them were when I occasionally eluded Mohamed and ran off with a little guide called Isaac, the especial protector of two American women, who farmed him out to me when they preferred to stay in the hotel."

"He is a particularly beautiful youth, and I noticed that whenever he was with me the cloaks of the women had a fashion of coming undone, and they would lower them for an instant and look at Isaac, and then replace them severely upon the bridge of the nose. Then Isaac would turn toward me with a shy, conscious smile, and then blush violently. Isaac says the young men of Tangiers can tell whether or not a girl is pretty by looking at her feet. It is true that their feet are bare, but it struck me as a somewhat reckless test for selecting a bride."
