Wonder if the Dalles democratic convention are not sorry they endorsed Grover Cleveland in all his acts. Cuckoo.

Hill's speech and its ratification by the New York legislature has struck terror to the Cleveland democrats, who realize as never before their lost political condition. In letters of electrical whiteness they see the handwriting on the wall, and it fills them with dismay-"Mene, mene, tekel upharsin."

The names at the mast-head of THE CHRONICLE were chosen by the republican state convention to fill the highest positions within the gift of the state. Representidg the party of highest intelligence, greatest ability and most adwarred ideas. THE CHEONICLE enters the field in their cause and will exert all the influence that in it lies to have them elected in June by the greatest republican majority ever given in th

Probably the most remarkable political address of the year was that just issued by the democratic leaders of Minnesota through the democratic association of Minnesota. It says in part: "It is useless to disguise the fact that our party is confronted with serious peril. It is time for plain words. Silence now is disloyalty to our party and its cause. In less than two years after winning the most complete victory any party ever won, and while in full possession of the powers then given us, we present the appearance of a defeated party, while our opponents defeated in the battle wear all the airs of victory."

If the number of ewes that have been sent to the Chicago market during the past month is a fair index, then the supply of sheep in the future will be materially cut short. From fifty to seventyfive per cent of the sheep marketed for awhile were ewes, and this means that the breeding stock was reduced in proportion, and the supply of lambs will be much shortened. The utter discouragement which prevailed among sheepmen during the past season is responsible for this radical move. The next thing there will be a shortage in sheep, prices will advance and everybody will go to raising them again, and a glance at the figures of the past year will reveal what that signifies. Sheep are prolific, and more prudence and conservatism should be exercised in raising and marketing them. This showing operates against the fine wool men, of course, but also upon the mutton sheep men in a minor degree, of every time as of course, in fact, the breeders of mutton, and have the advantage, but in no wise a fair show in congress just now .- Prairie Farmer Chicago.

Senator Dolph in his speech in the senate against the passage of the Bland other trinket of value to him, but seigniorage bill said: "I ascertained two years ago during the election in my state that a certain woman by the name of Emery up in Michigan had weitten a book that she called the Seven Financial Conspiracies which have Enslaved the American People." Before the canvass was half over in my state 16,000 copies of the book had been sent into Oregon. I have been told by those who know the woman and know the character of the book that it should be denominated the Seven Financial Fallacies; that she has drawn upon her imagination, not only for her conclusions, but for her facts. I understand the book finds ready circulation and sale, and that the woman is making a handsome fortune out of it in my state and other states where they do not know her so well. There it is used as a text-book of the populists. It is their political bible, and you cannot convince one of them when he gets hold of Mrs. Emery's book even by an official report and documents but the truth is stated in the Seven Financial Conspiracies." Of this book Senator John Sherman says: "Some time since this wild and vissionary book was sent to me, and I read it with both amusement and astonishment that any one could read with approval, or be deceived by its falsehoods." Mrs. Emery's book is law and gospel among populists in Oregon.

AN AFRICAN KING.

He Was Jealous of the Talents of Hi

After Emin Pasha had learned of the hope of being able to defend the equatorial province with the force at his disposal, says Youth's Companion. To rescue the Egyptians who gar-risoned the various posts was now his first duty, and he began to make his plans for a march to the sea. The only practical route appeared to lie through the kingdom of Unyoro, which bounds the province ou the southeast. Accordingly he sent his medical officer, Vita Hassan, with valuable presents of ivory and other things, to the king of the country to obtain permission for the passage of the troops through his

This African monarch, who was named Kabarega, though in outward appearance a mere savage, showed that he possessed some of the qualities of a successful ruler.

Among the presents sent him was a little box which had come from Mambettu, a country in the extreme western part of the province. When the king noticed that it was made of a single piece of wood he was very much pleased with it and asked the envoy whether he thought that his subjects were capable of imitating such work.

"I answered him," says Vita Hassan, "that the Wanyoro had no experience in such work and that it would be very difficult for them to do it as well as the Mambettu, who were skilled in fashioning out of a block of wood the most varied and difficult objects. In a really artistic manner they are able to make dishes, plates, bowls, stands and Dealer in Glear, Lime, Plaster, Cement even Turkish jugs with their long and rooked necks.

"The Wanyoro, on the other hand, understand the preparation of skins. This is their speciality, as wood-working is that of the Mambettu. My words aroused the jealousy of Kabarega, and he counted on his fingers to five, and then said: 'On this day,' pointing to the fifth finger, 'come here again, and I will show you whether or not my people can make a box like this."

"On the fifth day the Wanyoro had succeeded, under the most frightful threats of the king, in manufacturing a similar box of perhaps even better construction. Full of pride, Kabarega showed it to me with the words: 'What use is it being a king if I cannot get my subjects to make everything which not lost my head; I shall never bid them fetch me the moon, but if it is a thing which is not beyond our power, I cannot permit that they should give up at the first difficulty.' "For a negro king this seemed to be very reasonable, and I bowed my as-

WAYS OF THE FAKIRS. Where and How Fortune-Telling Sharps

Get in Their Work. It is said by the detectives of the central office, who occasionally have to deal with the fortune-telling, hypnotic and clairvoyant sharps, these latter gentry make their living by the skill with which they treat the curious maiden ladies of uncertain age and the army of stout and middleaged women who endeavor, by bleaching their hair and powdering their faces, to conceal from themselves and the world the fact that they are growing old. The fortune tellers, says the New York Sun, are men who apparently realize that there is in this world a large number of foolish women of mature years, who do not object to and forty years of age, of an owl-like air and more or less impressiveness of manner, and they foudle the hands of their visitors as they read the lines after a fashion that would be ridiculous were it not lucrative. There is no real harm in all of this, according to the detectives, except that once in awhile a particularly idle and foolish course. The merino sheep men catch it old woman permits one of these sharps to get the best of her so far as to extort sums of money, on one pretext or another, beyond the usual three dollar limit for consultation. Sometimes the pretext is an enlargement of his business, his desire to buy a beautiful picture, or some as often as not the man succeeds in wheedling sums of money varying from five dollars to twenty-five dollars purely as a "loan." It is when the "loan" gets to be of unusual propor-tions that the police are called in. They know the fortune tellers very well, and there is never any difficulty in getting back the money, but the elderly, foolish woman in the case is usually in a state of tremendous mental perturbation while it is all go-

Victoria Reigned Again

A few days ago one of the London weeklies told how the queen was busily looking over and signing important state papers, using, as usual, one of her favorite big quill pens. The youngsters were in the room, tothering as only youngsters can, and the ruler on whose dominion the sun never sets tried in vain to get them to be off.

At last they proposed a bargain.
"Gran," they said, "give us each one of those lovely feathery pens."

The price was considered low for the service, and it was quickly paid, and peace and Victoria reigned together for the rest of the morning.-Boston Globe.

In business three things are necessary-knowledge, temper and time.-

PEACE is such a precious jewel that I would give anything for it but truth.
