CAPTURED THE TRAIN

Kelley's Army of Industrials Now on the Way East.

RAILROAD MEN CHANGE TACTICS

And Will Carry Them Through as Rapidly as Possible—Fed at the Stock Yards.

OMAHA, April 12.—Kelley's army of industrials captured the Union Pacific train at Evanston, Wyo., and are now riding east.

CHEYENNE, April 12.—Kelley's army captured a Union Pacific freight train at Utah, a few miles from Ogden. Kelly took charge, the engineer and fireman obeying his orders. The employees failed in an attempt to put off the leaders. The train has 28 box cars filled with 1,200 men. The railway officers have given up hope of preventing a seizure and will carry the army east as rapidly as possible. The train will be stopped outside all Wyoming towns. The army will reach Cheyenne at 10 o'clock Friday morning and will be fed at the stockyards. The army has three days' rations. A Cheyenne saloon-keeper named Storey has assumed command of the Wyoming division and issued a call for recruits.

Governor Osborne will make no effort to stop the army unless acts of violence are committed. The army is orderly, but there is much suffering from rheumatism and pneumonia. There are many well-dressed men among them. It is undecided whether to send the army via Colorado or Nebraska. Cities along the line are preparing ample food.

THE SAN FERNANDO.

Secretary Smith Recommends That the Pending Suit Be Abandoned.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The secretary of the interior has addressed a letter to the attorney-general recommending that the contemplated suit by the government to secure the cancellation of patents issued many years ago for the San Fernando private land grant in California be abandoned. An examination of the abstract of title to the grant reveals the fact that these lands have passed by various means of conveyances into other hands than those of the original grantees. Whatever the equities in this case may be, they are stale.

Cowardly Lynchers.

GATEVILLE, Texas, April 11.—The people in this locality are terribly wrought up over the hanging of Edward Cashby on Monday. The crime was most cruelly executed, the victim being dragged out of his house in the presence of his invalid wife, and strung up to a tree but a few yards from the house. Not satisfied with this the mob riddled the body with bullets, while the woman prayed for the deliverance of her husband. The murderers have not yet been captured, but every effort is being made to secure them. Mrs. Cashby is momentarily expected to die.

No More Indian Troops.

DENVER, April 12.—Information from the headquarters of the department of the Colorado, is that preparations are being made to muster out the Indian troops in the near future.

Caught Another Itch Fool.

LONDON, April 12.—William Wilde, the divorced husband of Mrs. Leslie, of New York, was married a few days ago to Miss Sophia Lees, a young lady of Irish parentage, said to be very wealthy.

It will be an agreeable surprise to persons subject to attacks of bilious colic to learn that prompt relief may be had by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. In many instances the attacks may be prevented by taking this remedy as soon as the first symptoms of the disease appear. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakely & Houghton.

Breckinridge's Attorneys Are Still Arguing the Case.

WASHINGTON, April 12.—Major Butterworth opened proceedings in the Breckinridge case by considering the Rhodes letters, declaring a mystery surrounded them. He consumed much time pointing out a few discrepancies in minor points of plaintiff's testimony.

Then Mr. Butterworth portrayed her opportunities to elevate herself in Washington. How she should have shrunk from continuing a life of shame with a man with a wife and family. Mr. Butterworth argued that a verdict against his client in this case would be only a flagrant instance of vicarious punishment. Miss Pollard's testimony, he said, implied that a woman of corrupt life, who from choice had held doubtful relations with Rhodes, who had illegitimate children at sundry places and marriages at others, was to sit at his table, was a union that was the acme of all that was vicious and contemptible; that a woman who lived for ten years without earning a cent as mistress of his life, wanted money and nothing else. Mr. Butterworth firmly believed that the woman knew of that secret marriage in New York on April 29th.

The defense of Colonel Breckinridge, which Major Butterworth made today, is considered, even by his opponents, to have been one of the greatest speeches ever made in a Washington court. It was effective as a masterpiece of oratory, and was made largely so by the winning personality of the speaker. Mr. Butterworth was persuasive, dramatic, friendly, conciliatory and artful. For nearly nine hours Major Butterworth carried on the speaking in the great case. He conjured by the name of mother, the fireside and American womanhood most effectively, making it appear that all of these forces were enlisted on the side of his client. Through all the speaking, the white-haired member of congress from Kentucky sat facing the jury, much of the time with his face shaded by his hand, occasionally nodding assent to the points mentioned by the speaker. The slender plaintiff has heard none of the denunciation of herself, and her attorneys have sat smiling throughout the onset of the opposition. Judge Wilson will consume the greater part of two days, commencing with his speech for the plaintiff.

Breckinridge Bound to Run.

FRANKFORT, Ky., April 12.—In a personal letter to a friend in this city Breckinridge states he will make the congressional race at all hazards. The letter says: "I see from statements going around through papers that in event of an adverse verdict here I would withdraw from the race for congress. I am in this congressional race to the bitter end. I am not going to be on the defense, but am going to make an aggressive fight."

GOOD Food - - - Digestion - - - Complexion - - - are all intimately connected—practically inseparable. Though the fact is often ignored, it is nevertheless true that a good complexion is an impossibility without good digestion, which in turn depends on good food.

There is no more common cause of indigestion than lard. Let the bright house-keeper use

KILLED HER HUSBAND.

He Was Too Mean to Live and She Blew Out His Brains.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 11.—Mrs. George Woerner tonight placed a pistol against the temple of her sleeping husband and blew out his brains. The couple had been married only nine months, and up to a month ago lived together happily. Several weeks ago Woerner took his wife to a party, but when they returned home said she had disengaged him by her actions, and he would never take her out again. After that Woerner always went out alone, leaving his wife at home. They quarreled frequently about the matter, and tonight Woerner told his wife to pack up her traps and go home, as he was going to secure a divorce. He then went to bed and to sleep. When she was sure her husband was thoroughly asleep, Mrs. Woerner secured a pistol which she had recently purchased and killed him as he slept. Then she went into hysterics. The woman has been arrested and charged with murder.

SUN AND RAIN SHADES.

An English Philanthropist the First Man to Habitually Carry an Umbrella.

About a hundred and forty or fifty years ago a bloodless revolution was brought about in London by a single man, says the New York Evening Post. He was Jonas Hanway, a well-known philanthropist and founder of the Magdalen hospital, who first had the courage habitually to carry and use an umbrella in public. Up to this time the umbrella had been considered as essentially an article of feminine equipment and luxury, and the innovation was naturally for a long time a subject of derision in general, but, most especially, from the hackney coachmen and chairmen of the day, who considered the use of them an invasion of their vested rights. Macdonald, a literary footman of that time, who wrote an autobiography, informed his readers that he had "a fine silk umbrella brought from Spain, but could not with any comfort to himself use it, the people calling out: 'Frenchman, why don't you get a coach?'" So remarkable was the appearance of an umbrella in those days that the "debut" of one in many other English towns was quite a news item, like the monster gooseberry or sea serpent of later days. So we read of a red leghorn umbrella appearing in Bristol about 1780 and creating quite a sensation. In Edinburgh a Dr. Spens was said to have been the first to carry one in public. Horace Walpole tells also how a Dr. Shebbeare, who was prosecuted for seditious writings in 1758, "stood in the pillory, having a footman holding an umbrella to keep off the rain." For permitting this indulgence to a malefactor, the undersheriff was punished. Of the antiquity of the umbrella or parasol there can be no doubt; but the origin of it is wrapped in considerable obscurity. Investigators of umbrella lore have supposed that large leaves, tied to the extremity of a bough, suggested the first idea; others assert that it was probably derived from a tent: the tradition existing in China is that the fan, which signifies a shade for sun or rain, originated in standards and banners waving in the air. The humble mushroom can also modestly claim some share of the idea, and this claim to the original patents is acknowledged by the Parisians, who call their shelters, erected for equestrians in the Bois de Boulogne, "Champignons."
