MISDIRECTED LETTERS.

Statistics Show That People Are Addressing Mail Matter More Carefully.

The number of pieces of dead mail matter received at the dead letter office during the fiscal year 1893 was 7,131,027, an increase over the receipts of the previous year of $49,847 pieces, or a little more than five per cent. This increase of undelivered matter, according to the Albany Press, is less than the per cent. of increase of matter mailed, as shown by the statistics of other branches of the postal service, and would seem to indicate more care on the part of the people in addressing their letters as well as increased vigilance on the part of postmasters to secure proper delivery.

The number of pieces treated in the dead-letter office, including those on hand from the previous year, was 7,330,038. These were classified as follows: Five million four hundred and eight thousand nine hundred and forty-five were ordinary unclaimed letters, 204,445 were addressed to persons in the care of hotels, 218,180 were mailed to foreign countries and returned by the various postal administrations as undeliverable, 50,941 were addressed to initials or fictitious persons and 7,105 were domestic registered letters. There were 633,957 pieces of mail matter of foreign origin and 182,050 were ordinary letters without inclosures, having been once returned by the dead letter office to addresses contained therein, and, failing of delivery, were again sent to the dead letter office for final disposition.

The number of letters classed as unmailable comprise 1,144, containing articles which were not transmissible in the mails: 98,324 were either entirely unpaid or paid less than one full rate, and could not, therefore, be forwarded; 400,832 were either deficient or addressed to places not post offices or to post offices which had no existence in the state named, and were classed under the general head of "misdirected"; 35,918 were without any address whatever, and 2,040 were classed as "miscellaneous." There were also received 83,246 unclaimed and unmailable parcels of third and fourth-class matter.

A Painted Biography.

The most extraordinary biography in existence is neither written nor printed. It is painted. It contains the life and adventures of Charles Magnus, a noble Venetian. Having been culminated he determined to set himself right in the eyes of his contemporaries, and employed Paul Veronese to paint his biography. The volume has eighteen pages of vellum, each has a large central picture surrounded by ten smaller, each having its appropriate inscription, the whole recounting the most notable scenes in his life.

The attitude which President Eliot is going to take in discussing athletics in his annual report is not likely to foster a friendly feeling between him and the students of Harvard. He recommends abolishing freshman intercollegiate sports entirely and allowing important intercollegiate university contests, such as those with Yale, Princeton and Pennsylvania, to occur only once in two years in the form of athletics.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison, of Bolan, Worth Co., Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Fort Madison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words: "It cured me right up." He also says a neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me, he got a bottle and it cured them up in a week. 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakely & Houghton, druggists.

RICH FIELD FOR EXPLORERS.

The Ruins of Two Great Prehistoric Cities Found in Central Asia.

In central and eastern Asia there lies an unexplored region full of interest, and to the archaeologist especially, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch. A great traveler and clever writer, the Russian Gen. Prjevalsky, speaking of the oasis of Tchertchen, situated in the great table lands hemmed in by the three unbroken wall of the Himalayas, says that close to it are the ruins of two great cities, the oldest of which, according to local tradition, was destroyed three thousand years ago, and the other by the Mongolians in the tenth century of our era. The emplacement of the two cities is now covered, owing to the shifting sands and desert winds, with strange and heterogeneous relics, broken china, kitchen utensils and human bones. The natives often find copper and gold coins, ingots, diamonds and turquoises, and, what is most remarkable, broken glass. Coffins of some undecaying wood or material are there also, within which beautifully preserved embalmed bodies are found. The male mummies are all enormously tall, powerfully built men, with long, wavy hair. A vault was found with twelve dead men sitting in it. Another time in a separate coffin a young girl was found by us. Her eyes were closed with golden disks and the jaws held firm by a golden circlet running from under the chin across the top of the head. Clad in a narrow woolen garment, her bosom was covered with golden stars, her feet being left naked. To this the lecturer adds that all along the way on the River Tchertchen they heard legends about twenty-three towns buried years ago by the sands of the desert. The same tradition exists on the Lob-nor and in the oasis of Kerva.

Mme. Blavatsky, who was in the earlier part of her life a great and indefatigable traveler, covering more ground in a given time than is usually accomplished by even those of the sterner and more enduring sex, bears witness also to those ancient ruins, which she openly avers are prehistoric; the pages of her works also make frequent reference to other ruins of ancient character scattered throughout the desert regions of Central Asia. She hints, too, at buried crypts and underground vaults in the desert of Gobi, in particular, in which are stored many of the preserved records of the ages. However this may be, the ruins described are certainly in place awaiting the organized efforts of science to recover for the world a long-forgotten page in the history of the peoples of the globe. Or, as in the case of Troy, private enterprise may step in and, continuing the investigations begun by the Russian traveler, read this riddle of a bygone civilization a right.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten-fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

A Little Mixed.

Mr. Lamson was one of the most respected and beloved citizens of the New England town in which he lived, and held many positions of trust, giving satisfaction in all of them; but it was universally conceded that speech making was not his strong point.

As superintendent of the Sunday school he frequently had to give out notices. When these were written they caused him no trouble, but when they were what he called "extemporary," their delivery was fraught with difficulties.

"I should wish to announce," he said, on one occasion, "that our regular monthly meeting will be held once a fortnight during—I would say that our monthly meeting will be held twice as often as usual this—What I mean is," said poor Mr. Lamson, in a cold perspiration, "that our regular monthly meeting are to be kept up this winter at the rate of one every two weeks—an' that's as high as I can come to what I want to say!"—Youth's Companion.
