APRIL ANNOTATIONS.

Leaves From the Notebook of Chronicle Reporters.

Beneath a fair exterior A rascal often lurks: It is true of men and water-holes— You may tell them by their works.

The town of Grant is to be incorporated.

If the present sunshine continues, the street sprinkler will commence laying dust about the 1st of the month.

Mr. Sigman of 15-Mile brought in a fine lot of beef cattle to the Saltmarsh & Co. stockyards today. They will be shipped to Cascade Locks.

'Bread on the Waters'. Friday night at the new opera house. Admission, 10 and 25 cents. Tickets for sale at Snipes & Kinerly's and Blakeley & Houghton's drug stores.

Judge James A. Fee, the present incumbent and nominee of the republican party for judge of the Sixth judicial district, was endorsed by the state democratic convention.

The salmon catch has improved slightly in the last two or three days. Very few Chinooks are being caught and the catch is about evenly divided between steelheads and salmon trout.

The California contingent of the industrial army reached Portland today. They will take the Northern Pacific to Seattle, and will not, as supposed, probably, pass through The Dalles.

Mr. J. W. Condon has a typewriter, just received from the East, of the Dougherty patent, which is about as near perfection as a machine of this nature can be made, and is very handsome as well.

It is reported that while Sheriff T. A. Ward was in Portland, many of the delegates to the state convention, with himself, were eating dinner at one of the hotels after the convention. The waiters took the several orders, and when one of them came to Ward, he said: 'Just give me a democratic dinner.' Soup was the first course, and after it was disposed of he noticed his neighbors all around him eating the various meats and vegetables, but nothing further was brought to him. Finally he said: 'Walter, I ordered dinner ten minutes ago. Why don't it come?' 'You have had it, sir,' he replied, 'you ordered a democratic dinner. Will you have some more soup.'

Next Wednesday night, April 25th, will be witnessed the production of 'Si Perkins' by the unimitable Burton-Coleman company. This company has won great praise from the press and people all along the route. Their orchestra, directed by Prof. S. V. Downs, is composed of twelve skillful musicians. It is the strongest ever presented to the public by a traveling company. One of the most necessary features for a first-class performance is the best of music rendered in an artistic manner—especially is this so in 'Si Perkins,' running over with songs, dances, catchy music, where a good orchestra is absolutely necessary. Be sure and see the street parade at noon, you will enjoy it. Admission 50 cents and $1.00. Seats on sale at Blakeley & Houghton's drug store.

Death of Mrs. Williams.

Mrs. Kate Ann Williams, wife of ex-United States Attorney-General George H. Williams, died at her residence on Eighteenth and Conch streets, Portland, shortly before 10 o'clock yesterday morning, aged 61 years, 6 months and 14 days. Mrs. Williams was born in Shepardtown, Va., on October 4, 1832, says the Oregonian. She moved to the West with her parents early in life, and twenty-six years ago was united in marriage to Judge Williams. They moved to Washington where Judge Williams was elected to the United States senate and remained there until after the expiration of his term as senator and as attorney-general, to which office he was appointed by President Grant. Mrs. Williams was a leader in Washington social circles, but after her return to Portland she withdrew entirely from society and devoted herself to the study of the Bible, which pursuit she continued until shortly before her death. The funeral was private and took place from Mrs. Williams' late residence at 2:30 p. m. today.

Republican Rally.

Hon. J. F. Caples, of Portland, will address the voters of Wasco county on Saturday evening, at 8 o'clock, at the new opera house. Mr. Caples is one of the foremost orators of the state, and will ably expound the principles of republicanism. Excellent music will be furnished by The Dalles Orchestra Union.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria. When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria. When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria. When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

Notice.

To All Whom It May Concern: Notice is hereby given that the common council of Dalles City will receive sealed bids for the repairing of the city jail at the next regular meeting, to-wit: April 3d, 1894, at 7:30 o'clock p. m. Said repairs to be made in accordance with the plans and specifications thereof heretofore prepared by C. J. Crandall.

No bid will be received unless the same is accompanied by a good and proper bond in the sum of one hundred dollars, conditioned that the bidder will accept the contract in case the same is awarded to him.

The right to reject any and all bids is hereby reserved. Dated at Dalles City, Or., this 28th day of March, 1894.

DOUGLAS S. DUBUR, Recorder of Dalles City.

THEY SURRENDERED.

Four Boys Start to See the World and Get To Cello.

Four boys of industrial army propensities, Bob Murray, Charley Heppner, John Jacobsen and Theo. Nickelsen, left on foot for the East yesterday, but at Cello were overtaken, captured and brought back the same evening, without a shot being fired, by some older brothers. They were surprised in ambush, their retreat cut off, and they were compelled to surrender unconditionally. They consequently struck their colors and returned to camp. On leaving this city they bade good bye to their playfellows, saying when they came back they would have seen four-story brick buildings, and would wear whiskers, but when they returned a few hours later, they were weary and footsore, the bright air castles they had built vanished in thin air, and they soon betook themselves to bed and the land of dreams, perchance to enjoy the sights and experiences not vouchsafed to them in real life. 'Twas ever thus.'

Rocky Second Street.

Second street is impassible for heavy teams. A few weeks since the street was very muddy and there were several deep ruts in the road, but the bottom of the rut was not quite hub deep and the wagon could be pulled out of it. Country teamsters now declare there is no bottom to the road and are constantly complaining about the hard pulling and the horse's feet, and that it is likely to continue so the year round. Second street is therefore a nuisance, and should be abated. There are several plans by which this might be done. A barb wire fence across the road at the top of the brewery hill grade, a 6-wire fence, fastened with strong staples, and an officer on each side of the road, would prevent teams coming down this grade and thence on to the street. Another plan would be to make the proposed new road known as the Elton grade, leading from the hill to Fourth street. This would avoid Second street altogether and either Third or Fourth street could be used. The third plan and perhaps the best of all, is for the city council to order the obnoxious rock all off the street. This would make a good street for six months in the year, and during the wool and wheat hauling season. For the remaining six months teamsters would prefer mud and chuck holes to the great coarse, sharp-edged rock, ordered by the committee on streets, which jump and slide this way and that as the wheels pass through them, laming the horse's feet and furnishing a footing a mountain goat would evade.

THE HOTTEST DESERT.

It Is the Cocapah and Is Too Sultry for Human Existence.

'It is not generally known that the hottest, most arid desert in the world is in the United States, but such is the fact,' said a resident of San Diego, to a representative of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. 'The Cocapah desert is small; but it is the most dangerous of any in the known world.'

'Standing upon the mountain range to the east, looking across the sixty miles of plain to another mountain range on the west, with glimpses of two small lakes midway between, it does not appear that it requires any extraordinary feat of danger or endurance to cross the plain. And this has caused the loss of many lives. The sand of that desert is so hot that in a few miles the shoes will be literally burned off the traveler's feet, beasts will be overcome before half the distance is encompassed, and the adventurous traveler dies in agony, literally consumed with heat from without and thirst within.'

'Many have been known to attempt the journey, and but few have been known to return. These have gone no further than the first lake, and, finding it salt water, have beaten a retreat. The nearest lake has been reached often enough to know that it ebbs and flows with the Gulf of California and the water is the same, hence it must be a part of that body, although separated from it by sixty or seventy miles of solid earth and a high range of mountains.'

'This range was probably at one time an island and the Cocapah desert the bottom of the sea. I once started across the barren waste to investigate, but I had not gone ten miles before becoming completely exhausted, the soles of my feet were blistered with heat, my brain grew dizzy, I could get no air and the breath seemed to stop in my throat.'

'I turned back just in time to save my life, and when I reached the forests of the mountain once more I was delirious for hours.'
