A RIDE ON A WHALE.

The Stirring and Venacious Yarn of a Man from North Carolina.

Capt. Jim Willis, who hails from Morehead City, N. C., where he runs pleasure craft for the accommodation of northern conscriptives, had an experience with a whale that came near making a Jonah of him. In his own story, as given to a Washington Star reporter, he says: "One sunny afternoon, not very long ago, I was sitting in the shade of my own fig tree and swinging in my own grapevine swing. A party of my fisher friends who lived farther up the beach, came running by, and as they passed me they sang out: 'There she blows!' This cry woke me up. I saw a jet of water spurted upward from the sea, and down to the pier I rushed. There wasn't a real whaleboat in the town, but four ordinary fishing boats were manned by as many crews. One carried the harpoon gun and one the hand-hurling apparatus. The other two were without any armament excepting several shot-guns and one or two rifles. We rowed off so as to come at the game from different points of the compass. I was in the gunboat. As we approached the whale it was seen that he was a large and fat one. He took no notice of our coming. When we got within about one hundred feet of the monster the harpoon gun was fired, and the barbed weapon took effect just behind the head and pretty well up on the back. This was painful, but not necessarily a fatal shot. The other boats turned themselves loose and made some insertions in the fish.

"Instead of going under, as wounded whales do, he remained on top to fight it out. He swished his tail and turned the sea into suds and made such a swell that the good people of Alexandria would not have permitted him to pass their port without slowing down. He plunged headlong against one of the boats and stove it so that it would hardly float. Its occupants were knocked overboard. There was a good deal of excitement. The sea round about us was boiling, the whale was red-hot with rage, the men were shouting and the guns were popping. The fish next hurled himself against the boat in which I was, and it yielded to his wishes and got smashed. It was raised a considerable distance in the air, and when it came down I was on that whale's back, just abaft his head, and holding on to that harpoon with both hands. The line which had connected the harpoon and the boat had parted, and about two hundred feet of manilla hawser squirmed and wriggled snake-like around in the seething sea. The whale didn't seem to observe my attitude and continued his attention upon the two remaining boats. There wasn't any time to think of this. The hand harpoon had been shoved into the right place and the whale was blowing his last. A column of blood was being squirted skyward and the scarlet flood fell over me, dyeing me a gory hue. A few feeble swashes of the tail and a keeling motion as though he was going to lie on his side announced that the fish was dead. Our catch was lashed alongside the pier and the next day we went to work at his carcass. The fish was sixty-two feet three and three-fourths inches long, and the proceeds from the sale of his oil, bone and other valuables were three thousand five hundred dollars."

WHITE HORSES AND LUCK.

Many Persons Think It Brings Ill Fortune to Ride Behind Such Animals.

"The car behind me will carry three or four more passengers than I will," said a Fourth avenue street car driver to a New York Herald man the other day, as I stood on the front platform on a down-town trip. We had just passed two young women who were standing on a corner and were evidently waiting for a car.

"They'll take the next car," the driver continued, "and between here and the city hall I'll pass one or two more who won't get on this car." "What's the matter?" I asked. "Do they know the conductor and do not like to ride on his car, or what is it?" "Why, it's the horses," was the answer. "Don't you see these nags are white? There are lots and lots of people in this town who wouldn't be hired to ride behind a white horse. They think it's bad luck, and no matter how big a hurry they are in they'll always wait for a car that isn't drawn by white horses."

I said something about "superstition" and the foolishness of persons who stopped to think about the color of a horse when the driver interrupted me.

"I'm not so sure about that," he exclaimed. "I've been running a car more than ten years and never had many accidents, but whatever bad luck I have had has been when I was driving white horses. I know a dozen drivers who don't like to get behind such a team as this, and every one of them has good reason for it, too. There's lots of gamblers and men who bet on horse races who are like those two women—you couldn't make them ride behind white horses when they are going to the races."

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury.

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten-fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free. Sold by druggists, price 75c. per bottle.

A Friend of the Farmer.

The ladybird, to which so many generations of children have addressed the familiar rhyming admonition, is a most valuable insect destroyer and has the freedom of well-conducted greenhouses. It is the special enemy of the little green aphid that destroys tender plants, and the ladybird is always seen upon rose bushes in summer time, because the aphid especially attacks the rose. Every such insectivorous insect as the ladybird is welcomed by those who struggle with the ever-increasing swarm of creatures that attack vegetation.

Those who never read the advertisements in their newspapers miss more than they presume. Jonathan Kenison, of Bolan, Worth Co., Iowa, who had been troubled with rheumatism in his back, arms and shoulders read an item in his paper about how a prominent German citizen of Fort Maddison had been cured. He procured the same medicine, and to use his own words: "It cured me right up." He also says a neighbor and his wife were both sick in bed with rheumatism. Their boy was over to my house and said they were so bad he had to do the cooking. I told him of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and how it had cured me, he got a bottle and it cured them up in a week. 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakely & Houghton, druggists.
