THE COUNTY TICKET.

The county ticket presented to the voters of Wasco county comprises some of the very best men to be found in their respective precincts. All of them stand for republican principles and have full courage of their convictions.

The ticket is headed by Thos. J. Driver of Wamic for sheriff. His name is synonymous for integrity and honor. The longer one knows Mr. Driver the better they like him. He is what is called in western parlance, "a square man," meaning that he is thoroughly upright and honorable, a true friend and a good neighbor. For the characteristics of bravery, caution and cool-headedness, demanded of an official in this capacity, Mr. Driver has no superior in the county.

For county clerk, the convention wisely selected Mr. A. M. Kelsay of The Dalles. This young man has not been in our community more than a year, but is an old resident of the county, having previously lived at Antelope, where he is universally liked. His nomination pleased that community to a unit, without regard to political predilection. Mr. Kelsay represents the younger men of the party and is a valiant worker for republican principles. He is believed to be one of the strongest men on the ticket.

Mr. Troy Shelley, for superintendent of public schools, has served in that capacity for four years, already, and owing to his successful and well-known stewardship of these interests, does not require any extended mention at our hands.

For county assessor, is presented Mr. F. H. Wakefield of The Dalles. Mr. Wakefield will make a good official. He is intelligent, wide-awake and alert, and possesses just the qualities which are desired to make a successful assessor. His nomination pleases the entire party. He is an old resident and farmer.

For county treasurer the name of Wm. Michell will appeal to a large majority of the citizens of the county, irrespective of party. He possesses the rugged principles of the Puritan, and in a residence of upwards of thirty years, no one can point to a single act, private or public, which would deviate from the straight path of rectitude. His selection to this office is peculiarly appropriate.

For county commissioner the convention have gone further into the ranks of experience and selected a man who because of leaving for Oregon was compelled to resign a like office in Ottertail county, Minn., a position he had held for three consecutive terms. He is now engaged in storekeeping and farming in Hood River, Oregon. He is an army veteran, having enlisted at the age of 15 years in the Second Minnesota cavalry. He will make a valuable commissioner.

The only question that could be raised over the selection of Mr. W. H. Butts for coroner, is that he has such a jovial expression of countenance, where a long-drawn visage would seem to be more fitting. Mr. Butts' face is the perpetual fount of good humor, the inspiration of peace with the world and all mankind. However, at the rare intervals when his services would be demanded, his features would probably assume that thoughtful expression which is given them when he pulls down his specs over his nose and gives himself over to philosophic reflection, for Mr. Butts is a philosopher and reasoner, as well.

Mr. E. F. Sharp, the candidate for surveyor, will poll a large vote. He is a young man of pleasing manner, capable and efficient, and counts his friends upon every hand.

The county ticket, in its entirety, is as good a one as was ever presented to the voters of Wasco county for their consideration. No objection can be seriously urged against any one of them, and this year, more than all others, it is desirable to obtain as large a republican majority as possible.

Cheap orators, in the endeavor for dramatic effect, sometimes make asses of themselves. When Mr. Ed Kilfeather seconded General Compton's nomination for governor in the democratic state convention, he said: "We want a man who bled for his country, aye an' who died for his country!" This rather remarkable statement created consternation for a few moments.

SIR THOMAS MORE was afflicted with a wife who scolded him day by day with great energy and ability. Even when he was in prison and awaiting execution she berated him for not yielding to the king's wishes and thus securing his liberty.
