WHERE DIVORCE IS EASY.

No Absence from Business Need to Get One Among the Santals. I never realized how simple marriage and divorce could be until reading in my Daily Graphic the other day a letter from its lady commissioner on the customs of the Santals—one of the aboriginal tribes of India.

Permission to wed must be obtained from the circle headman. A price (usually three rupees), with a new sari each to her mother and grandmothers, is paid for a bride, but for a widow only half that sum, the argument being that a widow will have to be returned to her first husband in the next world.

How cheap divorce would be if this were the custom here! But what would the lawyers do then, poor things?

them anything was very foolish indeed. They should have known that such an act was the speediest and surest way of getting into the clutches of the law, and besides they had the benefit of the experience of the Butte army for an example.

Oregon is the only state so far which has treated the commonwealth in a practical common-sense manner. They will be disbanded and absorbed and all willing to work will find it. Oregon furnishes a lesson to the nation by her action. If every state would do the same way this insane movement would have a rational ending, and Coxey the Crank be temporarily without a vocation.

This is no year for scratching. Every republican should vote the straight ticket from top to bottom. If even the justice of the peace is elected it qualifies the opinion of the voters to a certain extent as to the great issues of this year. We want the sentiment to be unanimous and so plainly spoken that it cannot be misread. If it cannot be said "as Wasco county goes so goes the nation," let it at least be said, "as the nation goes, so goes Wasco county."

Concerning the statement that Judge Galloway, when he took office as county judge in Yamhill, found the county in debt $55,000, which debt he has paid off, the Yamhill Reporter says the facts are about these, viz: "When he took the office the county was practically out of debt, notwithstanding that during the term of his predecessor an $80,000 court house had been built and a great many improvements made. By the middle of Galloway's term the county had become pretty near bankrupt, and it required the monstrous levy of 26 mills to bring it out. The county is nearly out of debt at present, but it is in spite of rather than through any effort or capability on the part of the democratic nominee for governor. Judge Galloway is a good, kind-hearted and honorable citizen, but unless the office of governor is less intricate than county judge he had better not be permitted to tangle it."

SOME WONDERFUL THINGS.

A Grammar Schoolboy's Simple Account of His Anatomy. "Martin," said a wise grammar-school boy to his little brother of six, "come here and tell me what you have inside of you."

"Nothing," said Martin. "Yes, you have. Listen! You've got a whole telegraph stowed away in your body, with wires running down to your very toes and out to your finger tips."

"I haven't," said Martin, looking at his feet and hands. "You have, through, and that isn't all. There's a big force pump in the middle of you, pumping, pumping, seventy times a minute, all day long, like the great engine I showed you the other day at the locomotive works."

"There is no such thing—" "But there is, though; and besides all these things, a tree is growing in you, with over two hundred different branches, tied together with over so many bands and tough strings."

"That isn't so at all," persisted the little boy about ready to cry. "I can feel myself all over, and there's no tree or engine, or anything else, except flesh and blood."

"Oh! that isn't flesh and blood; that's most of it water. That is what you are made of—a few gallons of water, a little lime, phosphorus, salt and some other things thrown in," said his brother.—Union Signal.

A price (usually three rupees), with a new sari each to her mother and grandmothers, is paid for a bride, but for a widow only half that sum, the argument being that a widow will have to be returned to her first husband in the next world. These formalities I presume are dispensed with in the case of a "Bazaar marriage," which is, however, equally binding.

The young man watches his opportunity, dips his finger in red paint or earth, and when the girl is out walking or shopping makes a mark upon her brow. If the girl declines to live with him she is compelled to obtain a divorce—a much more simple ceremony than that gone through before Sir Francis Jeune, says the Gentlewoman. The pair upset a jar of water and tear in half three leaves of the sa'l tree in the presence of their neighbors, saying as they do so: "Now become we to one another even as brother and sister."

AN ARTFUL DODGER.

The Loon's Immediateness in Getting Under Cover. Every treatise upon loons dwells admiringly upon their wonderful powers of self-protection, says a writer in the Boston Transcript. There is no denying that all loons ever hatched up to date have been "artful dodgers" in superlative degree. The question is often raised whether they are quick enough to dodge a bullet. I once had a guide who drew a distinction quite too fine, as I thought. He claimed that a loon could see the flash of a percussion cap at the breach of a muzzle-loading piece, and could dodge, but admitted that with the rifle loaded like all modern ones, at the breech, no loon could escape a shot rightly aimed. For my part, I do not believe the interval of time between the fire at the two ends of the barrel to be measurable by eyes of birds or men, or anything short of a chronograph. As to the question, however, it is possible to reason with tolerable confidence. We know the speed of a rifle bullet. Call it fourteen hundred feet a second. Imagine your loon at that distance, or nearer. Then reflect how slowly a bird's head must move to use up more than a second in dropping a few inches under water. Gravity alone would carry it further than that. It is easy to believe that if the wary bird happens to be looking toward the hunter, the rifle flash suggests danger. A half second would give ample time to dodge, provided the action begin promptly. It is safe to say that it takes a loon's weight in lead to kill him, and we may well be satisfied that if a loon does not dodge a bullet, at least the lead goes down in the same hole in the water.

Most persons will be surprised to learn that a needle in the course of its manufacture and before placed on the market for sale passes through the hands of from eighty to one hundred and twenty people. Eleven complete processes, each involving several minor operations, are necessary before a sewing needle is fit for sale.

ONE of the largest, if not the largest, monoliths ever cut in this country, a granite column, 413 feet long, 6 1/2 feet in diameter and weighing 93 tons, has been successfully transported from Stony Creek, Conn., to West Point, N. Y. It is intended for the battle monument at the latter place.

The way she looks troubles the woman who is delicate, run-down or overworked. She's hollow-cheeked, dull-eyed, thin and pale, and it worries her. Now, the way to look well is to be well. And the way to be well, if you're any such woman, is to faithfully use Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. That is the only medicine that's guaranteed to build up woman's strength and to cure woman's ailments. In every "female complaint," irregularity, or weakness, and in every exhausted condition of the female system—if it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.
