CHLOROFORM IN ITS EARLY DAYS The Curiosity of an Undergraduate in 1851 Was Amply Repuid. Your notice of the discovery of ehloroform in 1847 recalls a curious experience in my Cambridge undergraduate life, says H. C. M. in the London News. One evening in January, 1851, I went to a chemist's shop and ordered some photographic chemicals to be sent to my rooms hard by; I was lodging on the parade. Seeing an ounce bottle of chloroform on the counter I bought it out of enriosity and took it away with me, leaving the chemicals to follow. In my own rooms, sented in an armchair. I put four drops on my handker-chief, and, carefully placing the bottle on the table at some distance from me, I sniffed the handkerchief. A pleasant sensation and a singing in my ears was the only result. So, shortly afterward. I counted out eight drops and acted as before.

The next thing I remember is finding myself on the floor on my back, my dress undone, my face, etc., dripping with cold water and hearing a voice: "He's coming to. 1 do believe." Yes, it was so. I came to after having been unconscious two hours and a half. Next day my doctor, when out with the foxhounds, was greeted with: the blood, like Consumption, for "Hullo, doctor. So you raised a man Scrofula in all its forms, Weak from the dead last night." "You Lungs, Bronchitis, Asthma, and all may well say that," was the reply, "for I had given up all hopes" I was very puzzled to account for the effect of my carefully-measured dose. All I could gather from the servant was that she had brought me up a parcel from the chemist, and, seeing me asleep, tried to wake me. Then, "finding I was dead," she ran down into the shop, calling out: "Mr. M-- is dend." Two Trinity men were in the shop. One went on to the six p. m. chapel, telling everyone of my sudden death; the other, after a glance at me, kindly called in Dr. C-

Some time afterward the mystery was cleared up. The "slavey" gave warning, and the day she left she made the following confession: "You remember that night you was nearly dead, sir. Well, you know, sir, I thought you had fainted, and I see the bottle on the table and I thought it was salts, so I took out the stopper and held it to your nose, but as it didn't do no good 1 poured a lot of it out into my hand and rubbed it all over your nose and month." I told the dactor the story. He replied: "Welt, my dear fellow, all I can say is this: If ever you have to undergo an operation you can tell your family doctor that you can take chloroform." Thank God, that necessity has never arisen.

Herbert Spencer is a great philoso-pher, a laborious student and a writer of many books; but with all his mental activity, he has not permitted his body to indulge itself in the activity by which its organs and structure might have been kept in a healthy condition. The philosopher has "all knowledge," except that "health is the vital princi ple of bliss, and exercise of health." A traveler recently told a friend of the Ontlook an anecdote of Mr. Spencer, which exhibits him as paying the inevitable penalty of neglecting the laws of physical health:

A GREAT MISTAKE.

Herbert Spencer's Disregard for the Laws of Health.

It seems he is a special friend of Grant Allen, to whose home he recently went as a guest, but, being in fragile health, Mr. Spencer said that he could not endure the noise of many persons talking together; so he begged to have his meals in the room adjoining the dining-room. Yet his social instinct prompted him to ask that the door between the two rooms be left open.

It should be said that Mr. Spencer has invented a pair of iron clappers which he shuts over his ears when the sounds of life become too oppressive for endurance. As the family were talking and laughing in the dining-room, Mr. Spencer could not endure the strain. and called out to them they were "too hilarious.'

The next day they subdued their voices to the lowest pitch, and he complained that they were "not company enough." They then went out to drive, and the talk became so lively that, with a snap, he drew his iron ear caps to their places and sank back well-nigh exhausted.

ITS TERRITORY. It is the supply city for an extensive and rich agricultural and grazing country, its trade reaching as far south as Summer Lake, a distance of over two hundred miles.

The Largest Wool Market.

The rich grazing country along the eastern slope of the Cascades furnishes pasture for thousands of sheep, the wool from which finds market here.

The Dalles is the largest original wool shipping point in America, about 5,000,000 pounds being shipped last year.

ITS PRODUCTS.

The salmon fisheries are the finest on the Columbia, yielding this year a revenue of thousands of dollars, which will be more than doubled in the near future.

The products of the beautiful Klickitat valley find market here, and the country south and east has this year filled the warehouses, and all available storage places to overflowing with their products.

ITS WEALTH.

It is the richest city of its size on the coast and its money is scattered over and is being used to develop more farming country than is tributary to any other city in Eastern Oregon.

Its situation is unsurpassed. Its climate delightful. Its possibilities incalculable. Its resources unlimited. And on these orner stones she stands
