

SOMETHING TO REMEMBER.
If you're a weak or ailing woman—that there's only one medicine so sure to help you that it can be guaranteed. It's Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. In building up overworked, feeble, delicate women, or in any "female complaint" or weakness, if it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back. It's an invigorating, restorative tonic, a soothing and strengthening nerve, and a safe and certain remedy for woman's ills and ailments. It regulates and promotes all the proper functions, improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, brings refreshing sleep, and restores health and strength.

In all the chronic weaknesses and disorders that afflict women, it is guaranteed to benefit or cure, or the money is refunded.

Nothing else can be as cheap. With this, you pay only for the good you get.

GEORGE HOLLAND'S JOKE.

How the Great Comedian Once Upon a Time Hooked a Policeman.

From "The Autobiography of Joseph Jefferson," in the Century, we quote as follows: "George Holland was distinctly a actor of the old school, invariably imitating even into modern character its traditions and conventionalities; his effects were broadly given, and his personality was essentially comic. He was quite an old man when I first knew him, and I had serious doubts as to whether our acquaintance in the theater would be an agreeable one; for by the terms of my engagement I was to hold a leading part as the comedian of the company, and he, who had always occupied that station, was placed as second to me. I naturally thought that feeling himself comparatively subordinate, and that I, a younger man, was to outrank him, he would, by his manner at least, resent my intrusion upon his former ground. I was, however, agreeably mistaken; for I found him too generous a man to harbor any jealous feelings, and to my gratification we were friends from our first meeting. It is pleasant also to know that this relationship extended over many years, and up to the day of his death.

"The useful career and unblemished character of George Holland will be recalled by all who knew him. He lived, a bright and cheerful spirit, in this world for eighty years, for time could not age his youthful heart. He was the merriest man I ever knew. Practical joking was a passion with him, and though his pranks were numerous, by some good fortune they always ended innocently and with harmless mirth. I remember that on one occasion, when some goldfish had been placed in the ornamental fountain in Union Square, Holland dressed himself in a full sporting suit, and with a fish-basket strapped upon his shoulder, a broad-brimmed hat upon his head and a rod in his hand, he unfolded a camp-stool, and quietly seating himself in front of the fountain began to fish, with such a patient and earnest look in his face that no one could have supposed that it was intended as a practical joke. This strange spectacle soon attracted a curious crowd about the sportsman, who with a vacant and idiotic smile sat there quietly awaiting a nibble. A policeman soon forced his way through the crowd and arrested Holland, who explained with a bewildered look that he was fishing in his own private grounds. The policeman naturally concluded that the intruder was some harmless lunatic, and patting him kindly on the shoulder bade him go home to his friends. Holland burst into a flood of tears, and while affectionately embracing the guardian of the law contrived to fasten the fish-hook into the collar of the policeman's coat, who walked slowly and sympathetically away, unconsciously dragging the line and rod after him. The crowd, seeing the joke, roared with laughter, as Holland quickly made his way to the nearest omnibus, which he reached before the infuriated policeman could catch him."

AN ODD STEAMBOAT.

How an Ingenious Negro Built One Out of Odds and Ends.

Some amusing descriptions have been written about the home-made steamboat that plies on the St. Paul river, Liberia, but very little has been said of the mechanical genius who knocked the boat together out of material that was never intended for a steamboat.

His name is Irons and he used to be a slave in South Carolina. While ago he made up his mind that it was high time there was a steamboat plying on the St. Paul river between Monrovia and the first rapids. He secured the engine of an abandoned sugar-cane crusher, and went to work to build his steamer. He took a canoe fifty feet long and ripped it from stem to stern with a saw. He placed the halves of the footpart, ribbed and planked them, and before long the hull was ready for the machinery. Hardly any two pieces of the machinery were ever together before. He had to make a score of things before he could induce that engine to turn a paddle-wheel. He spiked up bits of iron shafting and so on here and there, and with the aid of a blacksmith shop knocked them into shape so that they would work smoothly together. He made a pair of paddle-wheels, built a deck-house, secured an old steam-whistle, fitted up a rudder-wheel, launched his creation and was ready for business.

This man was once an illiterate slave on a cotton plantation, but inventive talent was born in him. His side-wheel steamer is not conspicuous for speed or beauty, but she is serviceable, and is noteworthy as the first steamboat ever built in Africa and probably the first that was ever built out of picked-up material. One of Liberia's disadvantages is the fact that the former slaves who compose her citizens are most of them poor, not only in purse, but also in intellectual equipment. But she has her men of mark like Dr. Blyden, who would be respected anywhere for their attainments and ability; and she has reason to be proud of such a man as Irons, who was known for his remarkable inventive and mechanical talent long before he built Liberia's first steamboat.

Insurance Against Banks.

A company has been established to guarantee depositors in National, State and savings banks and trust companies against loss by reason of the suspension or failure of such institutions in which those guaranteed may have their deposits. In case of the suspension or failure of such an institution in which the party guaranteed has money on deposit, the company, upon receiving evidence of the fact and a transfer of the claim with power of attorney to collect, pays the full amount due the guaranteed by the insolvent institution. The rates are as follows: For any amount not exceeding $500 $1 per year; for any amount not exceeding $500, $1.50 per year; for any amount not exceeding $1,000, $2.50 per year, and $2.50 for every additional $1,000 guaranteed. It is a New Jersey institution and has been incorporated one year.

A DRINK OF TURPENTINE.

The Mistake Which Made a Lawyer Out of a Store Clerk.

"It is remarkable what little incidents will change the course of a man's life," said the veteran lawyer, Joseph A. Bonham, the other day, while in a reminiscent mood, to a Philadelphia Call reporter. "Now, if it had not been for a little mistake I should probably have been a country storekeeper instead of a lawyer."

"How was that?" inquired the listener.

"Well, when I was a young fellow," said the lawyer, "my father placed me with Andrew Provost, an old French merchant, at Frenchtown, N. J., to learn the business. Provost kept a little of everything in the store, which was in charge of John Jones, who now keeps a store of his own somewhere in Jersey. I hadn't been there long when one day an old farmer came in with a half-gallon jug after gin. Jones sent me down the cellar with the old farmer to draw it. As I was not familiar with the numerous barrels in the cellar and didn't know much about gin, I concluded to let the farmer try a drink from the different barrels until he struck the right one. This pleased him. He took the tumbler and turned the spigot of the first barrel. 'Struck it first time,' said he, as he straightened up and drank. Then he threw himself down on the cellar floor and yelled like a fiend. He had struck the turpentine barrel. They took him over to the doctor to have him pumped out, while I, thinking the farmer was a dead man sure, ran up to the Provost mansion and hid in my room. I lay low all night till four o'clock in the morning, when I skipped out and drove to the turnpike, where I knew the stage was coming along at that early hour. I got to Philadelphia by easy stages and soon afterward found out that the farmer who drank the turpentine was still alive. I entered Theodore Cuyler's office and studied law. If it had not been for that turpentine I might have been a Jerseyman yet."

WOMEN ON DUTCH RAILWAYS.

Long Hours and Small Pay for Doing Comparatively Light Work.

The British consul at The Hague says that, as regards the employment of women and children on railways, it is stated that the latter are mostly made use of at the several railway works, their parents being glad of the one or two florins they are able to earn for comparatively light work. They are occasionally put to similar work on the permanent way, being paid at the rate of 75 or 80 cents. The women are chiefly employed in cleaning the carriages, working on an average eight hours a day on the state railway, with light work on alternate Sundays, and getting 14 florins 25 cents wages per fortnight; on the Holland railway ten hours a day without Sunday work, with a daily wage of 1 florin 30 cents, or else watching the lines, turn about with their husbands, the "wegwachters" or cantonniers. On the state railway their work averages twelve hours (the men taking the night duty) and they are paid at the rate of 35 cents a day, being lodged besides; the husbands earning 90 cents a day. On the Holland railway the average hours of work are about the same, the woman receiving pay at the rate of 55 cents a day, 1 florin 65 cents a week being, however, deducted for the lodging allowed them.

For women with families the work is considered trying, especially when they are kept on duty as long as sixteen hours, as is the case at certain points, where the traffic happens to be very heavy. As regards the general conditions under which the persons in the employ of the great Dutch railway companies carry on their work, the testimony of the numerous witnesses examined by the commission, with a few exceptions, went to show that they are well satisfied both as to the wages they receive and as to the treatment awarded them. One witness was of the opinion that the wages of railway servants compared favorably with those of most factory hands.

A Painful Experience.

A bashful and youthful bridal couple from the rural districts had a painful experience at Danbury circus day, says the New Haven Register. The young husband wrote his own name and his wife's on separate lines of the hotel register and the purblind clerk assigned them to separate rooms. Each waited for the other to set the matter straight, but it was only after a terribly lonesome hour that the bride plucked up courage and her marriage certificate and descended to interview the clerk. She held out the document mutely and the situation at last dawned upon him. The banished benedict was summoned from his seclusion and the curtain fell amid profuse apologies.

The First Shavers.

Unlike the Romans of the latter age the Egyptians did not confine the privilege of shaving to free citizens, but obliged their slaves to shave both face and head. The datum is not exactly as authentic as one would like to have it, but it is believed that the custom of shaving the beard was introduced in Rome in the year 300 B. C. According to Pliny, Scipio Africanus was the first Roman who shaved daily.

Persons who sympathize with the afflicted will rejoice with D. E. Carr of 1235 Harrison street, Kansas City. He is an old sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism, but has not heretofore been troubled in this climate. Last winter he went up into Wisconsin, and in consequence has had another attack. "It came upon me very acute and severe," he said. "My joints swelled and became inflamed; sore to touch or almost to look at. Upon the urgent request of my mother-in-law I tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm to reduce the swelling and ease the pain, and to my agreeable surprise, it did both. I have used three fifty-cent bottles and believe it to be the finest thing for rheumatism, pains and swellings extant. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton, druggists.

THE DALLES

Wasco County, Oregon,

The Gate City of the Inland Empire is situated at the head of navigation on the Middle Columbia, and is a thriving, prosperous city.

ITS TERRITORY.

It is the supply city for an extensive and rich agricultural and grazing country, its trade reaching as far south as Summer Lake, a distance of over two hundred miles.

The Largest Wool Market.

The rich grazing country along the eastern slope of the Cascades furnishes pasture for thousands of sheep, the wool from which finds market here.

The Dalles is the largest original wool shipping point in America, about 5,000,000 pounds being shipped last year.

ITS PRODUCTS.

The salmon fisheries are the finest on the Columbia, yielding this year a revenue of thousands of dollars, which will be more than doubled in the near future.

The products of the beautiful Klickitat valley find market here, and the country south and east has this year filled the warehouses, and all available storage places to overflowing with their products.

ITS WEALTH.

It is the richest city of its size on the coast and its money is scattered over and is being used to develop more farming country than is tributary to any other city in Eastern Oregon.

Its situation is unsurpassed. Its climate delightful. Its possibilities incalculable. Its resources unlimited. And on these other stones she stands.
