A CONGRESSMAN'S LIFE.

It Is Not Altogether a Blissful Existence.

Some of the Annoyances with Which the Average Statesman Has to Contend - Beset on Every Hand by Public Demands.

Most days of the average member of the house are repetitions each of the other. A review of the twenty-four hours made by a member before closing his eyes for a night's rest puts him to sleep with the thought that the lot of a legislator is not always a happy one, and that statesmanship is the least of things that enter into his day's toil.

"A gentleman from the agricultural department requests me to accompany him to my home, where he is to deliver a lecture to some of my constituents. Another wants the Congressional Record sent to him. An applicant for pension wants to know where his papers are. One of my constituents writes for me to secure him a place in the government department. Another wants the report of the bureau of animal industry. Another wants his pension matter looked up, but does not give the number of his case. Another wants a position in the government printing office. In another letter the gentleman gives an account of trouble he is having over the execution of duties from him for goods brought to the custom house. This requires investigation at the customs division, treasury department, and an examination of the law, which shows the duties were properly collected.

"The pension office notifies me of the allowance of a pension. The office also wants to know how an applicant for pension in my district spells his name. Another correspondent wants information as to the foreign insurance companies doing business at the national capital. A pension applicant wants to know all about the surgical report in his case. Another wants me to have a medical examination as to his condition made at his home, because he is unable to travel. Another letter is on the subject of river and harbor improvements. Another gentleman wants me to ascertain what action has been taken in some land case he has before the government.

"These are examples of requests contained in nearly a hundred letters. Each one requires a reply, and most of them involve writing letters to the departments or making personal visits, many requiring long personal examinations of department records and unwinding of lots of red tape. Most of the matters are such as must be looked into before going to the capitol.

"After this I go to the committee work. There is a different committee for every day in the week, with sub-committees working besides, and on Saturday, besides several sub-committees to look after, I have various departments to visit. At twelve o'clock I entered the house, introduced bills, chased around after the speaker's eye, listened to debates, took part in general legislation, answering letters between times, answering roll calls and received visits from a large number of constituents and other persons who called me out by card. Five minutes is allowed for lunch meanwhile, and at six o'clock I dine. At seven o'clock I again return to my mail and to newspapers and to pamphlets and a world of other printed matter. This occupies me until eleven o'clock, when, for the first time during the day, I get a chance for general reading and for study, which occupy me for an hour or more, until drowsiness compels retirement."

Leonard Whitton, of Brighton, is now classed as the biggest man in Canada. He weighs 459 pounds. His measurements are as follows: Around the shoulders, 5 feet 6 inches; chest, 5 feet 2 inches; hips, 4 feet 2 inches; neck, 1 foot 11 inches; arm at shoulder, 2 feet 2 inches; arm below elbow, 1 foot 5 inches; thigh, 3 feet 9 inches; calf, 2 feet. His head measurement around the temples is 28 inches. Mr. Whitton attends daily to his business and is quite nimble on foot. Ten years ago he did not weigh more than 150 pounds, and during the past few years he has increased in weight rapidly. He is comparatively young, under forty years of age, and may yet add an extra fifty or seventy-five pounds to his enormous weight.

Cost of Keeping an Elephant. All the elephants used in the Indian army as draught animals in the artillery or commissariat, or as baggage animals in the transport department, are very carefully attended to, and in every way treated with the greatest consideration. Their keep is about thirty rupees, or seventeen dollars a day, including, of course, the wages of their mahout and grass-cutter. They are fed principally on unhusked rice and grass; of the former they get about two hundred and fifty pounds, and of the latter about four hundred pounds per diem.

FLOWING INWARD.

Interesting Phenomenon on the Island of Cephalonia.

There is an interesting instance of water flowing inward from the sea. It is found on the island of Cephalonia, in the Ionian sea, west of Greece. The phenomenon occurs on the southwest side of the island, near the small town and port of Argostoli, says Goldthwaite's Geographical Magazine. Two streams flow at a short distance from one another straight into the sea for a few yards and then follow different courses. One turns at right angles and runs for some ways parallel with the shore and close to it. Then it turns again toward the sea, and running, of course, deeper and deeper, doubles completely under itself, thus forming a loop, and finally passes out of sight deep down in a landward direction. In its course it turns two flourmills, which will give an idea of the strength of the current. There is no tide in the sea here, and the flow of the salt water brook is perfectly steady and continuous. The other stream disappears in the ground in a similar way.

This curious phenomenon has not attracted much attention because Argostoli is not on one of the summer tourist routes. No one knows what becomes of this water, but it probably flows to some subterranean reservoir, and it may have something to do with the earthquakes that occur in that neighborhood once in a long while, or possibly it feeds some distant volcano, for, as is well known, the most generally accepted theory of the cause of volcanic eruptions is that they are due to steam generated from water admitted through cracks in the earth's crust or in some other way.

Persons who sympathize with the afflicted will rejoice with D. E. Carr of 1235 Harrison street, Kansas City. He is an old sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism, but has not heretofore been troubled in this climate. Last winter he went up into Wisconsin, and in consequence has had another attack. "It came upon me very acute and severe," he said. "My joints swelled and became inflamed; sore to touch or almost to look at. Upon the urgent request of my mother-in-law I tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm to reduce the swelling and ease the pain, and to my agreeable surprise, it did both. I have used three fifty-cent bottles and believe it to be the finest thing for rheumatism, pains and swellings extant. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton, druggists.

A Military Display.

One of the most interesting exhibits in the government building at the world's fair will be a display of arms, uniforms, tents and flags in use in the United States army at various times since 1776. This display is being prepared in one of the Gray's Ferry arsenal buildings. A space of six thousand square feet has been set aside for this exhibit. The uniforms will be draped upon lay figures and arranged in realistic attitudes. The one particular group in which especial pride is taken is to consist of seven figures on horseback, representing a general of the present army and staff. The central figure will be as nearly as possible an exact likeness of Maj.-Gen. Schofield. All the articles were made entirely by Americans and of American materials. There is a collection of at least twenty-five flags, and these alone are valued at eight thousand dollars.

They Want Names.

The Russel Art Publishing Co., of 928 Arch street, Philadelphia, desire the names and address of a few people in every town who are interested in the works of art, and to secure them they offer to send free, "Cupid Guides the Boat," a superbly executed water color picture, size 10x13 inches, suitable for framing, and sixteen other pictures about same size, in colors, to anyone sending them at once the names and address of ten persons (admirers of fine pictures) together with six two-cent stamps to cover expense of mailing, etc. The regular price of these pictures is $1, but they can be secured free by any person forwarding the names and stamps promptly.

NOTE-The editor of this paper has already received copies of above pictures and considers them really "Gems of art."

THE DALLES

Wasco County, Oregon.

The Gate City of the Inland Empire is situated at the head of navigation on the Middle Columbia, and is a thriving, prosperous city.

ITS TERRITORY.

It is the supply city for an extensive and rich agricultural and grazing country, its trade reaching as far south as Summer Lake, a distance of over two hundred miles.

The Largest Wool Market.

The rich grazing country along the eastern slope of the Cascades furnishes pasture for thousands of sheep, the wool from which finds market here.

The Dalles is the largest original wool shipping point in America, about 5,000,000 pounds being shipped last year.

ITS PRODUCTS.

The salmon fisheries are the finest on the Columbia, yielding this year a revenue of thousands of dollars, which will be more than doubled in the near future.

The products of the beautiful Klickitat valley find market here, and the country south and east has this year filled the warehouses, and all available storage places to overflowing with their products.

ITS WEALTH.

It is the richest city of its size on the coast and its money is scattered over and is being used to develop more farming country than is tributary to any other city in Eastern Oregon.

Its situation is unsurpassed. Its climate delightful. Its possibilities incalculable. Its resources unlimited. And on these other stones she stands.
