

CHILDREN

who are puny, pale, weak, or scrofulous, ought to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. That builds up both flesh and strength. For this, and for purifying the blood, there's nothing in all medicine that can equal the "Discovery."

In recovering from "Grippe," or in convalescence from pneumonia, fevers, or other wasting diseases, it speedily and surely invigorates and builds up the whole system. As an appetizing, restorative tonic, it sets at work all the processes of digestion and nutrition, rouses every organ into natural action, and brings back health and strength.

For all diseases caused by a torpid liver or impure blood, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Scrofulous, Skin and Scalp diseases—even Consumption (or Lung-scurf) in its earlier stages—the "Discovery" is the only guaranteed remedy. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, you have your money back.

VIGOR OF MEN

Weakness, Nervousness, Debility, and all the train of evils from overwork, worry, etc. Full strength, development and tone given to every organ and portion of the body. Simple, natural method. Immediate improvement seen. Failure impossible. 200 references. Book, explanation and proofs mailed (sealed) free.

SHORTHAND WRITING.

The Incompetence of Some Persons to Learn It.

Very Few of the Many Who Undertake the Study Ever Become Proficient.—Horace Greeley and the Stenographer.

There is a good deal of nonsense written and talked, both by those who know and by those who don't, concerning the possibilities and actual achievements of shorthand writing. Not long ago an elderly woman, accompanied by a child or apparently about thirteen years of age, appeared before a justice at the Jefferson Market police court and told a pitiful tale. She said that she was a widow and that the child was her only daughter; that in order to procure some employment for the girl she had been induced to send her to a school of typewriting and shorthand. She had paid to the professor sixty dollars of her hard earnings and had been informed and believed that at the conclusion of a few months' tuition this child would be able to earn a fair salary. The professor, however, had failed to carry out his agreement, and at the conclusion of the tuition she found herself with her money gone and no probability of the fulfillment of the promises which had been made to her. She was informed by the justice that if she had any remedy at all it was in a civil suit for damages for breach of contract.

The experience of this child, says the New York Sun, is but a repetition of the experiences of by far the larger number of those who attempt to learn shorthand writing. It is a fact that but a very few of those who begin to learn ever succeed in becoming competent stenographers. The experience detailed so graphically and amusingly by Charles Dickens in the story of "David Copperfield," which is said to be in fact the experience of Dickens himself, is a fair sample of the difficulties with which the learner has to contend. Few persons, indeed, have the requisite perseverance to continue the much-needed practice in the face of discouraging results, which is essential before proficiency can possibly be reached.

Many of these failures might have been predicted from the start, because of the utter disqualification of the learner on account of the lack of the preliminary study and training and knowledge which are necessary to make a competent stenographer. It must be borne in mind that the subjects which may possibly be presented for accurate reporting comprise the entire field of human knowledge. There is no department of science, literature or art which may not some time or other appear in the course of speeches, of arguments, of lectures, of briefs, of dissertations, of debates, or of dictation. There is, of course, no stenographer who is so thoroughly familiar with the vocabulary even of his own language, let alone departments of study, as to be able on the spur of the moment to repeat accurately all kinds of scientific matter. There are, in fact, but very few of the most reliable stenographers in this or any other country who can be relied upon to give a verbatim report of a scientific congress. How futile, how foolish, must it be, then, for mere children, for persons without even the rudimentary elements of education, to undertake to qualify themselves for a business. And yet there are shorthand schools and professors of shorthand that take the money of pupils who attempt this impossible task, when it is known at the beginning that the money expended is really thrown away by the pupils.

It was related of the late Horace Greeley that upon one occasion an incompetent stenographer was employed by him to take at dictation a political speech. Mr. Greeley talked away with great earnestness and volubility upon a subject with which he was entirely familiar, using the names of many prominent public men in the present and past generation, referring to various public measures of the times, until he had reeled off, as he supposed, a considerable address. It so happened that the stenographer was thoroughly unfamiliar with about every subject of which the great philosopher had treated, and his manuscript when presented for review proved to be so crowded with errors and omissions and misspellings of names and misapprehensions of what Mr. Greeley had said that it was entirely useless, and with that force for which Mr. Greeley was renowned among those who knew him, the founder of the Tribune exclaimed: "What the deuce is stenography worth?"

There are limits to shorthand. Every honest stenographer will admit that no person is able to report the most rapid speakers or to follow with accuracy an argument which consists of many references to scientific books and contains quotations which must be accurately recorded. In practice, wherever a speaker makes use of many quotations, particularly of poetry or of statistics, the stenographer is always anxious to be supplied with the quoted parts. Among the very best stenographers the practical impossibility of one writer being able to record the most difficult speaking with accuracy is so well recognized that in the most important cases a copy of check notes is always observed, so that points which may be missed by one writer will be caught by another. This is really not an unusual practice, and it has been found to be absolutely essential in many cases.

It Should Be in Every House

J. B. Wilson, 371 Clay St., Sharpshooter, Pa., says he will not be without Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, coughs and colds, that it cured his wife who was threatened with pneumonia after an attack of "la grippe," when various other remedies and several physicians had done her no good. Robert Barber, of Cooksfoot, Pa., claims Dr. King's New Discovery has done him more good than anything he ever used for lung trouble. Nothing like it. Try it. ## FOOLING THE MILCH COWS.

Saturn of India Resort to a Strange Device—Hindoo Fatalism.

Not even Kipling can do more than hint at the awful problems of India. It is one thing to read of its conditions, says a writer in the Boston Transcript; it is another to face them. I wish I could tell you what the journey to Telugu from the coast was like—my first introduction to India. Fifty miles—and a two days' journey! If we take two miles an hour it is counted good speed. Sand and sun, a glare above and a glare beneath. Practically no vegetation; the trees look pestilence-stricken. There never comes a time when they seem to renew their leaves, though sometimes we used to think they moulted; the old leaves rattle off, and still there are leaves, but they never look new. Of course, I am speaking of my own part of India; near the rank vegetation of the jungle it is doubtless different. And one day is like another; a year like another; a thousand years like another thousand years. The impassive native, stuffing the calf skin that his cow may be deceived and let down milk, might be his own immemorially great-grandfather, for all the advance he has made on his grandfather's habits of mind or body or soul. You don't know what I mean by stuffing the calf? They believe the cow will give no milk unless the calf takes first its share; so when a calf dies they stuff it—with weird results. I assure you—and solemnly lead the cow to watch this appalling caricature is propped up on sticks every night before they milk her.

As she flushes and laughs, looks up and then down, and turns her head consciously aside, one feels that there can be but little admiration about her except her beauty, if that is so important to her that a mere reference to it in her presence moves her so easily.

The Hindoo fatalism extends even to the intellectual side of life. In grammar with them, as in destiny, a thing is so because it is so; fatalism kills out reason as it kills out spiritual effort and aspiration. I shall never forget trying to get an explanation from a Hindoo teacher of finding, in some of their writings, a plural substantive mated to a singular verb.

"Why does not this plural noun take a plural verb?"

"Because it takes a singular verb."

"Why?"

"Because it is right that it should do so."

"Why wouldn't it be right that it should take a plural verb?"

"Because it would be wrong."

"But I thought plural substantives always took plural verbs?"

"They do."

"Yet this one does not."

"No, this one does not."

"What rule governs it, then?"

"There is no rule. It does so because it is right that it should do so."

A Trait of David Dudley Field.

The late David Dudley Field knew how to treat deserving young men of his own profession. A young lawyer from the country happened to be in London at the time of an important international convention of lawyers, and Mr. Field was there as an honored delegate to the convention. The great lawyer and the young man were acquainted, but the latter was astonished and perhaps a little embarrassed to find not only that he received tickets to the meetings of the convention, but was made to take a seat among the comparatively small group of men whom the profession sought specially to honor. These unexpected attentions were all the result of a word from Mr. Field.

The geological expedition sent out by Princeton last summer was so successful that it has been decided again to visit the same district during the coming season. Mr. Hatcher, who will have charge of the expedition this year, has been in the west since March 1, finishing up work supplementary to that done last summer and completing arrangements for the start next June.

A lady at Tooleys, La., was very sick with bilious colic when M. C. Tisler, a prominent merchant of the town gave her a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He says she was well in forty minutes after taking the first dose. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton, druggists.

They Want Names.

The Russell Art Publishing Co., of 928 Arch street, Philadelphia, desire the names and address of a few people in every town who are interested in the works of art, and to secure them they offer to send free, "Cupid Guides the Boat," a superbly executed water color picture, size 10x13 inches, suitable for framing, and sixteen other pictures about same size, in colors, to anyone sending them at once the names and address of ten persons (admirers of fine pictures) together with six two-cent stamps to cover expense of mailing, etc. The regular price of these pictures is $1, but they can be secured free by any person forwarding the names and stamps promptly.

NOTE—The editor of this paper has already received copies of above pictures and considers them really "Gems of art."

THE DALLES

Wasco County, - - - Oregon,

The Gate City of the Inland Empire is situated at the head of navigation on the Middle Columbia, and is a thriving, prosperous city.

ITS TERRITORY.

It is the supply city for an extensive and rich agricultural and grazing country, its trade reaching as far south as Summer Lake, a distance of over two hundred miles.

The Largest Wool Market.

The rich grazing country along the eastern slope of the Cascades furnishes pasture for thousands of sheep, the wool from which finds market here.

The Dalles is the largest original wool shipping point in America, about 5,000,000 pounds being shipped last year.

ITS PRODUCTS.

The salmon fisheries are the finest on the Columbia, yielding this year a revenue of thousands of dollars, which will be more than doubled in the near future.

The products of the beautiful Klickitat valley find market here, and the country south and east has this year filled the warehouses, and all available storage places to overflowing with their products.

ITS WEALTH.

It is the richest city of its size on the coast and its money is scattered over and is being used to develop more farming country than is tributary to any other city in Eastern Oregon.

Its situation is unsurpassed. Its climate delightful. Its possibilities incalculable. Its resources unlimited. And on these corner stones she stands.
