A very enthusiastic republican meeting was held last night at Dufur. Tonight Wapinitia and Fairfield will be addressed by republican speakers.

Mr. A. W. Whetstone brought in a sheaf of volunteer barley this morning which is 4 feet, 10 inches high. Grain never looked better in his section at this time of year.

Wheat took another tumble today in New York, and the stock board closed on 58 3/4 for May wheat. Government crop reports for April indicate a slight deficiency and record 81.4 per cent against 90 per cent a year ago.

Wm. Floyd of 5-Mile shipped five carloads and R. H. Guthrie of Sherman County four carloads of sheep this morning to Chicago via Fremont, Neb., by one train.

Two strangers stopped at a farmer's—John Dalrymple, procured breakfast and asked the nearest way to the railroad or The Dalles. From certain circumstances connected with the event, suspicion points to the two as being the Dufur safe robbers.

The fruit growers of this section held a meeting this afternoon and organized a society by electing the following directors: W. H. Taylor, Geo. Snipes, A. J. Anderson, M. Hill, E. Schanno and Dr. E. G. Sanders.

LITTLE DAMAGE DONE

The Frosts Have Scarcely Injured the Fruit Crop.

Mr. E. Schanno, the prominent fruit-grower and member of the state board of horticulture, has taken the pains to personally investigate the reports of injury to the fruit crop by the frosts in various parts of the county, with very encouraging results.

He finds nothing hurt at Mosier but the strawberries. Of these about 20 per cent of the crop is lost. There will be a full crop of cherries and peaches.

Hood River fruit trees are not injured and only about 30 per cent of the strawberry crop in places.

He went up Mill creek four miles and found no damage done until he reached Mr. Urquhart's place. The cherries only are damaged, and these but slightly.

At Dry Hollow nothing is affected except an occasional hill of grapes.

No injury whatever has occurred at 3-Mile. The Sanders and Creighton farms will yield full crops.

Taken all in all, the prospects at this time were never better for a bountiful crop.

A Mohave Superstition.

The Mohave Indians of the far west have one curious superstition that is supposed to be of comparatively recent origin. They refuse to eat the flesh of the beaver, and declare that whose eats beaver's flesh will have a swollen neck.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mr. W. G. Steel, who was in the city last night, returning to Portland, has just been on the Barlow road. At the old government camp on the summit he found 8 feet of snow, which is a very unusual depth for this time of year.

Mr. T. A. Hudson has just returned from a few days' trip in Sherman county. On Wednesday and Thursday morning from 1/2 to 3/4 of an inch of ice froze outside. There was never better prospects for a crop in Sherman county, and volunteer wheat is two feet in height.

FOR STEALING HORSES.

The Charges Against Marshal Maloney and Charles Snelling.

A warrant was sworn out yesterday for the arrest of Dan Maloney and Charles Snelling by Michael Doyle, for the larceny of two geldings on or about the 5th of May.

The events of last Wednesday night, which have been the talk of the streets since that time, are thus described by Mr. George Joles, who acting with Deputy Sheriff Phirman, found Maloney and Snelling with the horses in question late Wednesday night.

At 7 o'clock a party rode up in front of Joles, Collins & Co.'s general merchandise store and called out Mr. Geo. Joles, saying he had discovered where Doyle's horses were, which had been missing since the Saturday night previous. One of the horses belonged to Mr. Adam Kaufman of this city, and to his house Mr. Joles first went.

They met, as per appointment, and, each being armed with a shotgun, immediately proceeded on foot to the place told Mr. Joles where the horses were, at the city graveyard. Arrived there about 8:30 o'clock. The horses came up to the fence. The deputies looked about for a place to conceal themselves and await events.

They jumped the fence and hid about twenty feet distant in some brush, and separated by a fence from the horses, who were in a small enclosure adjoining the graveyard proper. After a half hour, at Phirman's suggestion, they moved up to the fence, and within about twenty feet of the horses. About 10 o'clock, said Mr. Joles, he heard a horse snort, and a few minutes later a single horseman rode up. He looked around for about half a minute; everything was perfectly quiet. He then got off the horse and proceeded to lay the fence down very carefully, and making scarcely any noise. After tearing it away clear, he stood at the gap thus made for about ten minutes. Mr. Joles then heard another noise, like that made by a moving vehicle, then all was quiet again. Soon after another horse came galloping toward them, and slowed down to a walk as he neared the man at the fence.

The first arrival handed the reins of his horse to the new-comer and went in the enclosure after the Doyle horses. He caught them, and just as he was coming out the gate, Phirman and Joles arose and Phirman said: "Hold on, boys; don't you move. Who are you?"

He instructed Joles to cover the two men while he leaped the fence, and performed a like service for Joles when both neared the two men. Phirman then recognized Maloney and asked: "Who is that with you?"

"My partner."

By this time the officer was nearer the two men and recognized Snelling. He said: "Hello, is that you, Snelling," to which that party assented.

At sight of Joles, Maloney said: "Hello, Joles; are you out here herding the graveyard?"

Phirman then said: "These horses you have here are stolen and belong to Mike Doyle."

"Who's Doyle?" said Maloney, "I got these horses from an Indian, and gave him $10 and three cayuses for them."

"It makes no difference," said the deputy. "They are stolen horses and I will have to take them."

"Well, I want $5 for clipping them, anyway."

"That is your loss. The horses are stolen property and must be returned to the owner wherever found."

"I bought the horses from an Indian named Joe, and he lives at Hood River."

"Well, we'll take the horses anyhow."

"I guess we had better put the fence up before we leave," said Maloney.

He then invited Phirman and Joles, as they had guns with them, to go with him to look up some horses he claimed to have bought some months ago of Louis Daveuport of Mosier. Phirman inquired where they were. Maloney replied, "In the mountains, and I want to get them." Nothing further was said on that topic.

Phirman then gave the stolen horses to Joles to lead to their barn, and the latter left the trio fixing up the fence.

Deputy Phirman was approached by a reporter Thursday and Friday, but refused to say anything for publication.

Maloney and Snelling, as stated in the beginning of this report, were arrested yesterday (Friday) afternoon. Maloney furnished the required bonds, and Snelling, failing to do so, was incarcerated in the county jail. At 11 o'clock p. m. he was given his liberty, the necessary bonds being found.

MALONEY'S STATEMENT.

Marshal Dan Maloney was seen this afternoon by a reporter and authorized the following statement:

On Monday, the 7th, saw an Indian called "Indian Jack" from Hood River, between 11 and 1 o'clock, and I traded him three ponies and $10 for two horses he had. He wanted $15 and I jewed him down to $10. I only had $8 and borrowed $2 from Sterling to make up the amount. The two horses were a work horse and a saddle horse. I then put the horses in the pound and gave the Indian $3 to clip the work horse, and roach the other's mane and clip his tail. Went down in the evening and saddled up the roan horse and went up Mill creek on to Government flat, looking for two mares. Came back Tuesday about noon, and staked the horse out on the hill by the city graveyard. Wednesday noon went up and got him and rode him through the old garrison up Mill creek as far as opposite Denton's ranch, then back again through the garrison and turned him loose in the city graveyard. In the evening (Wednesday) started up there about 8 o'clock, arrived there no later than 9 o'clock, it was about 8:30, and there we got held up. After a talk the deputy sheriff gave the horses to Joles and told him to take them to his stable, and I am out on the transaction the three ponies, $10 and the $3 I gave the Indians for clipping the horses.

Maloney and Snelling were arraigned before Justice Schmitz this afternoon and entered a plea of not guilty. Defendants were represented by A. S. Bennett and the private prosecutor by B. S. Huntington. Arguments were made for a continuance of the preliminary examination, but up to 3 o'clock no decision had been given.
