A VESSEL HEAVING TO.

Operation Fraught with Great Danger.

The Perils of a Storm on the Ocean—Laying Aloft in a Howling Breeze—How a Ship Weathers a Gale—Cutting Away the Masts.

The operations of "heaving to," performed by nearly every sailing vessel caught on the coast during the recent storm, is never resorted to by merchant vessels until it becomes absolutely necessary. The moment a vessel is "hove to," says the New York Times, she becomes practically stationary, the object being merely to keep her "head to the seas."

Under such conditions were vessels overtaken by the terrible northeaster. Wind and sea aided each other in making navigation perilous, the seas threatening at every moment to roll over on the decks of the fleeing vessels.

The vessel is on a lee shore, the gale is blowing her right on, and unless she can be made to beat up in the wind, head off and clear the coast, she will beach. Up comes every body with a rush, half-dressed, half-dazed, but fully alive to the danger.

"Round in the lee head and main and weather cross-jack braces!" Already the men are at their places, and up come the weather yard arms into the wind.

"The helm carefully tended, the sparker eased up slightly; the ship feels the canvas, small as the amount on her is; she reaches forward, staggers for a moment, then slowly works her way off through sea after sea.

"Not a moment too soon. A great sea the next instant lifts the ship high into the air. Had it caught her 'broadside to' it would have plunged tons of green seas upon the decks. But the great craft's bow has met it. She rose as the wave advanced and plunged heavily forward as it rushed under her.

Now is the time to catch her. Sharp up go the yards from the head and main. The head sheets are hauled well aft, the helm carefully tended, the sparker eased up slightly; the ship feels the canvas, small as the amount on her is; she reaches forward, staggers for a moment, then slowly works her way off through sea after sea.

"Should the wind still continue to increase in violence the topsail will be goose-winged. This latter sail is kept on as long as possible because of its being above the waves. Under a main opportunity to feel the wind, the waves serving as a bulwark. Should, however, a goose-winged topsail and main sparker prove too much, tarpaulins placed in the lee mizzen rigging may hold her up.

If she still continues to heel over the crew will cut away the foremast by cutting the weather laniards. If this will not right her away will go the mizzen and main, and then trust to riding out to sea anchor. This alone can save the vessel. Let her once fall off, get into the trough of the sea, and the consequences will be expressed in the one word of the seaman, "Foundered."

Persons who sympathize with the afflicted will rejoice with D. E. Carr of 1235 Harrison street, Kansas City. He is an old sufferer from inflammatory rheumatism, but has not heretofore been troubled in this climate.

Last winter he went up into Wisconsin, and in consequence has had another attack. "It came upon me very acute and severe," he said. "My joints swelled and became inflamed; sore to touch or almost to look at. Upon the urgent request of my mother-in-law I tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm to reduce the swelling and ease the pain, and to my agreeable surprise, it did both. I have used three fifty-cent bottles and believe it to be the finest thing for rheumatism, pains and swellings extant. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton, druggists.

DEATH IN THE BATH.

Vapors of Mount Budo. Cure the Gout or Kill the Bathers.

When Charles Boner was in Transylvania he visited Mount Budo, a volcano which is never in actual eruption, but is all the time sending out sulphuretted hydrogen gas. In particular there are two caves or clefts in the whitish-gray rock, out of which this gas, mixed with carbonic acid, is emitted with special freedom. The principal one of these caves is about twenty paces in depth, and, as will be seen from Mr. Boner's description, is much frequented as a health resort.

"To enter the cave in safety care must be taken not to draw the breath. A long respiration is made before rushing in, the nostrils are closed, and then with hasty steps the farther extremity is reached.

"A prickling feeling in the eyes is caused by the warm atmosphere. From the feet upwards the whole body has the agreeable sensation of a gentle heat playing around every limb. But your stock of breath is exhausted, and you run back to the open air.

"The day before I was there a man had committed suicide by entering a step or two. He dropped at once; and when a shepherd, who was tending his flocks on the opposite hillside, and who saw him enter, came across to look for him, he was dead.

"The vapors of the cave are highly valued as a cure for the gout, and for diseases of the eye. At the end of the cavern a hot sulphur spring flows liquid, clear as crystal, and it slowly drops by drops from the rock in the vault, probably of the condensed vapors rising from below.

"A local resident tells me that he once took this vapor bath. The gas, he remains as long as they could hold their breath, then ran out, breathing and go in again.

"The second cave is not far away, and is called the Murderer. In flying past the opening, birds drop dead upon the ground. Close to the entrance I found a jay that had just met its death. I thought of the upas tree and its victims."

Deaths Among Pensioners. The grip is reaping many victims among the pensioners, and a large number of pension office certificates lie on Pension Agent Clements' desk unsigned, having been returned because of the sudden death of the veterans whose names are contained therein. Since quarterly payment day, January 6, more than forty deaths among the pensioners have been reported to Col. Clements, and in almost every case death was sudden, and from the grip. "I do not remember having heard of so many deaths among the pensioners in so short a time," said Col. Clements.

A Colored Higher Critic.

There is refreshing artlessness about the negro preacher who is told of in the New York Observer. He became touched with the "higher criticism" idea, and elaborated a new theory of the exodus, to wit: That the Red sea was frozen over, and so afforded the Israelites a safe passage, but when Pharaoh with his heavy iron chariots attempted to cross he broke through and was drowned. A brother arose and asked an explanation on that "p'int."

Said he: "I've been studyin' 'gography, and de 'gography say dat am de place whar de tropics am, and de tropics am too hot fo' 'freezin'; de 'p'int to be 'splainin' is 'bout 'breacin' though de 'ice." The preacher straightened himself up, and said: "Brudder, I've got you need dat question, for it gives me 'casion to 'splain it. You see, dat war a great while ago, befo' dey had any 'gographies, and befo' dere war any tropics."

Referred to Satan. The small daughter of a charitable minded family has been told frequently that Satan finds work for idle hands. The other morning one of the tribe of tramps called with the usual story of winter woes. The mistress of the house made the customary suggestion about obtaining employment, and was assured that every avenue of self-support was closed. Then the small girl came forward from her refuge behind her mother's skirts and said in tones of kindly suggestion: "Couldn't Satan find anything for you to do?"
