SOME CURIOUS FACTS.

.ae Origin of Amber, Crystal and Pearls Explained by an Expert. "Amber is curious stuff," said a colector of curios to a Washington Star reporter the other day. "It is only comparatively recently that its nature has been known, and even at this day very Pierce's Favorite few people seem to have any notion as to what it is in reality. The ancients . garded it as altogether mysterious and ven magical. They found that it was endered electrical by friction so as to attract light substances, and our word 'electricity' comes from the Greek name or amber, which was 'electron.' A favorite puzzle with them was how the ansects so frequently found in amber came to be so situated. Not as a modern poet has phrased it:

-that the thing was either rich or rare, But how the devil did it get there?

"I have myself seen a chunk of very transparent amber in which a small lizard with five legs was encased, looking as if it might have been alive yesterday, though, doubtless, it had been dead for thousands of years. The mystery regarding this sort of phenomenon is easily enough explained when it is understood that amber is actually the fossil gum of an extinct kind of cone-bearing ree. In the process of hardening it imorisoned the flies and other creatures For periodical pains, bearing-down sensations, ulceration, inflammation—everything that's known as a female complaint," it's a remedy that's safe, certain, and proved.

The shores of the Baltic, in the shores of the Baltic, in the yellow sandstone. At Palmicken, in East Prussia, it is dug in regular mines: elsewhere it is picked from cliffs, and a good deal of it is gathered in the shape of nodules cast up by the waves. The finest specimen of amber in Europe is a oup made of that material, now at the found at Hove some years ago, together with weapons and utensils of stone and bronze, so it is evidently very ancient ndeed. In the fourteenth century, and before amber was made into knives and forks with one prong, which were used ste and faithful as any dog. by princes and church dignitaries, it was more valuable than gold then. Now it is worth from $2 to $50 a pound, according to its quality. The most important use made of it is for meerschaum and other pipes. Meerschaum, by the way, is a material dug out of the earth in Turkey; it comes in boxes holding fifty pounds, and valued at from $20 to $300. The dust and chips obtained from it in the process of manufacture are worked into pipes, this material being called 'imitation meerschaum." Amber lust is melted, and the product is what is sold as 'amberine.'"

"What a very beautiful sphere of caking in his hand a cool globe that looked like a huge dewdrop, which the collector handed him for examination.

"Yes, that is a pretty specimen. I suppose you are aware of the theory entertained by the ancients regarding such rock crystal. They thought it was actually ice frozen to great density by luration of time, congealed beyond liquidation. 'Krystallos' in Greek means 'ice.' The famous writer on nat-'Krystallos' in Greek aral philosophy, Pliny, who wrote more facts that were not true than ever any an collected together before or since, ays the crystal is undoubtedly water rozen by cold so intense that nothing an melt it again. Roman ladies of that time were accustomed to carry blood sausages every Saturday from the such spheres as this one in their hands living swine. The blood is let into during hot weather for coolness. It sausage skins, is sprinkled with fat, and worked into wine jugs and other vessels. Nero had two drinking cups of crystal worth $3,000 each, and a crystal ladlo also; but when he learned that he had lost his kingdom he broke them, lest they fall into the hands of any one else. A crystal lens was employed in Rome to covery of crystal on record was made in "And what is this?"

SEEING WITH ONE EYE.

Effect of Judgment Trained by Binocular Vision. A person may see as far with one per fect eye as with two, but he cannot as clearly; for the advantage that binocular, or double vision, possesses over monocular, or one-eyed vision, is that the former, by allowing the observer to catch sight of the object from two different points of view, gives him at once some idea of the proportions of of its different parts.

But though this is true in theory, in practice the judgment interferes, and the judgment has been educated and in measure rendered independent of the services of binocular vision by experience and the use of other senses, such as touch, says the Washington Post.

Thus a man with only one eye is never deceived as to the nature of an object with which he is well ac quainted, for the report of it that he gets from his vision is corrected and supplemented by his experienced judgment and transmitted to his centers of consciousness in as perfect a form as that which reaches those of a man with

The advantage of binocular vision may be thus further illustrated: In rapidly dipping a pen into an inkstand or putting a stopper into a decanter the one-eyed man cannot judge so accurately as the two-eyed man. Or, again, if we shut one eye and attempt to plunge the finger rapidly into the open month of a bottle we are upt to over-reach or fall short of it.

Brazilian Rat Killers

A "globe trotter" recently return home from an extended tour through foreign countries says: "In all my tra els there was nothing that interested me more than a peculiar custom prevalent in Brazil. In that tropical coun try rats are very troublesome, and to rid their houses of the pests the inhabitants resort to a peculiar method. The giboia, a small species of boa, is reared expressly for the purpose, and the serpents, many of them fifteen feet in length and about five inches thick, are sold in the markets of the principal towns. The snake is harmless and crystal this is!" said the newspaper man, slow of movement during the day, but at night, when the household is deep in slumber, the exterminator gets in his work. His method of killing a rat is to catch it by the nape of the neck and crush the cervical vertebra. The serpent, like a dog in this country, soon becomes accustomed to its master's house, and if carried away to a distance will find its way back."

Poverty Breeding Cruelty. The rise in the price of meat in Germany has not only increased the general consumption of horse-flesh, but in western Germany has led many of the peasants, who have to forego the meat market altogether, to draw blood for after having thickened is enton with sauerkraut for the Sunday dinner.
