A NEGATIVE PARTY.

egation. It cannot lead, and will not If any one can do it, he can. follow. An honored passenger in the great national coach, it has always wanted to drive without knowing the road. For thirty years it has been crying "We are on the wrong road; we are not going the right direction." Two years ago the people tired of its grumbling and asked it to drive. It has had the reins for fifteen months, but the coach has not moved because it knows not which way to go. It went into power as the avowed champion of free trade, but knows not what free trade is. tional, and is fighting over a protective demns McKinleyism and indorses Wil- care. sonism. It puts a tariff on sugar, and very properly, to raise revenue; and wool, which is exactly similar to sugar for revenue purposes, on the free list to raise the d-l with that industry. It had 40, and 40 where he had 30, and pronounces the result good. If republican protection is unconstitutional, democraric protection is equally so, whether the per cent, is 40 or 30.

And yet the democratic leaders continue the cry that we are traveling the wrong road. Why don't they take the other one? for there are but two. They dare not do it, and so sneakingly follow the beaten road marked out by the republican party. But they are not making a success of it. The coach is behind time at every station and will never catch up until the old driver gets hold of the lines. Sensible democrats realize this, and when the next election comes will by their votes express the sentiment of a democratic friend of ours, who said, after expressing his disgust with congress, "If this country is to be run on the protective tariff theory, I will cast my vote to put the republican party, whose policy it is, in charge of it."

President Cleveland said before this congress met that he would "soon have a congress on his hands." He evidently knew what was coming, and realized the extent of his job. He has tried to lead a stubborn and stiff-necked party the way it should go, but soon found it was not broke to lead. It was just broke. Divided against itself, the senate debates away the precious hours, while the country goes across lots to its doom. With the house on one side, and the Warehouse.

senate on the other, he as given up all hope, and awaits with becoming resignstion the early days of November '96. Sacred history mentions a case where a much grander character met death between two other thieves but in this case salvation seem impossible for any of

A young couple from New York went down to North Carolina recently and then climbed to the summit of a high mountain so as to be "married above the clouds." Any young couple that love with a love like Annabel Lee-the kind that used to distort our youthful bosom-would be above the clouds anywhere on their wedding day. Its after marriage, when the tater sack is empty and the home rule onion is gone; when the flour bin echoes and the wood pile is not-then is the time to get above the clouds. This young couple from New York were premature.

Congress has been in session for many weary months, and the democratic party is in the majority in both its branches. The executive is also a democrat. All of them went into place because the people wanted a change. The democratic party promised it, but there is no change. Why? Where now are the promised reforms, the promised change, the promised prosperity? Alas! they are not for the common people, Coxey has them all.

If there is a democrat in this state entitled to the gratitude of his party, that man is Governor Grover. He sacrificed his private fortune in fighting Ben. Holfiday; and Galloway, Bill Galloway, was a subservient tool in the effort to blacken Grover's character. Grover came out of the conflict unstained, Galloway didn't. He will find that Grover's friends have not forgotten

The republican ticket this year is one that no person, no republican at least, can find fault with, for the candidates are all men above reproach. This year, of all others, every republican should stand by his colors and vote the ticket straight from top to bottom.

For a Team.

One of the attractions Thursday was Governor Moody's bay 3-year-old Pedro, son of Hambletonian Mambrino and Black Bess, by Paul Jones. The young trotter was on his way from Salem to The Dalles, where he will be hitched up with his full sister, Topsy. From now on the citizens of the "doorway" will know when they see the black sister and the bay brother coming they had better commence to get out of the way a little sooner than they have been in the habit of doing .- Rural Spirit.

SNAP THE WHIP" IN AFRICA. Tests of Nerve Belore Which the Bravest

Might Quall. Among the Hadendowas, a Sudanese tribe whose name was painfully familiar to us a few years ago, young men who aspire to renown challenge one another to a dreadful contest. After ceremonies cartel-which may be declined without infamy, however unless the youth refusing have fought once already and triumphed—public notice is given and at the time appointed all the population of the village assemble. The champions are stripped to the waist, and they carry a whip of hippopotamus hide four feet long, one inch square at the base, with edges newly trimmed, as sharp almost as a knife. At a signal they exchange blows methodically and keep it up un-til one owns defeat, or, very much more frequently, stumbles and falls exhausted, but still defiant. Blood streams at the first cut, as though the whip had been a sword almost, but they often hold out for half an hour. Dr. Gunther says he has seen sears reaching to the very bone. The prize of these contests is a title, "Akhu-el-Benat" — Protector of the Maiden which the victor bears until defeated or married. We can believe that the young men think it worth fighting for, and it would be interesting to know what advantages the title gives exactly, how the maidens regard their protector, whether he has any official position toward them, and so forth. A custom like this has spread, of course, among neighboring towns under various forms. That of the Abyssinian braves is described by Mansfield Parkyns in the London Standard. The girls themselves play an active part there. When young people are gathered for amusement - after a church festival, for instance-one of them will begin peeling a straw of green millet, which is full of pith. Her lover's blood runs cold probably, but he must smile or own himself a craven. When she has cut the pith into bits an inch long he stretches out his bare arm. The example set, every girl who respects herself and has a lover follows it. The young men form a circle. with their arms extended. Blithely then, and with many a jest, doubtless, the maidens arrange their bits of pith upright in some fanciful design on the bare flesh and then set them alight. They are nearly an inch thick, and they burn very slowly, but the hapless youth must stand and smile as well as he can till the blood and juices of the seared flesh extinguish them. It is, in fact, a peculiarly horrible form of tat-

It is a conundrum which has been asked many times, and many men have had to give it up.

"How much time will you require?" "Really, I don't know. There are seven ahead of you, not yet disposed of; but I hope to clear up all my unfinished business before the summer hotels open. Suppose, you come round about the middle of June."

"'Sdeath," he hissed between his set of teeth, "that is what comes of a girl being worth a million in her own right," and the girl looked carelessly at a card the butler presented on a silver although it is estimated the work will salver and told him to show the gen-
