The horticultural display at the world's fair will be bewildering in extent and marvelous in beauty. The exway to be well, if aibit will possess great scientific and educational value, but to the ordinary visitor its ornamental features will be the most striking. Indeed, it will play an important part in the adornment of the great exposition. While in almost every part of the exposition grounds may be seen gratifying evidences of the very efficient work of the horticultural plaint," irregularity, or weakness, department, the central point of inter-and in every exhausted condition of est will naturally be in the exhibit in the female system-if it ever fails the horticultural building. An idea of how complete this part of the exhibit will be can be gained from the fact that applications for space have already been received from thirtythree foreign countries. From abroad the exhibits of France, Germany, Spain and Italy will be especially notable. A being exhibitors and having applied for much more space than can possibly be allowed them. If permission, which has been asked, be given, Senator Stanford will exhibit a wine fountain. This, as planned, will throw, for two hours each morning and afternoon, graceful streams of wine to the height of twentytwo feet.

In the rear curtains of the building will be shown the fruit exhibit, which will include all varieties grown in any part of the world. As far as it is possi-ble to do so, probably in a great majority of cases, fine specimens of the natural fruit will be shown. Otherwise wax models, so perfect in appearance as to be indistinguishable from the real fruit, will be substituted. For this exhibit about forty-four thousand square feet, or more than an entire acre of space, is reserved. A very complete and splendid exhibit of citrons and other fruits will be sent from California, Florida, Mexico and South American countries. By means of refrigerators ripe fruit can be sent long distances without injury, and after reaching the fair cold storage facilities will be available to keep it in perfect condition.

The exhibit in the important line of floriculture will be exceptionally extensive, and the preparation of it is far advanced. Unless this were the case the exhibit could not well be a success, for time is required for the plants to overcome the check received in being transplanted. More than 500,000 transplanted shrubs and plants, of many species, are now growing in the exposition grounds, and the number is rapidly increasing. The department sent

UNCANNY COCO DE MER.

It Is a Double Cocoanut That Grows No. body Knows Where. After years of vain negotiations the Royal Botanical society of London has at last obtained a specimen of that rarest of oriental rarities, the coco de mer, or double coconnut.

For hundreds of years, and even in the year 1893, the origin of the coco de mer is a mystery that is yet to be explained. It is unknown to cocoanut growers and gatherers, and, according to creditable testimony, has never been seen except when washed upon the shores of some tropical country by a mighty storm. Lilly, the famous astrologer, owned a small cne.and Camac, of Paris, another.

To these uncanny nuts the ignorant masses of the seventcenth century attributed many of the supernatural feats said to have been performed by their owners. They were and are sup-posed to have wonderful powers in the way of curing diseases. At one time it was reported that there was a species of cocoanut tree growing on the island of Sepchelies which grew nothing but these wonderful nuts. Williams, R. 88 by 270 feet. #### The Force of Habit.

In the county court at Toronto may be seen a venerable tar who has found a haven in these legal precincts as a subordinate officer after having been tossed on the ocean for many a year in "her majesty's" service. Not long ago, when the hour for adjourning a sitting of the court had arrived the crier was absent and the judge, turning to the quondam mariner, said: "Captain, adjourn the court." Trained to prompt obedience "the captain" shouted in stentorian "Oh yes! oh yes! oh-yes!"-But tones: of the mystic formula no more came to his command. Not to be foiled in the discharge of duty, he proceeded in his own fashion: "Ladies and gentlemen, you may consider this court adjourned. Clew up your sails and heave the an-chor. You must be here at ten o'clock chor. in the morning. We will then weigh anchor and make sail. God save the queen!" Astonished silence held all present for a moment, and then gave way to a peal of laughter, in which even "the court" was compelled to join

Stopping Electric Locomotives.

Although it has hitherto been possible to stop an electric car quickly, the reversal of the current which the action necessitated resulted in a considerable waste and caused a tendency to burn out the motors. A new method of accomplishing the stoppage has been devised. The new motors of a car are so connected that the electro motive force of each under the rotation imparted by the forward movement of the car op poses that of the other, and tends to produce a current in such a direction as to increase its own field magnetism and cut down that of the other. The car will thus be checked or brought to a sudden stop if running rapidly, and if on a heavy grade will creep slowly down without taking current from the supply wire and without having the brakes set
