A Grizzly That Got a Taste of Tipple and Liked It - Delirium Tremens Put an End to His Dissipated

'Way back in the 50s I was tempora rily handling the lines for the Sacra mento Overland State Company, and iwas over lots of land, I tell you, for my route ran through the roughest section of the Sierra Nevadas One night about sunset I was swinging along the rocky trail at a pretty good pace, as I wanted to reach Rabbit creek before dark, HELP IS WANTED where we changed horses and got sup-

I had three passengers, all men, and granteed by Dr. Pierce's Favorite strapped on behind the stage. There s, and regulates, no matter what like a deer. But the bear was gaining rapidly and it seemed that he had him sure, when suddenly the miner turned and darted off in another direction. The grizzly was slow in stopping, but when he did get straightened the way to catamounts.

> Several times the miner played this trick, and on each occasion gained considerable ground in one direction, but it could be seen he was rapidly tiring, and unless something happened the bear was dead sure to get him. We were the poor fellow when suddenly the wondering what we could do to help leaders smelled the grizzly. They snorted and pranced and started off on a dead run. I put on the brake, and it was all I could do to stop them and wouldn't have succeeded only the trail was up-grade.

> Well, when the horses made their jump the barrel of gin broke loose from its fastenings and went tearing down the mountain side toward the man and bear, who were coming along on a dead run. The man saw the barrel coming and avoided it but not so the grizzly. He stood up on his hind legs and, reaching out his fore paws, grabbed it. The way that barrel rolled him down the mountain would make a coyote laugh.

The impromptu journey was brought to a sudden ending by an immense bowlder, against which the bear and barrel rolled. The shock separated them, and, strange to say, the barrel stood right side up with the head broken in and only a small portion of the contents was spilled. To say the bear was surprised would be putting it

He thought he had his quarry and when he discovered it was only a barrel his face took on an expression of intense disgust. However, as is natural for a bear, he began to lick his shaggy coat, which had been sprinkled with some of the gin. The taste was apparently agreeable, as he kept on absorbing the liquor with his rough tongue until the flavor disappeared. Then he went over and smelled of the barrel. The inspection was undoubtedly highly satisfactory, as he inserted his snout and took a sup, then he took a good long draught, and in less than half an hour that bear was as drunk as a

We watched the proceedings with interest, and after we were satisfied the bear had a jag on, we went down, tied him up with ropes, dragged him up the hill and threw him inside the stage.

We drove on to Rabbit Creek and sold the drunken grizzly to "Red Mike" for $100, and he chained him up in the corner of his saloon and kept him as a curiosity to draw trade.

Well, he did draw trade. "Mike" gave him a quart of whisky a day, and after awhile he became so docile that his chain was removed. After that for may years he would sleep around the barroom and when one of the boys would come and ask the house to drink the grizzly would walk up to the bar, stand on his hind legs, and wait to be served with a tincupful of whisky. He was a source of great income, but, unfortunately, being attacked with de-lirium tremens one day, he killed the bartender and a miner with one blow of his powerful paw, and it required twenty Winchesters and about one hundred pounds of lead to cure him of his uncontrollable passion for intoxicants.

A SMUGGLER'S PARADISE.

Looking at the map one may see that the northwest corner of the state of Washington is torn off, and the space that is left is filled with water, dotted with an archipelago. The island of Vancouver fits partially into the gaping corner as if it had been torn out by some gigantic convulsion. The tatters and debris of the rent form the archipelago. Our national interest centered in that corner long ago when that portion of the boundary was in dispute, and the tension of a war feeling was only relieved when a foreign arbitrator settled the boundary, and gave us the island of San Juan, the most important in the group. The city of Victoria, writes Julian Ralph in Harper's Magazine, confines nearly all the population on that corner of Vancouver island: the city of Vancouver is the main settlement on the British Columbia shore, and on our borders are such little placee as Whatcom, New Dungeness, and Port Angeles, in the state of Washington. Port Townsend, on Puget sound, is the principal American town near by, and the headquarters of the scanty force of customs officials who are supposed to enough to swallow a man whole. guard against the smuggling, and who are entitled to the presumption that they are doing their best in this direc-Victoria has only twenty thouand the islands only here and there a house. Those who transport the Chinamen are all white men. The resident Chinese act as their confederates and as the agents of the smuggled men, but do no part of the actual smuggling, that is to say, the boating. The great smug-gling is of opium. The introduction of the Chinese themselves is of small account, so far as the defiance of our laws is concerned, as compared with the introduction of opium. Yet that extensive business also is carried on by white men. The Chinese can not pass to and fro as white men can, therefore they leave the traffic to the whites.

These white men are of the class one would expect to find in such business. A government employe in Victoria told taking the first dose. For sale by me that I would "be surprised to know Blakeley & Houghton, druggists. me that I would "be surprised to know what important and respectable persons were connected with the smuggling," but as he gave me no further enlightenment, and as I failed to obtain any proof that any number of socalled respectable men profited directly by the business, I did not and do not believe that there are many such. Those who do the smuggling of the Chinese are unprincipled and reckless characters. Descendants of Great Men.

It is a noticeable fact that great men | Gentlemen : seldom leave direct descendants. Naseldom leave direct descendants. Napoleon, Wellington, Washington, all prove the rule. Shakespeare left only two daughters, whose children died without issue. Probably the nearest relative to the great poet now living is one Thomas Hart, a resident of Australia, who is said to be the eighth in descent from Shakespeare's sister Joan. Walter Scott's line ended with the second or third generation. It is also a notable fact that great men rarely leave notable fact that great men rarely leave rities who left no direct heir was

JONAH AND THE WHALE.

A Salt Lake Minister Gives an Explana-How Chinamen Gain Access to the United "Doctor," said a Salt Lake Tribune reporter to a city minister. "Is there not a natural explanation of the whale's swallowing of Jonah?" "Yes. In the first place there is nothing in the Hebrew to show that it was what we call a whale. The word translated into both the Septuagint and the New Testament by the Greek 'Katos' means simply a sen monster; and this word was the one used by our Lord in his reference to this account of Jonah (Matthew xii., 39-41). Ho far, therefore, as the Hebrew or Greek words are con-cerned the fish may have been a whale, a shark, a sea serpent or any other large monster of the deep. Hence, there is nothing incredible in the statement that Jonah, upon being thrown into the sea, was quickly overtaken by a sea monster and swallowed without suffering any mutilation, providing the monster was large enough. It is wellknown that the waters through which a vessel in sailing from Joppa to any Spanish port must pass were frequented. in early times, by a species of shark called sea-dog, having a throat large French naturalist. Lacepede, in his 'Histoire des Poissons, states that seadogs have a lower jaw of nearly six feet in semi-circular extent; which enables us sand population, Vancouver fewer still, to understand how they can swallow entire animals as large er larger than ourgist, in his 'Manual of Natural History, waterways between them feel the keels is authority for the additional facts that of but few vessels-of none at all, ex- sea-dogs have been taken weighing five cept the smallest craft, outside the main tons, and that a horse has been found channels. It would be hard to imagine whole in the stomach of a sea-dog. And a more difficult region to police, or a Pliny, 50 A. D., gives an account of fairer field for smugglers. Old London the skeleton of a sea monster forty feet itself has scarcely a greater tangle of long, whose ribs were higher than those crooked and confusing thoroughfares of an Indian elephant.
