MAY MINORS.

Leaves From the Notebook of Chronicle Reporters.

The petit jury has been excused until Thursday.

Tomorrow being Decoration Day no paper will be issued.

The Wasco warehouse received 160 sacks of wool yesterday.

Don't forget that the Regulator will run every day. The water can't get too high for the D. P. & A. N. Co.

Patrons living in the flooded district can have their papers delivered at their temporary residences by making them known.

The river raised here from 9 o'clock last night until 5 this morning eight-tenths of a foot, and stood at 50.7 at 8 o'clock.

Has anyone lost them? A small white mare, branded A on left shoulder, and brown mare, weight about 1,000, branded 21 on left hip.

And Winans reports the loss of another fish wheel yesterday. This makes four gone out, but if he can save the other three he will be able to recoup his losses before fall.

The ladies who were to serve strawberry shortcake at the M. E. church tomorrow night deem it advisable to postpone it until some further date, of which due notice will be given.

Three men came over the Barlow road from Lebanon, arriving in Wamic last Saturday. They report the snow as covering the road for about 14 miles, and its greatest depth about 12 feet.

Twenty men went up yesterday afternoon to Taffe's fishery to assist in protecting the icehouse and fish stored therein as well as to help in preventing the destruction of other property.

The Umatilla house bus has been brought into use in conveying passengers to and from the Regulator, which is now making its landings near the Wasco warehouse. It looks like old times.

The water commenced coming into Union street at the Columbia hotel yesterday evening at 6 o'clock. At that hour the shops and all that section were in the water to a depth of 18 inches.

There is a passenger train at the mess house, also Superintendent Borie's special. A telephone message was sent down for an engine and all the cabooses and passenger coaches available. The passengers will have to walk nearly a mile to make the portage, and may be in at any time. LATER—As we go to press the train has just arrived.

Frank Williams, arrested a few weeks ago for burglarizing Blowers & Co.'s store at Hood River, was indicted today, waived time, plead guilty and was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary.

The water has reached a point considerably higher than the electric light works, and is only kept out by the cement walls. It cannot stand a great deal more, and the lights may be shut off at any moment.

There have been various rumors that the Regulator will be taken off her route. There is nothing in it. She will run every day, and if the water gets high enough she may run down the railroad track, but she will never quit.

The contest case of Robert Childs against William Floyd has been before the land office here for three or four days, but on account of the district court being in session, it has been adjourned over until June 25th. This case will determine some very intricate questions that have never yet been up for adjudication under the act of Sept. 29th, 1890.

The body of Hayes was buried where found. The coroner's jury it seems were satisfied from the examination made by doctors, that the wound in the groin was several days old, and that instead of ranging upward it went nearly straight through. The wound on the back of the head was much more recent than the other, and as Hayes had been begging the boys to kill him it is probable he took his own life.

Unless the unforeseen happens and the Columbia goes back to her bed, the berry growers of Hood River will suffer severe loss. The frost took the earlier berries in places, but with anything like the usual prices she would have shipped berries of the probable value of $60,000. It may be possible that arrangements will be made for handling them by the Regulator which could be done easily if the U. P. will put on a boat from Celilo to Umatilla, but unless this is done, or the river goes down, there is going to be almost a total loss of the crop.

Caught by Hand.

Mr. M. Kennedy about 10 years ago started a small carp pond and now has several of them at Wamic. Last Saturday he invited a lot of the boys and some visitors from the valley to have a fish. They drew the water partly off the pond and everybody "waded in." It was genuine fun, and several fine fish were caught, the largest weighing four pounds. Besides the fish the boys caught a good ducking and slathers of mud.

Memorial Services.

Through inadvertence mention was not made in our columns yesterday of the memorial services held in the Methodist church Sunday night. The services were well attended, the church being filled to its utmost capacity. Members of the G. A. R., W. R. C. and O. N. G. were present. The discourse by Rev. J. Whisler is pronounced by all who heard him to be the finest address they had ever heard on the occasion.

Notice.

And Yet More Water.

We are cut off from telegraphic communication on all sides, so no reports of the stage of the water at points above can be given. The following from the Oregonian of yesterday gives the only pointer concerning the water, with the exception of a dispatch from Ellensburg to the effect that while the Yakima is still high all the small streams were falling rapidly. There was a report last night that the Snake was at a standstill at Riparia and the Spokane falling, but we can find no foundation for the rumor.

"The Willamette continued to rise slowly last night. At a late hour Observer Blandford said that the river might not reach 27 feet, owing to the cool weather prevailing. Reports from Eastern Oregon and Washington showed a fall of 8 degrees in the temperature, and indications point to a continuance of such weather."

In this statement Mr. Blandford was allowing for a two-foot rise, equal to four feet here, and allowing for lapse of time should make the rise here about 18 inches more. However it is nothing but guess work now, since all knowledge of what the river is doing above us is gone. Since writing the above, we have it authentically, that at Spokane the river was at a stand.

THIS IS DEFINITE.

A telephone dispatch from Arlington, forwarding dispatch from Umatilla to the CHRONICLE, says the river rose 13 inches in the 24 hours ending at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The Locks in Danger.

Mr. George P. Morgan came up from the Cascades on the Regulator last night, for the purpose of getting up 500 or 600 sacks. The sacks were wanted so that being filled with sand, they could be used to stop any break that might occur in the dam being constructed around the head of the lock. The water when he left was within four feet of the top of the break water, on which a force of men were at work, adding four feet to its height. A dam was also being built from the railroad around by the engineer's quarters to the break water, and on around the head of the locks. Should a break occur, the entire works would be destroyed unless the immense granite heads for the gates should hold. Owing to the fact that the Union Pacific had purchased all available sacks, Mr. Morgan experienced considerable difficulty but finally found 400 which he purchased of Mr. Peters. He went down with them this morning and it is sincerely hoped that the works at the locks may be saved. It would be nothing less than a calamity for Eastern Oregon, should the locks go out.

A Moving Tale.

At an early hour this morning the water invaded First and Union streets, came through the block back of the Columbia hotel and began pouring in a stream across Court at the old Sun office. It is a busy section from the Umatilla house back on Union to above Second, and along Second to the middle of the block east of Court, and along First street. Everywhere trestles, are being made, and goods placed above the danger line, for everyone feels assured that in the section named the water will get in the buildings from a few inches to a foot or two. At 8 o'clock the water was about a foot below the Umatilla house floor, and Messrs. Sinnott & Fish began putting things in readiness for an invasion. Carpets were up, their big stock of ice moved, a false floor was put in the dining room and everything put in ship shape. Every dray, truck and wagon available is pressed into service moving goods and household effects.

Stand Together.

It is to be hoped now that the Union Pacific will put aside its petty jealousy of the D. P. & A. N. Co., and will make some arrangements for keeping the route to Portland open. From present indications it will be several weeks before the road bed is in condition for use. In the meantime if the company would get down off its high horse and attend to business, it will regain the respect of the people, will do a good stroke of business for itself, and besides do good service to its patrons. The D. P. & A. N. Co. stand ready to carry all passengers and fast freight offered, and to do it on reasonable terms. The company should open up its Washington portage and help to keep up traffic.

This is no time for back talk, for jealousies or rivalry. The people are dependent on the Regulator for communication with the outside world. The Union Pacific is in position to facilitate that communication and to aid the people. We hope that this spirit will govern it, and that it will do all it can to prevent loss to our people. Will it do it?

A Youthful Officer.

S. E. Ferris arrived from Oak Grove last night, having in charge William Wilkerson, arrested on the charge of horse stealing. He is the man supposed to have stolen the black pony from Bert Bagley. Ferris arrested him at Barlow gate, and says the only kick he has coming is that the fellow couldn't keep the road, but kept wandering around so that he had to ride forty miles out of the way. At Swift's place, while Ferris was talking to Mr. Swift concerning the thief, Jack Swift, a youngster of 12 years, overheard them, and though it was midnight, rolled out of bed and volunteered to go along and show Ferris the road. This he did, being of very material assistance, and when Ferris run across Wilkerson and told him to hold up his hands, Jack went through his pockets like a professional. Wilkerson had the horse and saddle when caught, and will visit Salem.

Observe it Properly.

As the years roll by, the manner in which Decoration Day is observed is rapidly changing. Instead of the former religious observance of the day, it is rapidly taking on the character of a Fourth of July celebration. The G. A. R. have inaugurated a fight against this, and will endeavor to have the day observed as it was originally intended. It is not a day for hilarity picnics or politics, and it is to be regretted that it is being used for such purposes. Let The Dalles tomorrow set a good example by a quiet and solemn observance of the day set apart to pay tribute to the dead.

Where They Are.

Chas. Lauer has moved into the engine room, Prinz & Nitschke to the brick school house, Crandall & Burget to Wm. Michell's, Charles Schmidt to the Masonic building, Newman into Krett's old paint shop, N. Harris and J. Hertz have part of their goods in the K. of P. hall, J. H. Cross in the old electric light building, and Fraser next door to Vause's place.
