A SOULLESS AND SENSELESS CORPORATION.

We arraign the Union Pacific Railroad 'Co., its officers and receivers, before the bar of public opinion. Running a road that has been paid for in gifts of land twice over; that owes the people now more than the original cost of the road, it has reached out under its policy of deasing yet other routes, that it may oppress the people still further, and fastened its cursed tentacles on every branch road connecting with it. It has absorbed the old O. R. & N., which was under its own management one of the best conducted, and best paying roads in the country, and it has wrecked it physically and financially, and it has accomplished this in its effort to own the citizens. The spectacle of the United States managing a railroad which it paid for once, and which it owes for again, in the interest of a company, and turning over the earnings of the road to it, and at the same time refusing, at the dictation of that company, to carry its own mails and enforce its own contracts, is a spectacle to make anarchy smile. The Union Pacific will not be in running order for a month or six weeks. Are we to receive our mails during that time, only when the managers of the railroad see fit to send them to us? Governor Pennoyer's itinerary is as follows: From Heppner to Willows by train, from Willows to Arlington, 11 miles, on foot, thence to Squally Hook by flatcar, thence by handcar, small boat and shank's mare to Rufus and from Rufus to The Dalles by the way of Wasco in a back. Taken all in all the governor had a delightful trip, for no matter whether on foot or handcar, small boat or hack, he consoled himself by pleasant introspection, knowing that he was riding in a Pullman sleeper-on the fiat plan.

Governor Moody went to Portland on the Regulator this morning. Governor Pennoyer was on the same boat and seemed to be considerably more moody than the other governor. This morning Sheriff Ward discovered that the prisoners in the corridors of the iail had cut a hole through the ceiling and were cutting the tin roof, all that stood between them and liberty. He allowed them to work at it awhile and then spoiled all their fun by locking them up in the cells. One is forced to wonder that no escapes have been made before by that route, as there was nothing but the lath, plaster and tin roof. Had the attempt been made yesterday it might have been successful.

The fill below tunnel No. 2, formerly a trestle, went out Monday morning. A section hand walking across at the time had to run for his life. The truss bridge across Mosier creek is considered unsafe.
