He admitted that the purpose of the formation of the trust was to increase the cost to the American consumer.

Senator Allen-And when you did form a trust you did advance the price of sugar to the American consumer?

Havemeyer-We did; it was an advance of about a quarter of a cent net. "And the American consumer today is paying three-eighths of a cent per pound on refined sugar more than he would be compelled to pay under a system of separate refineries?"

"Yes, sir."

"I will admit that, but anything that will wipe out the trust will wipe out the industry."

SEARLES FOLLOWED HAVEMEYER.

John A. Searles, secretary and treasurer of the American Sugar Refining Company, was the next subject of the committee's questions. He frankly admitted he had made it his business to influence legislation favorable to the sugar trust, and that for this purpose he had called upon and labored with many senators. The witness stood upon his rights, however, when asked about campaign contributions, and declined in several instances to answer questions on this subject. He declined to state the amount expended in 1892, on the ground that it was not within the province of the inquiry.

"Do you not," asked Allen, "decline to state simply because you know it was disreputable and unlawful to contribute this money?"

"No sir; I do not admit anything of the kind," replied Mr. Searles.

"Do you think it is perfectly laudable for the American Sugar Refining company to contribute large sums of money, by the thousands of dollars, for the buildings were in ruins and the public purpose of influencing legislators in this market was threatened. No full esti-

And with that understanding, and with what I believe' to be the custom, the sugar refining company made such contributions."

"Do you believe it proper for a corporation," said Senator Allen, "the value of whose stocks may be affected by national legislation, to contribute its funds to the success or defeat of one political party or the other?"

"I think, as parties are now managed, it is proper.'

"And the American Sugar Refining Company, as a company, was actuated by'a high sense of patriotic duty in contributing this money, I suppose?"

"This is a pleasant way of putting it,"

responded Mr. Searles. BRICE'S VISITS TO TERBELL.

DEFINITION OF A TENOR. Von Bulow Regarded Such a Singer as an Illness, Not a Man. As a conductor he simply worked marvels, even with an indifferent orchestra, and this is the performance he perhaps enjoyed most; he would compare his conducting to his piano forte playing, and say at the end of a con-cert, provided he was satisfied: "This is the finest Bechstein I have played on," says the Saturday Review. Bulow at orchestra rehearsals was almost as interesting as Verdi, and operatic performances-Carmen, for instanceunder his baton were the rarest treats a musician could enjoy. His connection with the operatic stage led him to the definition of a tenor, which it is difficult not to repeat: "Ein Tenor ist kein Mensch; es ist eine Krankheit. It will be remembered how some two or three years ago the German emperor in the course of a speech referred rather rudely to the "grumblers" (Norgler) at the existing regime, and advised all such to shake off the dust of the Vaterland's soil. The speech created an unusual stir in all circles, and there was a who took the hint and became known forthwith as Staubabschuttler. Bulow, who had always something to say or write, held his tongue this time. but at the first philharmonic concert he conducted in Berlin as he stepped on the platform he took out a very large handkerchief and in full view of the audience began to dust his shoes, just to show that he was not satisfied with the existing state of things.

He took it also musically out of Count Hochburg when that amiable despot had him turned out of the Berlin opera house. It was at a pianoforte recital at the Singacademie. where, by way of a prelude, Bulow just played the first few bars of Figaro's aria, "Se vuol ballare, Sig. Contino." Bulow's sarcastic vein found It is guaranteed to give perfect satisfacalso an outlet in a composition of little merit, but one by which he, strangely enough, set great store, "Humoristische Quadrille aus Motiven der Oper Benvenuto Cellini von Berlioz," a mistake not easily explained in so serious an artist and due probably to a passing

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an in-datarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
