OUR TURN NEXT.

The assassination of President Carnot was a cowardly cruel and wanton crime. He was beloved by his countrymen, and looked up to as an exceptionally strong leader. It is proper to note that his murderer is a foreigner, one who had no interest in France, and who could not speak its language. That a similar crime will be committed, or attempted here, is almost a certainty. The commission of one such crime invariably causes some crank to try to duplicate it. One result of Carnot's death will be the expulsion from France of a great number of foreigners, and that example should be followed here. Today armies are kept in this country, for the purpose of found with little windows, as it were, intimidating armed bands of Slavs and made in them, and a piece of glass Hungarians, and to prevent them from placed over the hole. Macrobius, in murdering American citizens whose only offense is that they desire to work at lief that a door should be opened for offense is that they desire to work at the spirits to pass in and out. jobs the other fellows want to control. If this government will profit by the ing woman some few years ago in Suswarning from France and instead of sex. She was gasping, and apparently bargaining with lawless foreigners, use was undergoing the last struggle in force upon them and expel them from great distress. The nurse went to the the country, it will do well. There are dying woman breathed deeply and explenty of people of the old world, who come here and make good peaceable, patriotic citizens. For such there is plenty of room, and plenty of welcome; but for the class that has colonized the ney?" coal and iron regions, who neither learn our language nor our laws, who defy the authorities and raise perrenial h-1 there is neither room nor excuse. The the rondelles removed from the heads people are to blame, for congress will take no action until it is backed up by leptic fits would acquire a virtue in the public sentiment, expressed in party platforms. Heretofore on account of the foreign vote, both old parties have been afraid to broach the subject, and in so doing both have been guilty of cowardice. The respectable foreign-born citizen is just as much opposed to the lawless element as the native-born citizen can be. His liberties, his property and his rights are just as much at stake as though he had been born here and he will vote just as quickly to stop the further coming of the lawless horde as anyone. The party that insists upon enterprising merchant, and which were the stopping of immigration generally sent back to Japan because they were and of the lawless classes particularly thought to interfere with alien contract is the party that is going to win. It law, will be interested to learn that cine the motto. What better assurance will not get the vote of the mobs of there may be fifteen hundred or per-Pennsylvania or of the Gogebic range hitles at Jackson park next year. but it will catch the vote of the American and the law-abiding foreign-born means committee recently the matter citizen. by a foreign-born anarchist.

Representative Geary has drafted a bill providing for government aid in provides that the government shall subscribe for 700,000 shares out of a total of 830,000, the value of which at par mere prejudice. At Jackson park they would be $70,000,000. It further pro- would prove of great service. The vides that the president shall appoint Japs who propel them are hardy little eight of the eleven directors, and that fellows, who can travel further in a day the government's shares shall be pro-teeted by a first mortgage on the canal. They are all intelligent, and they would find their way along tected by a first mortgage on the canal. A sinking fund is provided (in the bill) the boulevards in an easy manner and and the whole scheme is elaborately would avoid a crush. If they are worked out that the canal will pay off brought into service a blockade will all the government's interest by 1924.

It strikes us that if the government is to put up seven-eighths of the money and turn the proceeds over to the company, that it would be a stroke of busi- them will be imported. It is probable ness policy to put up the other eighth that this legal question will be at once and own it itself. It really looks as referred to Attorney Carlisle, and as he though this country had had object lessons enough in building railroads for other people, taking paper sinking funds and pretty promises for security, and that congress, especially in these times of a depleted treasury, will hesitate a long time before presenting the Nicaragua canal ring $70,000,000.

If it ever fails to benefit when the bond issue was made a few months ago, and the situation is becoming decidedly annoying to the administration. To issue more bonds would be tration. To issue more bonds would be to raise a storm of indignation, for the practice in times of peace is generally consumption (or Lung-scrofula) in its the reserve fund, gold will probably go to a premium, and once there, it will probably stay. Under the law it is the duty of the U. S. treasurer to maintain equal the "Discovery." the parity between silver and gold, but unless bonds are sold, this he cannot do.

It looks as though the bond issue was going to be forced, and if so, that our democratic friends will have their weather eye dressed in another suit of dry fir and hard wood for immediate mourning. A party with full power of delivery at the lowest rates, and hope to D. P. Thompson.

TO SECURE AMULETS.

Reason Why Primeval Men Cut Holes in the Skulls of Their Dead.

We are disposed rather to accept Dr. Broca's first suggestion than the last, and to regard trepanning among the prehistoric men as having had a therapeutic motive, says the Popular Science Monthly.

The perforation of the tomb was almost certainly intended as a door of when the dead were burned, holes were often bored or knocked in the urns that contained the ashes, for the same purpose. Some cinerary urns have been

And this seems to be both the simplest and most intelligible explanation of holepierced heads, and of the wearing of the portions removed from those heads by men and women who had not themselves been trepanned.

A MEXICAN PECULIARITY. They Never Neglect an Impecunious Rela-

"There is one peculiarity about the Mexicans in their social and family relations which I doubt to exist among any other people on the globe," said a resident of Chihunhua, Merdeo, recent ly. "While it is true that a majority of those occupying the highest social and political positions in the country are de-scendants of the proud old aristo-ratio Spaniards, yet it is equally true that a great many others of wealth and acknowledged leadership have come up from the lower ranks by some sudden turn of the wheel of fortune or cruption of revolution. Unlike the American. the Mexican who acquires fame and fortune never forgets or neglects his poor kin, and, anlike the American again, he treats his more impecunious relatives in a queer way. He takes them into his household as servants, giving to them the most menial service, but never denying the relationship or at empting to conceal it. I know of many instances where a rich Mexican's mothe is his cook, his dister his house girl and his father or brother his butler. The American would either disown them altogether or put them on an equal footing with himself. In this regard, you must admit, the democracy of Mexico is purer than that so loudly boasted of
