

A TIRED WOMAN,
just as much as a sick and ailing one, needs Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. That builds up, strengthens, and invigorates the entire female system. It regulates and promotes all the proper functions of womanhood, improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, melancholy and nervousness, brings refreshing sleep, and restores health and strength.

It's a powerful restorative tonic and soothing nerve, made especially for woman's needs, and the only guaranteed remedy for woman's weaknesses and ailments. In all "female complaints" and irregularities, if it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.

A great many medicines "relieve" Catarrh in the Head. That means that it's driven from the head into the throat and lungs. But, by its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy perfectly and permanently cures.

CURIOUS PLANT PROPAGATION.
How Branches Are Removed from the Parent Stem.

Some very curious processes for propagation are practiced at the public gardens. One consists in cutting with a knife a ring around a branch of a plant. One might imagine, says the Washington Star, that the intention was to kill the branch, but such is by no means the object in view. The cut having been made, a piece of wet moss is wrapped and tied around the branch at that point. Beneath this protection the sap exudes from the wound, and little rootlets are developed. After a few days the branch is cut away from the parent stem, being then itself a complete plant, with roots, all ready to put in a pot.

This plan is adopted with plants of slow growth, because one plant may thus be split up into half a dozen or more of good size, instead of waiting for a seedling or little slip to develop. A modification of the same process consists in placing a small pot full of earth around the cut place on the branch, fastening it in position. When roots have developed the branch is cut off just below the pot, and a new plant is produced. If the gardener chooses to take the trouble he can make a separate plant out of every bud on a tree. In fact, an eminent botanist has said that every tree is a village, each bud being an individual.

The Oldest Curse.
According to Scripture, curses were known from the beginning of man. But the earliest curse the world has authentic record of is found inscribed on a door-socket of King Sargon of Babylonia, 2300 B. C., in the Assyriological collection of the University of Pennsylvania. The inscription which has been translated by Dr. H. V. Hilprecht, of the university, calls down the vengeance of the gods, Bel Shamash and Ninna, upon the bold disturber of the stone.

A Quiet Debauch in China.
In China those who wish for an hour's rest or for a quiet talk with a friend can secure both by entering one of the large drinking halls, where covered cups are at once brought to them, each containing a measure of tea, whereon the waiter dexterously pours boiling water from a large kettle.

Deafness Cannot be Cured
By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

TWO OF A KIND.

Times Were Hard, But They Continued to Meet Misfortune Philosophically.

"You—you don't want any coal carried up to-day?" he queried, as he put his head into a lawyer's office on Griswold street the other day, says the Detroit Free Press.

"Haven't money enough to buy a bucketful," was the doleful reply.

"I see. Don't want any copying done in a fine Italian hand, I suppose?"

"Nothing to copy but bills from creditors."

"Just so. I have been there myself. Could I do any work at your house, such as shoveling off snow, for instance?"

"No. Couldn't pay you if you did."

"Exactly. We are all hard up this winter. Any bills to collect?"

"Not a one."

"Neither have I, and that's where we are fortunate. I'll wash those windows for a quarter."

"Couldn't think of it."

"Let 'em go until next summer, eh; or do it yourself and save the coin? I understand the situation. Got any pressing creditors?"

"About fifty."

"I might call upon the most persistent and obdurate of them and make excuses for you."

"No; it's no use."

"No chance to hawk on to a few thousands and skip?"

"Not a chance."

"Don't want a fire at your house to get the insurance?"

"My insurance has run out."

"Say, old man, this is a tough, cold world, ain't she?" laughed the tramp.

"You bet!"

"But we've got sand and will come out on top in the spring. If either of us earns a quarter to-day we'll whack up with the other, eh? Good-by—see you later."

A RARE INSTANCE.

One Policeman Who Was Capable of a Humane Act.

Policemen perform many unofficial acts which prove that the proverbial stony heart does not always beat under brass buttons. A pleasing instance is thus narrated by a writer in the Boston Saturday Gazette:

A poorly dressed and feeble old woman was coming down one of the side streets on the Back Bay, carefully balancing a basket on her head. Suddenly a treacherous bit of ice, or an inequality in the pavement, caused her to miss her footing, and in striving to regain it the basket was thrown to the ground and its contents, a quantity of small wares, flew in every direction.

Almost before she had time to realize the catastrophe, a policeman, who had been a spectator of the scene from the opposite corner, came hastening across the street, and with a word or two of condolence began deftly to collect the scattered spoils, pieces of tape and thimbles.

Several of the spoils had rolled into the gutter and were rendered worthless by their contact with the mud, and my knight of the brass buttons noticed the rueful glance cast upon them by their owner.

When the last of the articles had been restored to the basket, and he had assisted her to raise it to her head, he took a piece of silver from his pocket, slipped it into her hand, and, with a pleasant little nod in return for the voluminous blessings showered upon him, sauntered slowly back to his post.

This kindly act was certainly not done for effect, for the street was deserted at the time, and I was screened from view by the curtains of the window.

A PETRIIFIED DUCHESS.

The Wonderful Statue Possessed by a Strassburg Artist.

The petrified woman recently found in one of the caves which were used as burial places when Strassburg (Germany) was plague-stricken in the year 1094 is now believed to be Duchess Adelheid, the aunt of Frederick Barbarossa. The petrification, which has the appearance of being a beautiful marble statue, is only perfect from the waist up. It was found in a rude wooden coffin, which had been deposited in the cave, among thousands of human skulls and other remains. When the workmen opened the coffin they found that it had been filled with quicklime or some other preparation, which strongly resembled common mortar.

Curious to know who had been thus carefully put away among the heaps of dead they broke into the plaster encasement and found the wonderful petrified head and bust above alluded to. Contrary to the expectations of the sightseers, the features did not crumble away on exposure to the air, but remained clear cut, lifelike and unaltered. About the head were two braids of golden hair, and across the breast both hands had been carefully folded. The face is said to be one of great beauty, every feature exhibiting intelligence and culture. This wonderful petrification is now in the studio of Hasley Bauer, a well-known Strassburg artist.

Peppermint Farms.

There are two places in the United States where the cultivation of the peppermint plant is one of the leading industries. The older of these places is in Wayne county, New York, but for a quarter of a century the business has been a well-known one in St. Joseph county, Michigan. In the latter place a farm of about four hundred acres is planted with the mint each year and alternated with clover to keep up the strength of the soil. The cultivation of the crop requires more than ordinary care. From the time the mint appears above the ground it is constantly cultivated and hoed to keep it free from weeds, which are the bane of the peppermint-grower's existence. Two or three crops are gathered from each planting. The first and second crops are the best, and twenty pounds of oil to the acre is considered a good yield. The third crop is very apt to be weedy, and the yield only about ten pounds to the acre.

THE DALLES

Wasco County, Oregon,

The Gate City of the Inland Empire is situated at the head of navigation on the Middle Columbia, and is a thriving, prosperous city.

ITS TERRITORY.

It is the supply city for an extensive and rich agricultural and grazing country, its trade reaching as far south as Summer Lake, a distance of over two hundred miles.

The Largest Wool Market.

The rich grazing country along the eastern slope of the Cascades furnishes pasture for thousands of sheep, the wool from which finds market here.

The Dalles is the largest original wool shipping point in America, about 5,000,000 pounds being shipped last year.

ITS PRODUCTS.

The salmon fisheries are the finest on the Columbia, yielding this year a revenue of thousands of dollars, which will be more than doubled in the near future.

The products of the beautiful Klickitat valley find market here, and the country south and east has this year filled the warehouses, and all available storage places to overflowing with their products.

ITS WEALTH.

It is the richest city of its size on the coast and its money is scattered over and is being used to develop more farming country than is tributary to any other city in Eastern Oregon.

Its situation is unsurpassed. Its climate delightful. Its possibilities incalculable. Its resources unlimited. And on these other stories she rests.

Gentlemen: On arriving home last week, I found all well and anxiously awaiting. Our little girl, eight and one-half years old, who had wasted away to 38 pounds, is now well, strong and vigorous, and well fleshed up. S. B. Cough Cure has done its work well. Both of the children like it. Your S. B. Cough Cure has cured and kept away all hoarseness from me. So give it to every one, with greetings for all. Wishing you prosperity, we are Yours, Mr. & Mrs. J. F. Ford.

If you wish to feel fresh and cheerful, and ready for the Spring's work, cleanse your system with the Headache and Liver Cure, by taking two or three doses each week.
