

IN GLASS.

That's the way Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets come. And it's a more important point than you think. It keeps them always fresh and reliable, unlike the ordinary pills in cheap wooden or pasteboard boxes.

They're put up in a better way, and they act in a better way, than the huge, old-fashioned pills. No gripping, no violence, no reaction afterward that sometimes leaves you worse off than before. In that way, they cure permanently. Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach, and bowels are prevented, relieved, and cured.

They're tiny, sugar-coated granules, a compound of refined and concentrated vegetable extracts—the smallest in size, the easiest to take, and cheapest pill you can buy, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned. You pay only for the good you get. There's nothing likely to be "just as good."

He Could Throw Some.

"Several years ago," remarked a citizen of New Haven, Conn., recently, "I knew a man who lived on the outskirts of my town who could throw a stone with more accuracy of aim than is displayed by most sportsmen with a rifle. The man was a perfect giant physically. He was a good deal of a hunter, using stones as his only weapon to bring down the game. He had a large leather pouch attached to one side of his coat, in which he always carried a good supply of carefully selected missiles. With these he bagged every year no small quantity of game, such as quail, rabbits and squirrels. He could kill a bird on the wing or a rabbit at full speed almost as easily as at rest. One of his favorite methods for displaying his skill was to set up a scythe blade with the edge toward him at a distance of about one hundred feet, and by throwing potatoes against the edge cut them in half. He could almost exactly halve two out of every three potatoes he threw."

Quenched Their Ardor.

A fire engine was recently the means of putting a sudden stop to a duel in Germany. Two physicians quarreled and arranged for a meeting with pistols. The village chief magistrate heard of the proposed duel. He informed the firemen, and together, drawing a machine, they proceeded to the scene of the encounter. Just as the seconds had stepped off the distance a heavy stream of water struck one of the physicians, and a moment later the second doctor was also drenched to the skin. The would-be fighters, in their dripping clothes, looked so ridiculous that they both burst out laughing, shook hands and returned to their homes, thanking the ingenious mayor for his intervention.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

Personnel and Powers of Great Britain's Unpopular Legislative Branch.

The English house of lords (or peers) consists of the whole peerage of England and of certain representatives of the peerages of Scotland and Ireland; but, according to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, many of these last have also English titles which give them seats in the house. As, for instance, the duke of Buccleuch, a Scotch peer, sits as earl of Doncaster, and the duke of Leinster, an Irish peer, as Viscount Leinster. According to the latest official list, exclusive of twelve minors and one baron, whose claim is not established, the present house of lords is composed as follows: Five princes of the blood, two archbishops, twenty-one dukes, twenty-two marquises, one hundred and fifteen earls, twenty-five viscounts, twenty-four bishops, three hundred and four barons, sixteen Scottish representative peers elected for each parliament, and twenty-eight Irish representative peers elected for life. In all, five hundred and sixty. All peerages are now hereditary, but until 1856 there were occasional creations of life peerages. In that year, however, it was decided that such peers could not sit in the house, and since then none have been made. Peerages are lost by attainder for high treason, and an attainder peerage can only be restored by act of parliament—not by the crown. The house of lords may originate legislation of all kinds except money bills, which must come from the house of commons. The former has also a veto power upon the legislation of the latter, and can throw out any bill from the lower house, no matter how large a majority it has received there. It is this veto power which, more than any and everything else, makes the house of lords unpopular with the great mass of voters.

STRANGE DISCOVERY IN AFRICA.

Balzac's Dressing Gown in the Wardrobe of the King of Dahomey.

Unlooked-for things have been found in unlikely places, says the Illustrated London News, but there has probably been no discovery more remarkable than that of Balzac's dressing gown in the possession of the king of Dahomey. Monarchs are rarely literary, and his dusky majesty, one would think, was the very last of them to have set much value upon the personal relic of a novelist, however distinguished. Nevertheless, the French found it in the royal apartment at Abomey. There were some ingenious theories founded upon this circumstance. One of the amazons, it was thought, might have been a novel reader, and had sent to Paris to secure the interesting memento, and, on the affair coming to the knowledge of her sovereign, had hastened to say she had purchased it for his own shoulders. For, indeed, he always wore it upon state occasions. It was not a dressing gown, such as literary persons in this country are wont to wear (of second-class flannel worn at the edges), but of purple velvet embroidered with gold. As a matter of fact, it had been given to Balzac by some of his admirers and after his death had been bought by a dealer in curiosities, who had placed it, with other showy articles, on the West African market. It is sad to think how a plain tale will "put down"—that is, destroy the materials of a fine romance.

STOPPED THE DUEL.

The Cool Man Objected to Being Hiddled with One Bullet.

"Down in my neighborhood, once upon a time," said Congressman John Allen, of Mississippi, recently, "there was bad feeling between two lawyers. A challenge was sent and duly acknowledged. The hour was appointed and the two men met in a secluded spot. One of them was a great sufferer from St. Vitus' dance, the other was cool and collected. As they faced each other, the afflicted man began to tremble from head to foot, while his pistol described an arc with varying up and down strokes. His opponent stood firm as a rock, waiting for the signal to fire. Before it came, however, he laid his pistol on the ground, walked into the woods and cut a limb of a tree, with a fork in the end of it. This he brought back and stuck in the ground in front of his antagonist. Then, turning to the second, he said: 'I must request you to ask your principal to rest his pistol in that fork.' 'What for?' asked his opponent's second. 'Well,' replied the other, 'I have no objection to running the risk of one shot, but I certainly do decline having one bullet make a honeycomb of me. If that man was to shoot while his hand is shaking the way it is now, he would fill me full of holes at his first shot! This was too much for the seconds, and, by mutual agreement, a truce was patched up and no shots were exchanged."

SLEEPLESS LARVAE.

Voracity of the Young of Some of the Vegetable Feeders.

Prof. Lintner, New York's state entomologist, is of the opinion that the larvae stage of many species of insects is one of the sleepless activity, the grub feeding incessantly from the "moment of its birth." He says that it is doubtful if some species ever sleep or take a moment's rest. The voraciousness and rapid growth of these creatures may be better understood by making a statement of two facts: A certain flesh-feeding larva, (which simply means the infant state of a carrion beetle whose scientific name would be of no particular interest, says the St. Louis Republic) will consume in twenty-four hours two hundred times his own weight—a parallel to which, in the human race, would be an infant consuming one thousand five hundred pounds of nutriment on the first day of its existence! There are vegetable feeders—caterpillars—which, during their progress to maturity, increase in size ten thousand during the first thirty days of their lives. To equal this remarkable growth a mature man would weigh scarcely less than fifty tons!

THE DALLES

Wasco County, Oregon,

The Gate City of the Inland Empire is situated at the head of navigation on the Middle Columbia, and is a thriving, prosperous city.

ITS TERRITORY.

It is the supply city for an extensive and rich agricultural and grazing country, its trade reaching as far south as Summer Lake, a distance of over two hundred miles.

The Largest Wool Market.

The rich grazing country along the eastern slope of the Cascades furnishes pasture for thousands of sheep, the wool from which finds market here.

The Dalles is the largest original wool shipping point in America, about 5,000,000 pounds being shipped last year.

ITS PRODUCTS.

The salmon fisheries are the finest on the Columbia, yielding this year a revenue of thousands of dollars, which will be more than doubled in the near future.

The products of the beautiful Klickitat valley find market here, and the country south and east has this year filled the warehouses, and all available storage places overflowing with their products.

ITS WEALTH.

It is the richest city of its size on the coast and its money is scattered over and is being used to develop more farming country than is tributary to any other city in Eastern Oregon.

Its situation is unsurpassed. Its climate delightful. Its possibilities incalculable. Its resources unlimited. And on these former statements the latter ones

The Dalles Daily and Weekly Chronicle.

THE CHRONICLE was established for the express purpose of faithfully representing The Dalles and the surrounding country, and the satisfying effect of its mission is everywhere apparent. It now leads all other publications in Wasco, Sherman, Gilliam, a large part of Crook, Morrow and Grant counties, as well as Klickitat and other regions north of The Dalles; hence it is the best medium for advertisers in the Inland Empire.

The DAILY CHRONICLE is published every evening in the week Sundays excepted at $6.00 per annum. The WEEKLY CHRONICLE on Fridays of each week at $1.50 per annum.
