JULY JINGLINGS.

Leaves From the Notebook of Chronicle Reporters.

The case of Conroy against Harris is called for trial this afternoon.

Hood River will have a very heavy apple crop this year; enough to make even for the loss of the berry crop.

One of the notable things done on the Fourth at Portland, was the opening of the Burnside street bridge to travel.

The steamer Irma did not make the round trip yesterday but sent the mails through last night from Mosier by wagon.

Elder J. W. Jenkins will preach at Endersby Saturday evening, July 7th, and at Dufur Sunday following, both morning and evening.

Telegrams were received here yesterday from Ellensburg and Yakima, inquiring concerning the possibility of getting freight up by boat from Portland.

A rumor was in circulation today to the effect that the strike was ordered off the U. P. The rumor probably came up on the Baker, as there was nothing in it.

School Superintendent Shelley has been trying to perfect arrangements for holding a joint teachers' institute with Sherman county, but so far has been unable to do so.

Sheriff John Haily of Pendleton arrived by way of Walla Walla on the Spokane last night, bringing two prisoners for the penitentiary and an insane person bound for the asylum.

A large gang of laborers are at work on the trestle across Mill Creek. A pile driver is being built and a donkey engine put in place to run it.

The Steam fire engine has been at work all day, pumping the water out of the vacant lots, on the corner of First and Washington. The water is of a brownish green color, and slightly over-ripe.

The recorder's court furnishes a remarkable item this morning, and that is, that two individuals who are entire strangers to each other were arrested yesterday, charged with being drunk and disorderly, and each of them bore the euphonious cognomen of John Doe.

The arguments in the Maloney-Snelling case were completed this morning, Judge Bennett making a masterly argument for the defense, followed by Mr. Huntington, who closed for the state, and presented a pretty strong aggregation of facts. The case went to the jury shortly after 11 o'clock.

The commissioners court is in session, but up to date have transacted but little business that will make a news item. A large number of petitions have been read first time and await further action.

The salmon industry is getting another black eye because the canners are unable to get tin. There is an abundance of cans manufactured, but no tops for them, and at present no prospect of getting them.

This is one of those days when the highly prized item crawls off in the shade and refuses to come out. The discouraged reporter vainly whips his favorite pools and also his brains, without getting a rise and then he sits wearily down and in response to the devil's call for copy gets an inspiration and dashes off a whole line to the effect that "now is a good time to subscribe."

A. O. U. W. Installation.

The following officers were installed in Temple Lodge, No. 3. A. O. U. W., last night: P. M. W., J. H. Blakely; M. W., C. E. Stephens; Foreman, J. Simonson; Overseer, G. C. Eshelman; Financier, W. S. Myers; Recorder, T. M. Joles; Receiver, J. A. McArthur; Guide, B. Eaton; I. W., G. W. Runyon; O. W., D. C. Herrin.

Burned to Death.

By the burning of a house the morning of July 4th at Wallula an old man was horribly burned and two little children, asleep when the fire broke out, were burned to a crisp. Our informant, who came down on the Spokane yesterday, was unable to learn the names of the unfortunates. A purse was raised for the old gentleman, and he was sent to the hospital at Wallula.

Come Out.

Will everyone who came out to Second and Court street last Friday evening, please come again at the same hour (half past eight) tonight? I want to talk to you a little while.

BLANCHE ROTHECK.

McNeil Assumes Control of the O. R. & N. Co.

Major E. McNeil, who was appointed receiver of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company by Judge Bellinger, June 25th, assumed the duties of his office. Owing to delay in receipt of documents from the East, caused by interruption to the mail service, the order of the court was not entered until Tuesday evening. Yesterday morning he filed his official bond in the sum of $100,000, with Messrs. H. W. Corbett and Henry Failing as sureties, and qualified as receiver.

Immediately after, Receiver McNeil made a demand on Mr. Baxter, general superintendent of the Union Pacific, for the books and property of the O. R. & N. Co. They were at once turned over to him. He then issued a general order to all officers, agents and employes connected with the O. R. & N. property, continuing them in the same positions, with the same authorities and duties as heretofore.

Some new offices had to be created. Mr. E. S. Benson was appointed general auditor. Mr. Benson has been long in the railway service as auditor, and was with Mr. McNeil on the Iowa Central railroad. He is en route to Portland, and would have been here before now had he not been delayed by the strike. He brings with him a force of clerks from Omaha, who have been employed there on O. R. & N. accounts. It is expected that they will arrive and the office be opened in a day or two.

Mr. G. E. Withington, cashier of the First National bank of this city, was appointed treasurer, and the First National bank will handle the funds.

Mr. W. H. Kennedy was appointed chief engineer in charge of construction, and will have immediate supervision of the work of repairs. Mr. Kennedy was formerly chief engineer of the road, is thoroughly competent, and his familiarity with the road and the country render him peculiarly fitted for the position.

Mr. Drake C. O'Reilly, who has for a long time been in the office of Mr. B. Campbell, general freight agent of the Union Pacific, has been appointed assistant general freight agent, and will have immediate charge of the traffic of the water lines.

Mr. McNeil assumes personal management of the property, and will have his office in the Worcester block. The work of opening the line will be pushed with all possible vigor. Engineer Kennedy leaves this morning with a corps of assistants and will prosecute the work of repairs at every available point.

Market Report.

FRIDAY, July 6th—The interrupted business conditions that have prevailed for the past few weeks, on account of the high water, have again assumed their former activity. Interior dealers are ordering for the purpose of replenishing their depleted stocks and our merchants are brisk with business. The market is well stocked and all orders are promptly filled. Prices are nominally unchanged in dry goods and groceries.

The provision and fruit market is very well supplied and is favorable to the buyer.

Produce of all kinds is plentiful. Old potatoes are practically out of market; new are selling at one and three quarter cents per pound; peas, beans and other vegetables are in good supply with free selling.

The poultry and egg demand continues steady. Young fowls for broiling are quoted at $2 to $2.25 per dozen; old at $2.50 to $3. There is no change in the egg supply or egg market.

The season is too early to make quotations on grain. The great strike on the railroads has demoralized the commercial centers and the markets are lifeless. The latest reports from the old world indicate a full harvest and the world's supply will be equal to, if not larger, than last year. In the face of the present outlook buyers for the season are quite shy and look on the future with distrust. Foreign markets are in no healthier condition than they were last year at this time. In America, estimates of the probable yearly product indicate an increase of 100,000,000 to 150,000,000 bushels over 1893, making a product of 535,000,000 bushels in the aggregate for 1894. After deducting the amount necessary for home consumption 325,000,000 bushels, there would be a surplus of 210,000,000 bushels for export. In addition to the stock now being carried over into this year's supply, taking into consideration what is now before us in the breadstuff line, the future outlook for active markets and remunerative prices is none too encouraging to the producer.

The wool market is nominally lifeless. Some sales have been made on the free wool basis.

It Was Dead Cold.

Dr. Charles Adams is never quite so happy as when he can make some practical joke work on someone about French & Co.'s bank. Yesterday afternoon he had completed arrangements for going to Antelope this morning. Along toward evening Deputy Sheriff Phirman, being out after jurymen, served a summons on the doctor.

"But," said he, "I can't go. I have made arrangements for going to Antelope in the morning, and I must go."

"That's all right," said Phirman, "but I think you're fooling me, and I guess I'll have to keep you."

"Indeed I ain't," said Adams, "and if you'll go with me up to French's, I'll prove it to you." And so they went to the bank, and of course the first man in sight was Virgil Bolton. Then Adams spoke up saying:

"Virgil, I have been telling Phirman that I had arranged to go to Antelope in the morning, but he insists on holding me on the jury and thinks I am trying to fool him. You know all about it, so will you just give him the benefit of your knowledge?"

"Of course I know all about it," replied Virgil, "and the truth is, Mr. Phirman, I would stand in on any average occasion to help him out, but it is every good citizen's duty to serve on a jury and not try to sneak out of it. The doctor, no doubt, thought I would help him out, but the fact is he is only fooling you."

Adams gave him one reproachful glance, and was not, for Phirman took him; and that is where Virgil played even.
