JULY JINGLINGS.

Leaves From the Notebook of Chronicle Reporters.

Pease & Mays' warehouse is again back on its foundations.

The Diamond mill has been running for some time sixteen hours a day.

Just read the ad. of A. M. Williams & Co. in this issue, and note the big reductions.

George S. Stevenson has been appointed register of the land office at Vancouver.

Mr. N. Harris received last night, and is opening today, a large stock of elegant goods. Call and see them.

The west-bound train failed to connect with the boat again this morning, being detained for some reason yet reporter wots not of.

The case of the state against Hagan was on trial before Justice Davis this afternoon. Mr. Bert Phelps representing the plaintiff. Hagan was charged with larceny from a dwelling, and was bound over to appear before the grand jury.

A tug was brought up from Portland yesterday on the cars, and will be, or was launched today in the middle Columbia. We are told this story by a gentleman who never said a word about the Baker, hence we are disposed to believe him.

The change in the temperature is properly appreciated, for the past four days have been unnecessarily hot. While a continuance of the hot spell would, no doubt, have caused damage to the wheat crop, it is thought so far little, if any injury has resulted.

The smuggling steamer Haytian Republic was to have been sold by the U. S. marshal Tuesday, but that gentleman announced he would not take a bid for less than $20,000; and attorneys for parties claiming the old hulk warning people not to buy, the bidders were not visible and so the sale was postponed.

Guy Southwell, who was arrested for shooting a horse belonging to an Indian, a few days ago, had his trial before Justice Davis yesterday afternoon. The evidence was not sufficient to warrant his being placed under bonds, the Indian failing to identify him as the person doing the shooting.

The big scow, Interstate, was anchored at the foot of Union street yesterday afternoon and the engine and pile driver built for repairing the Mill creek trestle, were put on board and taken below this morning. There was quite a crowd watching the operation, as the engine pulled itself along the track built for it, and strange to say, there were but few who had any suggestions to make by following which the job could have been performed more quickly.

From Col. Eddy, who came down from Pendleton yesterday morning we learn that quite an extensive fire occurred at that place Tuesday night. A two story building adjoining the East Oregonian building on the east, and occupied as a saloon, caught fire about 10 o'clock and with several adjoining buildings was totally destroyed. For awhile it looked as though the East Oregonian building would have to go but hard and persistent work saved it. We congratulate Brother Jackson on his good fortune.

And so They Married.

Yesterday evening a gentleman entered the county clerk's office as it was about to close, and after a few pertinent questions, proceeded to buy the county clerk's consent to his getting married. The lady he proposed to marry accompanied him, and, like Barkis, seemed willin'. Mr. Kelsay forthwith made out the document, and the two whose hearts beat in rhythmic unison, started out to find some one to tie the knot. Mr. Kelsay declining to do so though urgently requested. They had scarcely left the courthouse door when they met Judge Blakeley, who, with becoming diffidence, it being his first case, consented to swear them in. The party adjourned to the clerk's office, and there, as they joined hands, the judge pronounced them man and wife. The gentleman's name is D. P. Woodward, and the lady's was written in the license C. C. Edmonson.

We wish to add, without any charge for it, that for dignity, neatness and celerity in performing the marriage ceremony, Judge Blakeley is pronounced by all present on this occasion as without a peer.

W. H. Nelson, who is in the drug business at Kingville, Mo., has so much confidence in Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy that he warrants every bottle and offers to refund the money to any customer who is not satisfied after using it. Mr. Nelson takes no risk in doing this because the remedy is a certain cure for the diseases for which it is intended and he knows it. It is for sale by Blakeley & Houghton.

RETURNING TO WORK

AND LOCAL STRIKES ARE BEING DECLARED OFF.

Judge Ross Sentences Haworth and Engineer Kelley to Eight Months in the County Jail.

At the Pullman carshops yesterday the first break occurred in the ranks of the strikers, one hundred Hollanders going back to work on the tracks.

At Logan, Ohio, the local Railway Union held a meeting yesterday and declared the local strike off.

At McKeesport the strike against the National Tube Works, which has lasted for nine weeks, was declared off yesterday.

Judge Ross, of the federal court at Los Angeles, yesterday sentenced John Haworth and Engineer Martin Kelley to eight months in the county jail for contempt of court in interfering with trains carrying the mails.

General Hart, attorney for Knox and others charged with wrecking the train at Sacramento, played it low down on the Southern Pacific. Finding the road was going to send out a train, he had all the switchmen served with subpoenas to attend the preliminary examination at Woodland, leaving the road helpless. About 150 men returned to work at the Sacramento shops yesterday.

Debs, Howard, Kelcher and Rogers, in jail at Chicago, are evidently pleased with that fact. They are getting a rest, and agree with the country in believing they need it.

Vice-president Howard of the American Railway Union in an interview yesterday, said: "This thing is going to be a test case, and we are gathering evidence for the coming trial. There is a letter," said he, "that will be a valuable piece of evidence in our favor. This letter tells of evidence that will prove that most of the freight cars that were burned in Chicago were burned by two men in the employ of the Railway Managers' Association, and the cars were burned for the purpose of creating a sentiment against the American Railway Union. The railway managers paid these two men $200 down, and they were to receive $200 more when the job was done."

"This is not all the evidence we have by any means," continued Howard. "We further have positive evidence that the men who led the mob of 5000 men at Blue Island were Pinkerton men, and that these men were employed by the railroads."

What a Cannon Ball Can Do.

In dwelling upon the wonderful power of the guns of the Indians, Albert Franklin Matthews, in an article on "The Evolution of a Battleship," in the Century for July, gives illustrations from the recent Chilian civil war, showing the effectiveness of the smaller sizes of breech-loading rifle guns.

A shot weighing 250 pounds from an 8-inch gun of Fort Valdivia, in Valparaiso harbor, struck the cruiser Blanco Encalada above the armor belt, passed through the thin steel plate on the side, went through the captain's cabin, took the pillow from under his head, dropped his head on the mattress with a thump, but without injuring a hair, passed through the open door into the mess-room, where it struck the floor, and then glanced to the ceiling. Then it went through a wooden bulkhead one inch thick into a room 25x42 feet where forty men were sleeping in hammocks. It killed six of them outright, and wounded six others, three of whom died, after which it passed through a steel bulkhead five inches thick, and ended its course by striking a battery outside, in which it made a dent nearly two inches deep. It was filled with sand. Had it released deadly gases no one knows what damage it might have done.

A 450-pound missile from a 10-inch gun in the same fort struck the same vessel on its 8-inch armor. It hit square on a bolt. The shell did not pierce the armor, but burst outside the vessel. It drove the bolt clear through, and in its flight the bolt struck an 8-inch gun, completely disabling it. Such is the power of the smaller-sized guns.

Mazama Day.

"This morning the weather was not propitious for our friends the Mazamas and Mazamaresses, for the old West Wind was up and a hustling, and had taken possession of the mountain before the cliff-climbers stuck their inquisitive noses out from under their blankets. It was disappointing, and we feel sorry for the whole crowd. It is not nice, even for a Mazama who has set his heart on ascending a mountain to rise betimes only to have the untamed zephyr toy with his whiskers and interfere with his intentions. A heavy black cloud enveloped the mountain at sunrise, and from all appearances not only the wind, but also rain or snow prevails there. Even should this not be the case the day is a most unsatisfactory one, for the mountain is beclouded and should the ascent be made nothing could be seen. With the first clear weather the trip will be made so that for a day or two old Hood will be worth watching for the pillar of smoke by day or the red fire at night. The Oregonian says some of the party have taken Yakima cigars with them; if so, the fact will be known to the nose long before the smoke is visible.

Since writing the above, which was done the first thing this morning, the weather conditions have changed somewhat. The clouds disappeared about 9:30 but the wind was fresh here all day, and undoubtedly blew a gale at Mt. Hood. Besides, as the ascent is nearly always begun early in the morning, it is not probable that the start was made today, the weather clearing up too late.

A horse kicked H. S. Shafer, of the Freemyre House, Middleburg, N. Y., on the knee, which laid him up in bed and caused the knee joint to become stiff. A friend recommended him to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which he did, and in two days was able to be around. Mr. Shafer has recommended it to many a bruise or sprain. This same remedy is also famous for its cures of rheumatism. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton.
