

A DISTURBANCE isn't what you want, if your stomach and bowels are irregular. That's about all you get, though, with the ordinary pill. It may relieve you for the moment, but you're usually in a worse state afterward than before.

This is just where Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets do most good. They act in an easy and natural way, very different from the huge, old-fashioned pills. They're not only pleasant, but there's no reaction afterward, and their help lasts. One little sugar-coated Pellet for a gentle laxative or corrective—three for a cathartic. Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, Dizziness, Sick and Bilious Headaches, are promptly relieved and cured.

They're the smallest, the easiest to take—and the cheapest pill you can buy, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned.

You pay only for the good you get. It won't do to experiment with Catarrh. There's the constant danger of driving it to the lungs. You can have a perfect and permanent cure with Dr. Sage's Remedy.

A quaint custom, which has been practiced for centuries, still prevails in Holborn, England. The time of night is hourly shouted by the watchman, somewhat in this style: "Past one o'clock, and a cold, wet morning."

Last June, Dick Crawford brought his twelve months old child, suffering from infantile diarrhoea, to me. It had been weaned at four months old and being sickly everything ran through it like water through a sieve. I give it the usual treatment in such cases, but without benefit. The child kept growing thinner until it weighed but little more than when born, or perhaps ten pounds. I then started the father to giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Before one bottle of the 25 cent size had been used, a marked improvement was seen and its continued use cured the child. Its weakness and puny constitution disappeared and its father and myself believe the child's life was saved by this remedy. V. T. MARLOW, M. Deafness Cannot be Cured
By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O. And though Sir Jack has skinny arms, And legs as thin as pheasants, How could one blame Miss Eleanor, Who much admires his presents.

No woman has any real admiration for a man's presence unless the man has a good physique—legs and arms well filled out. You can't be "well-looking" if you suffer from any of the diseases caused by a disordered liver or impure blood—dyspepsia, biliousness and scrofulous affections. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a medicine that cures these cases. It's the only remedy that's guaranteed to benefit or cure, in every case, or the money refunded. Medical science stamps it "absolutely potent" as a blood-cleanser, strength restorer and flesh builder.

The worst Nasal Catarrh, no matter of how long standing, is permanently cured by Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

HANGING DESERTERS.

Tragic Incident of the War Between the United States and Mexico.
A tragic incident of Scott's campaign in Mexico was recently told by Gen. McKinstry, a veteran of that war, to a writer in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. The occurrence, as thus graphically related, has been glossed over or omitted as of no importance by the historians of that glorious march.

"At the battle of Churubusco," said the general, "we captured a large number of deserters from our service, who were duly tried by court-martial and sentenced to execution by hanging."

"The execution of one batch of these miserable creatures by Gen. Harney was somewhat tragical. In a field near the convent of Churubusco stood trees with crocheted tops, along which poles were extended, on which hides were dried by the Mexicans. On these ridge poles some sixty or seventy deserters were executed by hanging. Harney, acting as provost marshal, had charge of the execution. For this purpose an adequate number of six-mule government teams were driven and stationed under the ridge poles alternately, so that the heads of one team stood next to the tails of that adjoining it. The tailboards of the wagons were turned up and on each was placed a prisoner, with a rope around his neck fastened to the ridge poles. All this was done and the necessary preparations for execution made within sight of the castle of Chapultepec, which at that moment was being assaulted by our forces. The operations of the troops as they ascended the broken acclivity toward the heights, carrying the redoubts, and clambering over rocks, chasms and ravines, under the hottest fire of cannon and musketry, were in full view of the condemned. All were kept standing on their scaffolds (the tailboards of the army wagons) during the battle of Chapultepec (a long time to wait) over two hours. Some of the prisoners were defiant and impudent, indulging in profane and insolent language. Harney said to them: 'Don't be impudent, you rascals. As soon as you see the Mexican flag come down from Chapultepec and our flag go up you will go up, too.' This was to be the signal of their doom, and when at length the American flag was unfurled on the castle of Chapultepec a glorious and animating sight to all but these men, a big drum at one end of the scaffold boomed out, and with a yell the drivers whipped up their mules, and, driving from under the ridge poles, the miserable wretches were left suspended by the neck, with their legs dangling in the air."

Wasco County, Oregon,
The Gate City of the Inland Empire is situated at the head of navigation on the Middle Columbia, and is a thriving, prosperous city.

ITS TERRITORY.
It is the supply city for an extensive and rich agricultural and grazing country, its trade reaching as far south as Summer Lake, a distance of over two hundred miles.

The Largest Wool Market.
The rich grazing country along the eastern slope of the Cascades furnishes pasture for thousands of sheep, the wool from which finds market here.

The Dalles is the largest original wool shipping point in America, about 5,000,000 pounds being shipped last year.

ITS PRODUCTS.
The salmon fisheries are the finest on the Columbia, yielding this year a revenue of thousands of dollars, which will be more than doubled in the near future.

The products of the beautiful Klickitat valley find market here, and the country south and east has this year filled the warehouses, and all available storage places to overflowing with their products.

It is the richest city of its size on the coast and its money is scattered over and is being used to develop more farming country than is tributary to any other city in Eastern Oregon.

Its situation is unsurpassed. Its climate delightful. Its possibilities inexhaustible. Its resources unlimited. And on these other claims the State.

How the Mink Steals Fish and Game from Sportsmen Down East.

Probably the most cunning of all animals is the mink. Its propensity for stealing is marvelous, and the methods of stealing and hiding the proceeds of its robberies are unique in the history of the lower species. We do not refer here to the depredations of the mink among poultry, for they resort to henneries only when the waters are frozen for a supply of fish is unobtainable, says the Lewiston Journal. Two gentlemen were fishing on one of the rivers of Maine. The fish were quite plenty, and as soon as one was caught it was thrown behind on the grass. After some time one of the gentlemen thought he would take a rest and at the same time examine his capture. But he could not find a single fish. He charged his friend with having played him a trick, but the friend was surprised as he. They now determined to watch their next fish, and their astonishment was unbounded when they saw a mink run from a hole near by, snatch up a fish and carry it off to the hole, where they afterward found their entire capture cunningly hidden under some dead leaves.

In the same manner the mink steals game which sportsmen shoot. On one occasion a gentleman shot a wild duck, but before the dogs could get to it a mink had stolen it, carried it off to a hole in the frozen snow, which one mink had prepared while the other was watching for the opportunity to steal the sportsman's game. Notwithstanding this particular characteristic, the mink is a brave as well as ferocious little fellow, and he is excelled in these qualities only by the ermine. He seems to have a peculiar aversion for the muskrat, and though the muskrat is generally more than double his size, the mink attacks him fearlessly, and always wins the battle, after which he drags his dead enemy to some hiding place, as in the cases of the fishes and wild duck. They are found in almost every state in the union, but most frequently in Maine and in the states bordering the great lakes. Mink skins are sold in great numbers by Maine trappers, and are sold for furs under various names.

In the Wild and Woolly West.

It happened in a saloon in a western town. The usual crowd had congregated one evening, where the proprietor's most profitable customer, who boasted of having been drunk in every state in the union, offered to wager that he could, blinded, tell the name of any drink by tasting it. The offer was taken, and a hunk of bread being tied over his eyes the trial began. A half dozen different kinds of booze-producing liquids were handed him, and in each case he promptly and correctly gave the name. Finally a quantity of water was poured into a glass and handed to him, but as he tasted this a puzzled look came over his face. He thought a moment, then tasted again; another moment elapsed, then he remarked: "Boys, I guess I'm stuck. I remember of drinking some of that stuff 'bout ten years ago down in New Jersey, but I'll be hanged if I can remember what they called it. I'll give it up; I'm beat. I know what it is, but I can't think."

Fish That Need No Water.

In Java and Borneo there are two kinds of fish which inhabit the ponds and small freshwater streams. When the water disappears during the hot season these fish burrow into the mud and remain there in torpid condition until the autumn rains begin.
