SILVER TO THE FRONT.

That the sentiment concerning silver and the free coinage thereof is rapidly changing, anyone who reads must know. That this change of sentiment will make itself felt in the next national platform, is a certainty. Indeed, from present appearance, it will be a race between all the parties to see which can get the broadest and strongest plank. Whether it is true or not, the idea has taken possession of the people that silver always has been the measure of values, that agricultural products fluctuated in touch with silver, as the mercury does with the weather; that low silver means low prices, and the converse of the proposition is equally true, that high silver means high prices.

A study of the situation for the past twenty years will show a substantial foundation for that idea. That silver is low its friends claim is not its fault, but the fault of the laws which have discriminated against it. The financial panic, which has sent the money of the country into hiding, has had much to do with the creation of this sentiment, the scarcity of money naturally being laid to the demonization of the white metal.

What the policy of the different parties will be cannot yet be premised; but it is reasonably certain that if no international arrangement can be made, this government will undertake to adopt and carry a double standard money. Silver will be made the peer of gold, or at least the attempt to so make it will be made. If one party fails to go before the country with the silver proposition made a fair and square issue, that party will be beaten, no matter what its strength may be otherwise. The people want it and are going to have it, regardless of the tariff or any other issues that may be set up against it.

What the effect of free coinage will be we do not pretend to say; but the experiment will be tried, whatever the results may be. Free coinage of silver will be the battle cry in the election of 1896, and on that issue, and that alone, the elections of that year will be fought—and won.

THE KING OF TRUSTS.

This is the age of trusts. The coal oil trust, the iron trust, the sugar trust, the copper trust and dozens of other trusts of immense proportions, covering vast industries, and placing the consumer at the mercy of the combinations have full swing. The United States senate, the highest legislative body of the country if not of the world, composed of—or at least supposed to be—the deepest thinkers, the brightest intellects, the purest minded and most patriotic citizens of this great republic, stands before the country today be-smirched by the contamination of one of the most dangerous of these unholy combinations. It is not long since these trusts were content to take advantage of unwise laws placed upon the statute books, but now made bold by sudden gains, rolling in ill-gotten wealth, they are no longer satisfied to take advantage of the laws, but devote a portion of their unholy gains to corrupting the law makers, bribing the people's servants to betray them, and so putting the people at their mercy to be plundered as they see fit. Not only this, but they have become so emboldened by success, that Mr. Searle and Mr. Havemeyer express astonishment when asked if they had not used their money to influence the senate in their favor, and answer, "of course we did, what are we here for?" Yet all the acts of all the trusts, pale into insignificance beside the one great trust, that has so managed its affairs as to be even so far free from the name of trust. We allude to the gold trust, the king of all of its kind. Havemeyer and his fellows may fix the price of sugar; Carnegie establish the price of iron and steel, while he robs the government deliberately; Payne and his confederates levy tax on our lights, Armour on our meats, and the hundred other great trusts on the different products which they control; but the gold trust is over all and above all. It girdles the world, and rich and poor, white and black, Gentile and Jew, the proud Caucasian and ignorant savage of Australia are all made subject to it.

Mr. Gorman is a fine talker, but the question is, whom is he talking for? Not for his constituents, for they believe in free trade. Not for the democracy, for the democracy is practically solid in its indorsement of President Cleveland's position. Not for the people, for the people do not believe in protecting sugar while wool is on the free list. There are but two other parties he could talk for, one being Mr. Gorman, who is somewhat smitten with his own voice, and the other is Havemeyer and his partners. It is the latter gentlemen whose threatened woes stir the slumbering fires of Gorman's oratorical volcano.

Mr. Gorman is not moved to speech by high motives, but if he will hang up the Wilson bill the country would forgive his connubating with the sugar kings.

A QUEER CHRISTENING.

The Godparents Make Their Responses in Hunting Costume.

An "up-to-date christening," which was recently held at an English country house in a sporting county, is described by an American girl in one of her home letters, and quoted in the New York Tribune:

"Milly is up and has taken to riding again, and is in her habit from morning until evening, when she slips into a lovely tea-gown for an hour or so, to appear resplendent later on in gorgeous dinner attire," so runs the letter. "The house is full of people, all of the hunting set, of course; so I was not in the least surprised when I was told that the baby's christening was to come off at the next meet and hunt breakfast, which was to take place at H— Hall. 'I shall be sure of my godfathers and godmothers if I combine the two,' said Milly, 'and I think it will be a good send-off for baby,' she added, with all seriousness.

"And so, just before they started, the child was baptized and christened, all the party, except the clergyman and myself, being in habits or boots and breeches. It was really a very pretty sight, however, with the two godfathers in their pink coats, Miss S., as godmother, in the nattiest of habits, with Milly standing by similarly attired, and the little pink shred of humanity in long lace robes. As soon as the ceremony was over, the entire party took horse and scampered away, leaving the small M. F. H. of the future to his nurses."

Court Costumes Barred.

An interesting fact not generally known in regard to the diplomatic corps is that a member of that august body cannot, under the penalty of official reprimand and danger of recall, appear at a fancy ball in the national court costume. This fact was developed during the past winter when a large fancy ball was given at one of the private houses on the same evening as the presidential reception to the diplomatic corps. Those of the diplomats who attended the ball later in the evening were obliged to first change the court costume worn at the white house. Inquiry on the part of curious friends developed the reason just stated.

All of which is guaranteed to do you good and cost you nothing. Sold by Snipes & Kinersly.

W. H. Nelson, who is in the drug business at Kingville, Mo., has so much confidence in Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy that he warrants every bottle and offers to refund the money to any customer who is not satisfied after using it. Mr. Nelson takes no risk in doing this because the remedy is a certain cure for the diseases for which it is intended and he knows it. It is for sale by Blakely & Houghton.

When, by reason of a cold or from other cause, the stomach, liver and kidneys become disordered, no time should be lost in stimulating them to action. Ayer's pills act quickly, safely, and surely. Sold by druggists and dealers in medicines.

Attention

In time to any irregularity of the Stomach, Liver, or Bowels may prevent serious consequences.

Indigestion, costiveness, headache, nausea, biliousness, and vertigo indicate certain functional derangements, the best remedy for which is Ayer's Pills. Purely vegetable, sugar-coated, easy to take and quick to assimilate, this is the ideal family medicine—the most popular, safe, and useful aperient in pharmacy. Mrs. M. A. BROCKWELL, Harris, Tenn., says:

"Ayer's Cathartic Pills cured me of sick headache and my husband of neuralgia. We think there is

and have induced many to use it.

"Thirty-five years ago this Spring, I was run down by hard work and a succession of colds, which made me so feeble that it was an effort for me to walk. I consulted the doctors, but kept sinking lower until I had given up all hope of ever being better. Happening to be in a store, one day, where medicines were sold, the proprietor noticed my weak and sickly appearance, and, after a few questions as to my health, recommended me to try Ayer's Pills. I had little faith in these or any other medicine, but concluded, at last, to take his advice and try a box. Before I had used them all, I was very much better, and two boxes cured me. I am now 80 years old; but I believe that if it had not been for Ayer's Pills, I should have been in my grave long ago. I buy 6 boxes every year, which make 210 boxes up to this time, and I would no more be without them than without bread."—H. F. Ingraham, Rockland, Me.
