

CHILDREN

who are puny, pale, weak, or scrofulous, ought to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. That builds up both flesh and strength. For this, and for purifying the blood, there's nothing in all medicine that can equal the "Discovery." In recovering from "Grippe," or in convalescence from pneumonia, fevers, or other wasting diseases, it speedily and surely invigorates and builds up the whole system. As an appetizing, restorative tonic, it sets at work all the processes of digestion and nutrition, rouses every organ into natural action, and brings back health and strength. For all diseases caused by a torpid liver or impure blood, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Scrofulous, Skin and Scalp diseases—even Consumption (or Lung-scorfula) in its earlier stages—the "Discovery" is the only guaranteed remedy. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, you have your money back.

Blight Up with Him.
There are certain Scotch lairds who take the name of their estate, and usually use that appellation in place of a surname. One of these is "Cluny," Macpherson, to whom Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lockwood recently paid a visit. During the London lawyer's stay, Mr. and Mrs. Macpherson and their guests were invited to lunch at a neighboring country house, where a visitor's book was kept. The head of the Clan Macpherson, in accordance with Scotch custom, wrote in the book: "Cluny and Mrs. Macpherson." Mr. Lockwood was not to be outdone by any Scottish chief, and underneath "Cluny's" signature he wrote in a fine, bold hand: "36 Lennox Gardens, and Mrs. Lockwood."

Deafness Cannot be Cured
By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

No Quarter
Will do you as much good as the one that buys Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. This is what you get with them: An absolute and permanent cure for Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, Sick and Bilious Headaches and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. Not just temporary relief, and then a worse condition afterward—but help that lasts.

Don't hawk, and blow, and spit, but use Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and be cured. 50 cents; of druggists.

Last June, Dick Crawford brought his twelve months old child, suffering from infantile diarrhoea, to me. It had been weaned at four months old and being sickly everything ran through it like water through a sieve. I give it the usual treatment in such cases, but without benefit. The child kept growing thinner until it weighed but little more than when born, or perhaps ten pounds. I then started the father to giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Before one bottle of the 25 cent size had been used, a marked improvement was seen and its continued use cured the child. Its weakness and puny constitution disappeared and its father and myself believe the child's life was saved by this remedy. J. T. MARLOW, M. D., Tamaroa, Ill. AN EXPENSIVE LIGHT.

An Inveterate Smoker Paid Thirty Thousand Dollars for a Fuse.
Inveterate smokers acknowledge that the habit is a most expensive one, but it is seldom that a light for a cigar costs a smoker a fortune, as in the story told by the author of "Glances Back Through Seventy Years." He was an inveterate smoker, having contracted "a diseased habit of puffing away at a cigar every moment he was not eating or sleeping." He smoked only the very best brands, and in those careless days spent, he says, more for cigars than it afterward cost him to live.
Well, one afternoon a day or two before "Palmer's Life" was published, I had been to a prize-cattle show at Chelmsford and then to a dinner with the Royal Agricultural Society, and on arriving in town by the last train, as I was walking homeward my cigar unfortunately went out and, much to my annoyance, I discovered I had no fuses about me. The streets, too, were deserted, so that there was nobody from whom a light could be obtained.
On descending Ludgate Hill I noticed that the gas of the gas lamp, perched high against the wall just within Belle-Sauvage yard, was broken. There being a slanting ledge at the lower part of this wall I placed my foot on it, and, springing up, succeeded in lighting a paper-spill which I had improvised, but in my rapid descent one of my feet unluckily caught the edge of the curb and I dislocated my ankle and broke the small bone of my leg.
Quick as thought I wrenched the ankle into its place again, but it was not so easy to unite two pieces of fractured bone, so I hopped to a neighboring post and there awaited the protecting peeler's periodic round.
He came at last and charitably put me into a cab and accompanied me home. I was carried upstairs, a surgeon was sent for and the broken limb was set. Then I was put to bed and told I should have to remain there a month or more.
It was while I was fretting under this involuntary confinement that my partner in "Palmer's Life" paid me a sympathetic visit and bought me out of the speculation for a mere song, without, of course, saying a word to me of the phenomenal success our joint venture had already met with.
Owing to this circumstance I have always reckoned that the going-out of my cigar cost me about fifteen hundred pounds, which actaries tell me would, with compound interest added, have amounted to some six thousand pounds at this date. A sum sufficient, I fancy, to buy up all the "partagas imperiales superfinos" in the world.

PATENT LEATHER.
The Process for Producing the Shiny Surface.
Japanned leather, generally called patent leather, was first made in America. A smooth, glazed finish is first given to calfskin in France. The leather, says the New York Telegram, is curried expressly for the purpose, and particular care is taken to keep it as free as possible from grease; the skins are then tacked on frames and coated with a composition of linseed oil and amber, in the proportion of eighteen gallons of oil to five of amber boiled until nearly solid and then mixed with spirits of turpentine to the proper consistency. Lampblack is also added when the composition is applied in order to give color and body. From three to four coats of this are necessary to form a substance to receive the varnish. They are laid on with a knife or scraper. To render the goods soft and pliant each coat must be very light and thoroughly dried after each application. A thin coat is afterward applied of the same composition of proper consistency to be put on with a brush and with sufficient lampblack boiled in it to make a perfect black. When thoroughly dry it is cut down with a scraper having turned edges, when it is ready to varnish. The principal varnish used is made of linseed oil and Russian blue, boiled to the thickness of printer's ink. It is reduced with spirits of turpentine to a suitable consistency to work with a brush, and then applied in two or three separate coats, which are scraped and pumiced until the leather is perfectly filled and smooth. The finishing coat is put on with special care in a room kept closed and with the floor wet to prevent dust. The frames are then run into an oven heated to about one hundred and seventy-five degrees. In preparing this kind of leather the manufacturer must give the skin as high a heat as it can bear in order to dry the composition on the surface as rapidly as possible without absorption, and cautiously, so as not to injure the fiber of the leather.

Barbarous Japanese Customs.
From evidence that it seems difficult to dispute, it appears that in the Celestial empire old, incurably diseased and helplessly deprived persons are frequently burned alive in order to rid the community of the burden and responsibility of their care-taking. This arrangement is the result of a mutual understanding, the victims assenting to and sometimes assisting in the preliminary ceremonies. The usage seems to have been recognized by the highest authorities, and the burials have certainly been conducted with the sanction of the ruling powers. Great preparations are made and there is much ado, and sometimes a show of grief, but a great deal of the latter is evidently perfunctory, as there is an all-around feeling of satisfaction on the part of the spectators and more or less complacency on the mind of the victim, who is comforted by the assurance that he is fulfilling a tradition and will earn the respect of his ancestors and gone-before. This custom is scarcely more strange and barbarous than the Japanese practice of compelling a man for certain crimes or calamities to commit suicide. It would, at least, have its compensations in that the criminal could be made to take himself off and thus leave no unpleasant reflections upon the mind of hangman or executioner.

An Old Timer.

Abraham Garrison, the brother of the late Commodore Garrison, who died at Allegheny, Pa., at the age of ninety, a few days since, said in a reminiscent mood recently: "In 1846, when I was in Washington, I saw Clay, Calhoun, Webster and Benton in the senate. A party of us each paid Samuel H. Morse fifty cents to telegraph our names to Baltimore, and he was glad to get the money. In 1840 I saw Gen. William Henry Harrison drive up to the old Pittsburgh hotel, now the St. Charles hotel, with an old army comrade. It was snowing, and some men told the general to put on his hat, which he had raised to acknowledge the greetings of the people. The general laughed and said to the old comrade at his side: 'We have been in a worse situation than this without our hats, and it won't hurt us.'"

A horse kicked H. S. Shafer, of the Freemyre House, Middleburg, N. Y., on the knee, which laid him up in bed and caused the knee joint to become stiff. A friend recommended him to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which he did, and in two days was able to be around. Mr. Shafer has recommended it to many a bruise or sprain. This same remedy is also famous for its cures of rheumatism. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton.

We have made arrangements with the San Francisco Examiner to furnish it in connection with THE CHRONICLE. Having a clubbing rate with the Oregonian and N. Y.
