

A FULL STOMACH ought to cause you no discomfort whatever. If it does, though—if there's any trouble after eating—take Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They're a perfect and convenient vest-pocket remedy. One of these tiny, sugar-coated, anti-bilious granules at a dose regulates and corrects the entire system. Sick or Bilious Headaches, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach, and bowels are prevented, relieved and cured.

They're the smallest, easiest to take, cheapest and best. They're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or money is returned.

Which is the best to try, if you have Catarrh—a medicine that claims to have cured others, or a medicine that is backed by money to cure you? The proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy agree to cure your Catarrh, perfectly and permanently, or they'll pay you $500 in cash.

WHILE COON hunting, John Rider, of Dutchtown, Mo., lost an eye in a very peculiar way. He was going up a tree, in search of a coon, when an owl flew down and tore out his eyeball with its claw.

Kenneth Bazemore had the good fortune to receive a small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy when three members of his family were sick with dysentery. This small bottle cured them all and he had some left which he gave to Geo. W. Baker, a prominent merchant of the place, Lewiston, N. C., and it cured him of the same complaint. When troubled with dysentery, diarrhoea, colic or cholera morbus, give this remedy a trial and you will be more than pleased with the result. The praise that naturally follows its introduction and use has made it very popular. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakely & Houghton, druggists.

STATISTICIANS say that the increase of wealth in the United States during the last thirty years is without parallel in the history of the world.

My boy was taken with a disease resembling bloody flux. The first thing I thought of was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Two doses of it settled the matter and cured him sound and well. I heartily recommend this remedy to all persons suffering from a like complaint. I will answer any inquiries regarding it when stamp is inclosed. I refer to any county official as to my reliability. Wm. Roach, J. P., Primroy, Campbell Co., Tenn. EXCESSIVE labor is wrong, but judicious labor is the safety valve of life.

"I know an old soldier who had chronic diarrhoea of long standing to have been permanently cured by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Edward Shumpik, a prominent druggist of Minneapolis, Minn. "I have sold the remedy in this city for seven years and consider it superior to any other medicine now on the market for bowel complaints." 25 and 50 cent bottles of this remedy for sale by Blakely & Houghton druggists.

A WONDERFUL STATE.

Points About California and Her Amiable People.

Plenty of Rare Sights for the Tourist
"But He Must Pay Well to See Them
—Where the Zones Are Very Close Together.

Take your average Californian and you will find him to be an amiable creature. Distance lends no enchantment in his case. You have got to meet the fellow on his own soil to get thoroughly acquainted with him and learn to admire all the good traits he has stored away in his well-nourished frame. There is nothing mean or small about the average Californian, says the Chicago Herald. He lives well, sleeps well and dresses in good taste. He likes legitimate sport and is a keen critic at the theater. He doesn't nourish a throbbing love for Chinamen, and he looks with suspicion on bank notes and gold and silver certificates. He prefers to collect and pay his debts in coin, and considers a penny as a sort of tramp in our monetary system.

It rains in San Francisco during the winter months—not every day, perhaps, but possibly nine or ten times a week. But the average Californian doesn't appear to notice the precipitation until he meets a friend from the east. Then he begins to apologize something after this fashion:

"How do you like this country? Ever in California before? This rain is something unusual. Thursday was as clear as a bell. Sorry it is so disagreeable. Spring is quite as backward this year as some merchants I know are in their payments." Then you laugh and stoop to let the water run off your hat.

"But," the average Californian will continue, "this fog in the morning means a clear afternoon. Never knew it to fail. Will you bury your beak in a glass of wine?"

There is the apologetic humanitarian for you. You can find him almost anywhere in San Francisco. He knows that fogs and rainstorms are as prevalent in his town during the months of November, December, January and February as they are in the web-footed state of Oregon. Yet when approached by the tourist he manifests the most acute astonishment at such climatic eccentricities. So thoroughly addicted is the average Californian to this harmless and amusing form of tergiversation that he at once impresses you with the belief that he actually thinks he is telling the truth, and that the doleful surprise he manifests is thoroughly conscientious.

Things grow very large the moment you leave the Mojave desert, with its bristling, stunted palms and miles and miles of sage brush. Just take a ride with a Los Angeles man through the San Gabriel valley, if you doubt this assertion. Let him do the talking. He is sure to keep you thinking. This is about the way he rattles along:

"Peach trees? No; that's a prune orchard. Why, last year Mr. So-and-So gathered six thousand tons of prunes off these trees. Why, sir, the crop was so heavy that he had to hire men to saw off the branches to preserve the trunks of the trees. Oh, but this country is a-coming. You can't stop her. Just look at these mountains. They are fifteen miles from town and you can't touch the land for less than five hundred dollars an acre. Look at that dirt. Raise anything here. This soil is blacker than Puget sound and richer than Baldwin. It's a great country. Why, it's different from anything on earth. Here the squirrels build their nests in the ground and rats live in trees that shed their bark instead of their leaves. See that orchard over there? Fifteen years ago it was covered with sage brush. Now there are eighteen thousand orange trees in that tract of land, and the fruit the wind alone blows off would pave every road and path in Golden Gate park. What do you think of our women? Not so pretty as they are in 'Frisco, eh? I will tell you why. It's the climate. Up there they have more moisture in the air and that softens the complexion. Here it's dry the year round and that is why the faces of our women look harsher. But it's a good country, isn't it? What do you think of it anyhow?"

And so this man of Los Angeles will talk and talk until the sun goes down in the ocean with a sizzle. But California has everything to brag about, and the visitor can afford to stand this good-natured hyperbole. The state is bigger than the combined area of the commonwealths of New York, Pennsylvania, Vermont, New Hampshire and Delaware. It is a thousand miles long. From the Mexican line to the boundary of Oregon the distance is as great as that which separates New York city from Chicago. It is a state where the zones are so closely wedded that the visitor may pick strawberries one moment and half an hour later enjoy a sleigh ride on the flat top of a mountain. It is a land filled with flowers, fruits and birds, and just enough snow and ice to drape in glittering passermeterie the purple peaks and savage cataracts to the north.

Queer Uses of Fans.

There are many curious uses of fans in Japan. The umpire at wrestling and fencing matches uses a heavy one, shaped like a huge butterfly, the handle being the body, and rendered imposing by heavy coils of silk. The various motions of the fan constitute a language which the wrestlers fully understand and appreciate. Formerly in the time of war the Japanese commander used a large fan, having a frame of iron covered with thick paper. In case of charge it could be shut, and a blow from its iron bones was no light affair. One notable variety of fan is made of waterproof paper, which can be dipped in water, and creates great coolness by evaporation, without wetting the clothes. The flat fan, made of rough paper, is often used as a grain winnow, to blow the charcoal fires and as a dustpan.
