CLEVELAND'S OPPORTUNITY.

Havemeyer purchased the right to rob the American people of the leaders of the democratic party, and the goods are now being delivered. As far as congress litical party should ruin itself in order have been justified in redeeming. The will. Both of these pledges could not be Giant or Jack? kept, for the keeping of one necessarily precluded the keeping of the other. But why should the honest and proper pledge made to the people be violated, and the illegal and dishonest promises either was to be broken, surely the promise that was made to the people should have been safe. The proper promise should have been fulfilled in-

The measure of Grover Cleveland is to be taken within the next ten days. He is going to be either a very great man, or a very small one. If he vetoes the Gorman bill, he will be the former, justifying the claims of his friends that he is morally great. If he signs it, he writes himself a coward, as well as a fool; while if he permits it to become a law without his signature, he shows according to directions, is warranted to cure fever and ague. Try it. himself a poltroon and a trifler. The dispatches say he will take the latter course, and let the bill become a law without his signature. He has said the senate bill could not be passed without party perfidy and dishonor. Will he become a party to it by refusing to do country, as well as to his party? The that institution the coming year. next ten days will decide his stature. He will either be Cleveland the great, or Grover the little.

"The opera house last evening preand fashion, gathered from every select ing to his recovery. quarter of the city to do homage to the talented stars of the occasion."

It then follows with a description of those occupying the boxes, the names of theater parties, etc. The unusual attendance was the direct result of Rev. to see if the plays were really as naughty doubt most of the audience were disappointed in not being shocked.

President Cleveland is placed in a trying position. The influence, persuasion and appeals of congressmen and senators, personal friends of the president, are being brought to bear on him. he will prove himself indeed a man of Address dogged determination.

What the country would like to know is, what has become of Congressman Breckinridge? We see Miss Pollard has taken to the stage, and from Breckinridge's silence, it is probable he has taken to the woods, or took a tumble to himself. He was extremely pictures une and is sadly missed from the telegraphic columns of the big dailies.

Congressman Wilson of Washington, when the vote was about to be taken on the motion to recede from the disagreement with the senate desired to know and therefore asked Speaker Crisp, "if this would not be a good time to read the president's letter again?"

is concerned they are already delivered, and the only thing needed to consummate the deal is the signature of the president, or his silence.

It is passing strange that a great political party should ruin itself in order

litical party should ruin itself in order to keep faith with dishonesty. The leaders of the party were, it seems, bound by two pledges, which were diametrically opposed to each other. One was the pledge to the people to reform the tariff and to enlarge the free list, to be the tariff and to enlarge the free list, to the court of the story. Percentage of the provent of the tariff and to enlarge the free list, to the tariff and to enlarge the free list, to the court of t make the tariff system one based on the principle of raising revenue, instead of granting protection. This was an honest pledge, and one the party would have been justified in redeeming. The other was a pledge made to the sugar trust, that for assistance in getting into power the consumers of sugar should be turned over to it, to be plundered at will. Both of these pledges could not be Giant or Jack?

A Memorable Feast.

whose constitution was completely broken down, is cured by Ayer's Sarsaparilla. He writes:

"For eight years, I was, most of the time, a great sufferer from constipation, kidney trouble, and indigestion, so that my constitution seemed to be completely broken down. I was induced to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and took nearly seven bottles, with such excellent results that my stomach, bowels, and kidneys are in perfect condition, and, in all their functions, as regular as clock-work. At the time I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, my weight was only 129 pounds; I now can brag of 159 pounds, and was never in so good health. If you could see me before and after using, you would want me for a traveling advertisement. I believe this preparation of Sarsaparilla to be the best in the market to-day."
