MIRABILE DICTU.

A local editor on the Oregonian yesterday tried his 'prentice hand on a bit of a write-up for Frank G. Carpenter, the noted correspondent, who is just from Asia, and who will write a series of letters during the Japan-China war...

We would advise our big contemporary to buy its reportorial force a dictionary containing a table of synonyms and nine bushels of adjectives, that he write no longer so fearfully and wonderfully.

Falb's earthquake and tidal wave have not shown up yet. We have opened communication with Mr. Lord, who is at the seaside, to send us word as soon as it arrived there, and will thus have the first news, because the Lord only knows when or how it is going to come.

When giants lived in ancient times, Sing heigh, my boy, sing ho! In good old England, or foreign climes, Sing heigh, my boy, sing ho!

But the giants didn't have things their own way when Jack-the-Giant-Killer arrived on the scene. You remember the story. Recollect, too, that every age has its giant-killer.

We acknowledge the receipt of a complimentary ticket to the Oregon state fair, to be held at Salem next month. At the same time we received copy for about $5 worth of free notices.

Beloved brethren of the newspaper fraternity, make a point of always giving proper credit for the work of your scissors. Sometime it happens that an exchange might clip that same scissored article and give you credit for it.

A FISH STORY. Four Men Did the Work and a Cat Enjoyed the Benefit Thereof.

A Lewiston railroad man, two friends out of town and a local baggagemaster went fishing one night and early the next morning along the sinuous edges of Worthy brook, says the Lewiston (Mc.) Journal.

At dinner time they met and declared that they'd dine off that trout, that is, they would partly dine off that trout. One of them cooked it and put it on the table and then, while he stepped into the kitchen for the salt box, the cat jumped up on the table and ate the trout.

All persons not worshipping elsewhere are cordially invited.

EVIDENCE OF THE PHONOGRAPH The Court Finds It More Acceptable Than That of the Plaintiff.

The phonograph is being used with marked effect in English courts, says the Washington Star. Recently a railroad company was sued by the owner of premises upon a street under which the road had run a tunnel. The complaint stated that the noise of the trains going through the tunnel was so great as to utterly prevent sleep, while existence in daylight was made unbearable by the same cause.
