SOME OF OUR MILLIONAIRES. rarity.

It is announced that William Waldorf Astor, who loses $8000 a month on his periodical, The Pall Mail Magazine, has become a British citizen. It is also announced that certain other of our American ruling families now in Europe have Hercules we have touched the earth and decided that they will never return to this country to live. Their home is in gained new strength." Mr. Lane was New York, but their complaint is that New York never does anything to make life pleasant for these many millioned; gentleman he alluded to was George therefore they won't live in America Francis Train. He gained strength any more. The principal reason they think they are unkindly treated appears to be that New York has been vainly trying for years to make some of them pay their taxes. This is too bad. New York ought to remit their taxes for the is good, bad or indifferent, if it is sent to honor of having our American nobility this shop it goes into the waste basket. live there. More than that, it ought to institute a constant round of strawberry and ice cream festivals and baseball games in their honor and invite them free. It ought to sit up night thinking those who write without reason, rhyme of ways to amuse them and pet them. We owe everything to our millionaires, we do, in this country. The only trouble is that we do not properly appreciate them. When that beggarly with British nobilities and royalties, minutes. perhaps we will think more of them and begin to wake up to the beauty and brains that are lost to us forevermore.

and that little fact leaves us not wholly disconsolate. We know they will draw their money regularly from this country. We are still good enough to pay One thing we are certain of, however, rents to our millionaires and furnish the material for their coupon cutting. Meantime if eight people do frequently live in one room in the cities whence our noble millionaires derive their revenues, and if a dozen people are sometimes reported in one morning paper as having committed suicide because they cannot pay rent and have nothing to eat besides, what does this matter? What right have they to disturb the good times of our millionaires abroad by making such unpleasant items in the morning papers? The Portland Telegram gives the following concerning the predictions of earthquakes and tidal waves, a subject that just now is of considerable interest: "Professor Rudolph Falb, the German it. Free trial bottles at Snipes & Kinmeteorologist, whose name has been taken in vain so frequently within the last few weeks, is good-natured about it. and says that he is making no mistake. He is quoted in the Baltimore Sun of a recent date as saying that his predictions of "critical days" for 1894 are divided into three classes, and that August 30th is the first critical day of the first class, to be followed by September 29th and October 28th. He asks a suspension of judgment on his prediction until these dates are passed. His dates for the second class are September 15th, October 14th and November 13th; for the third least important class; and so far as we have heard there were no unusual atmospheric conditions, except that it was the beginning of excessively but weather.

Our contemporary the Evening Telegram prints a pretty little description of how several boys rode from Shoshone to Portland. We do not like to criticize, but how can we believe the story when it says that on the 13th of June they took the Union Pacific train at Portland and started east. As a matter of fact there was no Union Pacific train on that date, and very little Union Pacific railroad in this vicinity. The boys probably came up on the D. P. & A. N. Co.'s boats, but as the Portland dailies are forbidden to mention that line, the Telegram is excusable, as it would have been unable to get the boys out of town any other way, and so they would have missed all the tun.

> Mr. Franklin Lane editor of the Tacoma News, delivered an address at the Tacoma tail-ender fair which was flowery enough to satisfy a young ladies class in botany, but in the midst of it he made a strange slip. He said "Like mistaken in his man. Hercules was on the earth most of the time. The gentleman he alluded to was George when on the ground; and besides we are told he once "lit" in Tacoma.
