

ON TRIAL. That's a good way to buy a medioine, but it's a pretty hard condition under which to sell it. Perhaps you've noticed that the ordinary hit or miss medicine doesn't attempt it.

The only medicine of its kind so remarkable in its effects that it can be sold on this plan is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. As a blood-cleanser, strength-restorer, and flesh-builder, there's nothing like it known to medical science. In every disease where the fault is in the liver or the blood, as Dyspepsia, In-digestion, Biliousness, and the most stubborn Skin, Scalp, and Scrofulous affections, it is guaranteed in every case to benefit or cure, or you have your money back.

To every sufferer from Catarrh, no matter how bad the case or of how long standing, the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy say this: "If we can't cure it, perfectly and permanently, we'll pay you $500 in cash." Sold by all druggists.

An Easy Test of Diamonds.

Recent experiments by an expert prove that the diamond emits light when rubbed on wood, cloth or metal. The fact that it becomes luminous by rubbing on metal shows that the phenomenon is not electric. As imitation diamonds and other hard stones do not exhibit this phenomenon, the property will be valuable as an easy test of the genuineness of the diamond.

Kenneth Bazemore had the good fortune to receive a small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrheea Remedy when three members of his family were sick with dysentery. This one small bottle cured them all and he had some left which he gave to Geo. W. Baker, a prominent merchant of the place, Lewiston. N. C., and it cured him of the same complaint. When stroubled with dysentery, diarrhoa, colic or cholera morbus, give this remedy a trial and you will be more than pleased with the result. The praise that naturally follows its introduction and use has made it very popular. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakely & Houghton,

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A Feminine Failing Which Is Often the

There is no doubt that a great deal of the unhappiness of married life arises from the fact that when a man is courting a girl he only sees her "at her best," both as regards temper, looks and everything else. After marriage he is rudely disillusioned and vaguely wonders whether this snappy young woman with untidy hair and perhaps a shine on her nose can be the sweet-tempered, faultlessly-dressed, lovely Angelina of a few mouths ago. Yes, young man, says the New York Advertiser, she is Angelina right enough, only she has, so to say, thrown off her mask, now she has "got you," and appears in her true colors, which are not quite of so fascinating a hue as those that dazzled your lovesick eyes in the courting period. It is nearly every girl's ambition to get married. She lays herself out to do so, and any little artifice that will enhance her natural charms she has no hesitation in using. She dresses for effect, she poses for effect, she talks for effect, in fact, during this stage of her life she is acting-for every woman is more or less of an actress-and it must be confessed that, generally speaking, she acts her part

After all, it is only natural that she should try to appear at her best and endeavor to captivate mankind, for marriage is the be-all and end-all of a it is that she cannot keep this up after marriage. It would be too great a strain both physically and mentally. As it is, heaven only knows what she goes through during the auxious time when she is angling for a fish, especially if it be a gold fish. She molds herself to his likes and dislikes, and outrages her own feelings, until the little golden band on her fingers allows her to breathe freely and declare that Though he likes living in the country, she detests it, and does not intend to live there." Mr. Neuwed is startled and astonished. This is open rebellion. Yet when he was courting her she appeared such a meek, gentle creature, as to have no wish or will of her own, quite content to follow in his lordship's footsteps. "What a fool I was to get married," he mentally exclaims, and then in all probability the bickering begins that renders married life one long misery. Perhaps it now dawns on Mr. Neuwed that when he was courting her she was at her best.

A word to men. When you are courting a girl remember she is at her best in every respect, and that she cannot possibly always keep up this high standard after marriage; so grasp the fact that you are not going to marry an angel, but a human being with many faults, perhaps as many as you possess

BETTING WOMEN IN ENGLAND.

One Section Where They Comprise About Half the Race Wagerers. A correspondent of the Birmingham (England) Mail says: "I read your paragraph on 'Do women bet?" I should say that instead of being twenty per cent. they are at the very least fortyfive per cent. if not in the actual majority. In this immediate district there is clients-women, of course, whose husbands are at work earning money to be thrown away. I know more than one case where everything that can be raked together to pawn for the purpose is done, and the winnings, when they have one, go to the bookmaker for a royal booze.

"What I should like to point out is the mischief a man who holds a license and is a bookmaker can do in a neighborhood. He not only incites to gambling, but also to drink. I myself have seen scores of women enter the house with papers, and. of course, they must have a drink before they leave. Perhaps the public will ask how it is done. The house in question is so surrounded by touts that on the approach of a policeman the signal is given and the thing stopped till the coast is clear. This is no prejudiced view of the matter, but a real fact, which can be verified daily on a walk through this district by anyone with his eyes open. It is surely time the law stepped in and said to the publican bookmaker: 'You shall have no license."

LONG-LIVED CARP.

One Old Specimen in Fontainbleau Is Over Three Hundred Years Old.

When the fish commission, some years ago, began to introduce carp into the streams of this country it is doubtful if they knew what a lasting monument they were building. It is pretty generally known, says the Washington News, that the sluggish and, to fishermen, despicable denizen of the water is gifted with a tenure of life, barring chance encounter with a hook, a big black bass with his back up or other vicissitudes of piscatorial existence, which exceeds that of most creatures. but the actual age that they do attain under favorable circumstances is appalling. There are very few fishermen who haven't a yarn about some wily old trout or bass that has been known to frequent the same pool for many years, but Assistant Secretary of State Rockhill tells of a carp that can give any of these fish points on how to attain a long life. He says that in a pond at at Fontainbleau there is, or was when he was last there, a barnacled old carp that had been placed meter, a small fine pith ball; a wire in the pond in the reign of Francis I. As that monarch flourished during the sixteenth century, Mr. Rockhill's carp is considerably more than three hundred years old. To prevent any mistake by future generations the gentle-man who occupied the office of commissioner of fish and fisheries for his royal

CUNNING OF THE COYOTE.

Not Afraid to Be Near a Man Whom He Knows to Be Unarmed. The barking habit of the coyote is very doglike, and his old name of barking wolf is very appropriate. When collecting mammals in Wyoming, says a writer in St. Nicholas, it was a very common thing for us to hear the coyotes around our camp set up a great barking in chorus at the first sign of daybreak, just when the roosters begin to crow on the farm. It is a wild and uncultivated kind of bark, ending in a falsetto howl, and resembles the ery of the jackal of India more nearly than any other sound I ever heard. But Sir Coyote is cute. He knows exactly the distance that constitutes fair rifle range, and he knows just as well whether the stranger is armed as does the stranger himself. When hunting in the Shoshone mountains in 1889, I wanted to kill a coyote for a special purpose, but never once succeeded in getting a fair shot, even at two hundred yards. For ten days we banged away industriously at every one we saw, but never touched a hair. Finally, at Corbett's ranch I left the expedition and started north by stage, leaving behind me rifle, revolver, knife and even scissors. Just two hours after I had said good-by to my shooting irons and taken the buckboard "stage," we saw a coyote ahead of us, close to the trail. should try to appear at her best and endeavor to captivate mankind, for marriage is the be-all and end-all of a society girl's existence. The worst of it is that she cannot keep this up after sat there coolly without moving a muscle, but with a leer that plainly said: 'Now, don't you wish you had your old gun?" When we got through making faces at him and wishing for a gun or a revolver or even a common stone to fire at him, we drove on, and then he got up and went hunting for jack rabbit. To this day I have been puzzling over the question: "How did that crazy rascal find out so quickly that both the driver and I were totally unarmed?" That he did know it perfectly well I have no doubt whatever, for no coyote ever waited like that for a man with a

CRAZED ENGINEERS.

Instances in Which Unavoidable Accidents Have Unhluged Men's Reason.

The strange antics of a crazy engineer at Alton, Ill., recently suggest the fact that insanity is very frequent among railway employes. Two draamong railway employes. matic illustrations may be mentioned. There is living in New Jersey not far from Philadelphia, says the Philadelphia Times, a man who for many years was the foremost passenger engineer between New York and Philadelphia on the Pennsylvania railroad. He ran all the specials and best trains and in ten years never had an accident. One night in the gleam of the headlight he saw a woman. He had only time to see her hands raised and to hear her cry, and before he could put his hand upon the lever he felt a jerk under the wheels and knew that all was over. Since that night he has never been on an engine. For months he did not sleep and later became practically insane, but only on the one point of seeing and hearing the woman his engine killed. Now he goes about harmlessly and a system for collecting bets that beats aimlessly, but he has to be kept away creation. A bookmaker, who, by the from railroads, and in his fretful sleep way, is also a license holder, employs he awakes with cries and paroxysms of Dalles. five or six men, who, I suppose, go horror. The other case is that of a man under the name of clerks, each of who was conductor of a train on the whom has a round or district, and Camden & Amboy, whose train had an every day-that is, every racing day- accident. He came out all right himmen call on their respective self, but it preyed so upon his mind that one night he left his home, and, going to the point where the accident occurred, threw himself in front of a passing train, receiving injuries from which he died.

MUSHROOM DRUNKARDS.

The Fungus Used in Asia and Scotland to Promote Intoxication.

The inhabitants of the northeastern part of Asia use a mushroom to promote intoxication. It is known, says the Chicago Tribune, as the flly-blown mushroom, and is also very abundant in Scotland. The fungus is gathered B. F. LAUGHLIN, in the hottest part of the year, and is then hung up by a string in the open air to dry. Some are dry before gathered, and these are stated to be far more narcotic than those artificially preserved. Usually the fungus is rolled up like a bolus and taken without chewing: for, if masticated, it is said to disorder the stomach. One large or two small fungi produce what is looked upon as a pleasant state of intoxication for one day. The effect is the same as that produced on taking a quantity of spirits or wine, except that it is delayed from one to two hours after the bolus is swallowed. At first it produces very cheerful emotions of the mind. It renders some persons exceedingly active, and it is a stimulant to muscular exertion; thus, if a person affected by it wishes to step over a straw or a small stick, it impels him to take a jump sufficient to clear a low hedge or the trunk of a tree; it keeps those fond of music perpetually sing-ing, and under its influence a talkative person can neither keep secrets nor silence for any length of time.

Telegraphing 107 Years Ago. At Dublin, Ireland, in 1788, was published a volume entitled "Arthur Young's Travels in France," which contains an extract from a letter written on October 16, 1787, and which is here transcribed: "M. Lomond is a most ingenious mechanic. He made a remarkable discovery in electricity. You write two or three words on paper; he takes it with him into a room, and turns a machine inclosed in a cylinder case, at the top of which is an electroconnects with a cylinder or electro-meter in a distant apartment, and his wife, by remarking the corresponding motions of the ball, writes down the words they indicate, from which it appears that he has formed an alphabet of motions. SOME LONG BALLOON TRIPS.

A Vain Effort to Cross the Mediterra

-Voyaging from England to Germany. The longest balloon voyage on record was one undertaken in 1883, in which the distance traveled was a little more than one thousand two hundred miles Three voyagers on that occasion, says Harrison's Magazine, made an ascent in France, with the intention of crossing Mediterranean and landing in Algeria. The wind, however, proving unfavorable, carried them toward Corisca. When they were near that island the balloon descended toward the water, and for a time their lives were in great jeopardy. By throwing out all their apparatus they succeeded in getting the balloon to rise to a height of between two and three thou sand feet, and, traveling on to Italy, they safely descended in that country at a little village near Brescia. Another balloon voyage of nearly the same length was undertaken in November, 1836. On the 7th of that month, Charles Green, with two friends, ascended near London in a balloon, crossed the channel from Dover to Calsis, and, passing over France and Belgium, found themselves the next morning over the Rhine. Proceeding further they arrived at Viborg, where they descended about eight a. m. on the 5th of November. A recent bal-loon voyage of M. Mallet, the French aeronaut, lasted thirty-six and onehalf hours and would have been the longest on record if he had not landed in the middle of it. He left Villette on the 23d of October at six p. m. and next morning landed at Ottonville, in Alsace, to clear the snow from the balloon. At the end of twenty-five minutes he started again and landed near Coblentz at eight p. m. An hour and a half later he landed once more in a valley on Tauna mountains, and finally, on the 25th of October, at six a. m., at Walben, in Hesse. Two or three aeronauts have proposed to cross the Atlantic in a balloon, but so far it has begun and ended in talk only.
