 THURSDAY, AUGUST 30, 1894
 SOME SALEM POINTERS.

The Salem Statesman commenting on what we said the other day, concerning the stat. fair, "that Eastern Oregon would cheerfully assist in making some other place the capital of the state," says:
 "This unkindest cut of all is from THE CHRONICLE, a paper published at The Dalles, which city reaps the benefit of the portage railway, which was built by state appropriation. But Salem never objected to the appropriation. She believed it was for the best interest of the state."
 The Statesman dodges the question that has stirred Eastern and Southern Oregon up against her. It points to the portage road at the Cascades, which cost $60,000, an amount about equal to that expended on the dome of the capitol at Salem the same year. Of course Salem did not object to the building of the portage at the Cascades. It would have done so, however, if it had been possible to move the Cascades to Salem. It comes with ill grace from that paper to twit Eastern Oregon about the Cascade portage, for years before Eastern Oregon stood manfully by the Willamette valley in constructing the locks at Oregon City. Salem did not object to that either, what she does object to is the building of any state buildings outside of the reach of Salem. That the constitution of the state gives her ground for this contention we freely admit, but the agricultural college, the soldiers' home and other state institutions have been located elsewhere in violation of it. The state constitution was made for a commonwealth of thirty or forty thousand people, and Oregon has outgrown it. We need a new one, or else such an interpretation of the present one as will allow the state to do business. The locating of a branch insane asylum in Eastern Oregon is an absolute necessity. It is needed to provide a place for the treatment of the insane from the valley and coast counties, because it gives a change of climate and plenty of sunshine, but the welfare of the insane must stand to one side to satisfy the grasping disposition of Salem. We are not finding fault with the board locating the asylum elsewhere than at The Dalles. We wanted it, it is true, but when the board in its wisdom selected another site, we acquiesced cheerfully in its decision. It matters not to us a cent whether the branch asylum is built or not, but we reiterate the statement that Salem's action has aroused the indignation of the entire state, and that most of the people feel as we do, that the capitol should be removed to Portland, which is the traffic center of the state, and the proper place for it. To get from one section of the state to any other the traveler is compelled to pass through Portland. It is the natural and most convenient place for the state capital, and as fellows up in Eastern Oregon stand ready to help remove it to that point. If Portland will get a move on, she can have the capital just as soon as the constitution and laws can be changed to permit it.

FOR A NEW CONSTITUTION.
 It is high time that the constitution of the state be changed. It was all right when it was made, but it was made for fifty thousand people, and it is not a fit one for five hundred thousand. We have outgrown it, worn it out. Under present conditions it simply operates to prevent the people doing anything that will be for the interest of the whole state. Indeed the affairs of the state cannot be managed without violating the provisions of the constitution. The supreme court is compelled to wink wisely at some things that are done because the things are necessary in spite of the prohibitions of the obsolete document we call the constitution.
 The capital of the state ought to be at Portland, where it is convenient to all parts of the state; the state buildings, while most of them are properly located at the capital, should not be forced there when the interests of the state demand some other arrangement. This is particularly true of the insane asylum and of the penitentiary. The one should be located, or its branches should be located, where the climate is best for the patients, regardless of where that may be. The penitentiary should be located convenient to some stone quarry, or some place where work could be provided for the prisoners.
 The salaries of the governor, the supreme judges, and other state officers, should be fixed in such sums as would amply reward them, without placing them out by commissions, or some other gift made necessary by the restrictions of the constitution. Our elections should be changed from June to November, so that business is not interfered with all summer every four years. The expense of a constitutional convention would be saved in a little while by the saving on extra elections alone.

 We need a new constitution, and we need it badly, and the coming session of the legislature will be derelict in its duty if it does not take the steps necessary to submit the question to the voters.
 The Tacoma affair was opened yesterday. United States Senator Watson C. Squire was selected to press the button, which from much practice in the political arena, he did with a delicacy and precision of touch that prevented his fine Italian hand being seen in the operation. The crowd is estimated to number 50,000, which would indicate that, by the census, nearly two-thirds of the citizens of the charming village were at home. This proves conclusively that Tacoma is patriotic and that most of them came home from the mountains, in spite of the disagreeableness of the fair in time to swell the crowd.

We acknowledge the receipt this morning of the fifty-eighth monthly report of the Oregon State Weather Service, giving a detailed description of weather conditions last January. It is intensely interesting reading while the thermometer is up near the hundred mark, and shows the wisdom of Messrs. Hayes and Blandford. Some persons, if they had charge of the weather, would get out the monthly report at the end of the month, but Hayes and Blandford, with a wisdom that compels admiration, turn on their January weather report in August, and the August variety in January. Great heads.
 The last river and harbor bill passed by the recent congress provides, amongst other things, $100,000 for The Dalles boat railway. Some folks think this will cause considerable work here, but they are badly mistaken. It will take all of the amount to put the engineers in a good humor, and make a preliminary survey. It is largely a political move, but still something may come of it in the next twenty or thirty years. With the experience we have had with the canal and locks at the Cascades, Dalles people are not liable to grow enthusiastic over the matter.

PERSONAL MENTION.
 City Marshal Blakeney and family are ransacking at Mosier.
 Agent E. E. Lytle, who has been in Portland for several days, returned last night.
 Miss Farrelly of Portland arrived on last evening's train, and is visiting her sister, Mrs. E. F. Sharp, of this city.
 Miss Lucille Thompson, who has been visiting the Misses Marden, returned to her home, Goldendale, this morning.
 Rev. J. C. Kirkman, who has been attending conference here, went to Hood River yesterday for a short visit. He will also visit Portland before returning to his labors at Colton, Washington.
BORN.
 At Five-mile Thursday morning, Aug. 30th, to the wife of Vance Buffington, a son.
A "Run-down"
 And "need-up" feeling is the first warning that your liver isn't doing its work. And, with a torpid liver and the impure blood that follows it, you're an easy prey to all sorts of ailments. That is the time to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. As an appetizing, restorative tonic, to repel disease and build up the needed flesh and strength, there's nothing to equal it. It rouses every organ into healthful action, purifies and enriches the blood, braces up the whole system, and restores health and vigor.
 For every disease caused by a disordered liver or impure blood, it is the only guaranteed remedy. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, you have your money back.
 $500 is offered, by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh. Their remedy perfectly and permanently cures the worst cases.

A Racking Cough
 Cured by Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Mrs. P. D. HALL, 217 Genesee St., Lockport, N. Y., says:
 "Over thirty years ago, I remember hearing my father describe the wonderful curative effects of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. During a recent attack of La Grippe, which assumed the form of a catarrh, soreness of the lungs, accompanied by an aggravating cough, I used various remedies and prescriptions. While some of these medicines partially alleviated the coughing during the day, none of them afforded me any relief from that spasmodic action of the lungs which would seize me the moment I attempted to lie down at night. After ten or twelve such nights, I was Nearly in Despair, and had about decided to sit up all night in my easy chair, and procure what sleep I could in that way. It then occurred to me that I had a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I took a spoonful of this preparation in a little water, and was able to lie down without coughing. In a few moments, I fell asleep, and awoke in the morning greatly refreshed and feeling much better. I took a teaspoonful of the Pectoral every night for a week, then gradually decreased the dose, and in two weeks my cough was cured."

Steamship Line to Africa.
 PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 29.—The first direct steamship line between America and the west coast of Africa has been chartered in the state of New Jersey. It will be known as the African Steamship Company. About half of its stock is subscribed, and the boats will ply monthly between this city and Liberia, beginning about October 1st. The company, which will receive a subsidy from the Liberian government of $10,000 a year, intends to carry the United States mail.
Lost! Five Dollars Reward.
 Strayed from my west pasture, one iron-grey horse, branded (half circle) on left shoulder and two S's crossed on right shoulder; rather thin cinch sore on left ribs; foretop reached back to the place for halter. Probably went towards Tygh Ridge. Will give $5 reward for his return to me at my ranch, or a liberal reward for any information leading to his recovery.
