

WRINKLES

and hollow cheeks, and dull, sunken eyes, don't always mean that a woman's old. Half the time they only show that she's overworked or suffering. To such women, to every woman who is tired or afflicted, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription safely and certainly brings back health and strength. It's a legitimate medicine that corrects and cures; a tonic that invigorates and builds up; a nerve that soothes and strengthens. For all the derangements, irregularities and weaknesses peculiar to women, it is the only guaranteed remedy. If it doesn't benefit or cure, you have your money back.

A great many medicines "relieve" Catarrh in the Head. That means that it's driven from the head into the throat and lungs. But, by its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy perfectly and permanently cures.

The citizens of Oxford, Chenango county, N. Y., are to celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of Oxford academy on June 28 and 29. The institution is the oldest but one in the state. Horatio Seymour, Ward Hunt and other distinguished men were enrolled on its list of students.

Kenneth Bazemore had the good fortune to receive a small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera, and Diarrhoea Remedy when three members of his family were sick with dysentery. This one small bottle cured them all and he had some left which he gave to Geo. W. Baker, a prominent merchant of the place, Lewiston, N. C., and it cured him of the same complaint. When troubled with dysentery, diarrhoea, colic or cholera morbus, give this remedy a trial and you will be more than pleased with the result. The praise that naturally follows its introduction and use has made it very popular. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by Blakely & Houghton, druggists.

Clara—I'm afraid I should get tired of married life. I should like to be married one year and single the next, year and year about. Jack—Why don't you go on the stage, then?—New York Herald.

Deafness Cannot be Cured By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

"I know an old soldier who had chronic diarrhoea of long standing to have been permanently cured by taking Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Edward Shunpike, a prominent druggist of Minneapolis, Minn. "I have sold the remedy in this city for seven years and consider it superior to any other medicine now on the market for bowel complaints." 25 and 50 cent bottles of this remedy for sale by Blakely & Houghton druggists.

Even the most successful effort to bear the wheat market must go against the grain.—Buffalo Courier.

My boy was taken with a disease resembling bloody flux. The first thing I thought of was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Two doses of it settled the matter and cured him sound and well. I heartily recommend this remedy to all persons suffering from a like complaint. I will answer any inquiries regarding it when stamp is enclosed. I refer to any county official as to my reliability. Wm. Roach, J. P., Primor, Campbell Co., Tenn. WITH THE WHIP.

He Flicked the Revolver From the Stage Robber's Hand.

"There is quite a difference between staging in the early days of the state and now," said William Miller, the owner of the stage line running from Casadero to Ukiah, to a San Francisco Call man.

"When I came here from Boston in 1854, I drifted about a bit, and finally went into the service of Charles McLaughlin, the man who was afterward killed by Jerome Cox. He was the owner of the longest stage line at that time. It ran with relays from San Jose to Los Angeles.

"I remember once, in a lonely coast range canyon, through which the road wound, we had a little experience that was thrilling for the moment. It was about ten o'clock and a moonlight night. I was just putting the horses through. The stage was full of passengers, and there was a heavy treasure box.

"Just as I got around a bend in the road I saw the figure of a man on horseback standing by the side of the road. He yelled to stop, and I saw a gun barrel gleam in the moonlight. The horses were going at a speed that might be called breakneck, and I just made up my mind to take the chances of getting through. I saw the gun raised to the fellow's shoulder as we approached. I had my long whip in my hand, and with a desperation born of peril of the moment I made a vicious swipe at him.

"I don't know how it occurred, but the lash wound itself around the gun, and as we dashed by the whip was drawn taut, and I knew it had caught, so held fast. I was nearly pulled out of my seat, but the gun was dragged from the robber's hand and fell to the ground, at the same time it was discharged by the shock. It rattled along the road for quite a distance before the whiplash unwound itself. I don't know what the highwayman thought, but I'll bet he was surprised."

TREASURES OF JEYPORE.

Splendor of the Halls of Some of the Noble Palaces.

Myriad slender shafts of blue-veined alabaster and rose-tinted stone surrounded by fretted arcades carried out the prevailing idea of airy lightness, and the snowy cupolas above that sanctum sanctorum in the heart of the building known as "the Crown of the Palace" look as though a breath would carry them away like balls of thistle-down into the blue vault of Heaven. Priceless treasures are contained within the walls of the maharajah's princely abode, and a volume of the Mahabharata, one of the two great epic poems of ancient India, is the gem of the historic collection. This curiously illuminated manuscript, written in Persian character, was executed by the command of Emperor Akbar, who paid a lac of rupees, a sum equivalent to forty thousand pounds sterling, to the scribe who accomplished the laborious task. Golden margins and brilliant colors glow with unfaded freshness, and the delicacy of the poetical calligraphy suggests the utmost refinement of culture. Antique portraits on silver, copper, shell and foil decorate the marble walls of the "Hall of Splendor," which forms a noble vestibule to the Shish Mahal, a glass pavilion glistening with crystal chandeliers multiplied by reflection in countless mirrors. Marble alcoves overlook a green plainance shaded by a plantation, where the scarlet stars of blossoming poinsettias brighten the gloom of the banyan trees, which form a roof of verdure with interlacing boughs.

BELIEVES IN MAGIC.

The Indian Has Some Curious Notions About Plants and Animals.

Very reluctantly do civilized Indians give up their ideas of magic. The idea of worshipping growing objects is quite a settled one among the tribes, and some of the stories which connect corn and flowers with beneficent deities are very pleasing and attractive. Animals, too, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, are spoken of in a very singular and superstitious manner, and the different sizes of beasts which are hunted is accounted for in a story of the creation which is even more realistic and practical than the one told in the first chapter of Genesis. This story, which is frequently repeated with variations, is that at the time of the creation all the beasts of the field and forests clamored for priority in size. Each was vainglorious and dictatorial, and one after another was being humbled by being made smaller than a hated enemy, the idea being that everything human and otherwise that was born had a prior existence and came into the world with the benefit of experience thus derived. The doctrine of the transmigration of souls is so general among Indians of various tribes that there was nothing at all peculiar about this, and it is very probable that some of the early writers on this subject got their ideas from exceptionally intelligent exponents of Indian Buddhism, or something very similar to it.

Chinese Mourning.

The monthly bills of the Washington Gas Light company are printed on paper of a peculiar dirty yellow tint which happens to be the exact hue of the Chinese emblem of mourning. The long strips are left regularly at the doors of all houses in the city, and at the Chinese legation among the rest. Just after the change in ministers the strip was left as usual in the vestibule of the legation, and being carried to the new minister affected his profoundly. It was evidently intended, he thought, as a notification of somebody's death, and as it was left at the legation door it doubtless indicated the bereavement of some family high in official life. The minister at once gave orders to close the house. The usual instruments of mourning were brought out, the shutters were drawn, and passers-by for the remainder of the evening were regaled by a combination of curious noises, such as the Chinese only know how to utter when engaged in bewailing the dead.

WIVES EASILY OBTAINED.

How Charly Girls Are Given in Marriage to Deserving Italian Peasants.

At the far end of Naples lies the little church of Santa Maria Annunziata, which, once a year, on the day of Our Lady, wakes up into a brief life and excitement. In a silent row before a high altar kneel thirty girls, all in black garments, with folded hands, and eyes fixed on the picture of the Madonna before them.

These are orphans from the neighboring foundling asylum, says the Chicago Inter Ocean, and once a year those who have reached the age of eighteen are brought here to the church and may be chosen in marriage by any honest man whose papers are in order and whose character is good. At the door leading to the sacristy leans a gray-haired priest, the head of the asylum. By and by a young man makes his way from the back of the church and hands him a packet of papers. These the priest reads carefully, and, being satisfied, he gives them back and leads the candidate toward the row of girls.

Their eyes are fixed more steadfastly than ever on the altar, their hands are clasped tighter together, their faces turn a shade paler, their hearts beat quicker as the young man walks slowly along the row. At last he stops; his choice is made. He stretches out his hand with a little smile.

The girl rises, casts a long look, half thanks, half entreaty, at the picture of the Madonna, puts her hand into that of the stranger, and together they disappear into the sacristy. The ice being thus broken, other suitors come forward.

VALUE OF ALFALFA.

The Wonderful Vitality of This Peculiar Growth.

The desert wastes of New Mexico and Arizona may yet be broad fields of pasturage covered with herds of fattening cattle if the hopes of the men who are deeply interested in certain experiments are realized. The expectations of these men, says the San Francisco Call, are based upon the wonderful vitality of alfalfa or Mexican clover, the growth of which is astonishingly rapid and a field of which will yield several crops in a season. Its roots are said to go far down in search of moisture, sometimes to a depth of eighteen to twenty feet, and its nutritious properties and the avidity with which stock eat it are well known. The large land and live stock investment companies which are now operating in New Mexico and Arizona have, as an essential part of their schemes of utilizing the desert lands, the growing of large tracts of alfalfa with which to feed their range cattle and other stock. At one ranch alone, the La Cuoca, in Mora county, N. M., one thousand head of range cattle are now being fed and fattened for market on alfalfa. The Mexican clover is grown by aid of modern irrigation, and the lands laid down to it tend to improve in fertility. Stockmen down in that country have lost all faith in the prowess of modern rainmakers and their schemes, and they are running their efforts into more practicable channels.

INGENUOUS SMUGGLING.

False Bank Notes Carried Into Russia in Hollow Pencils.

"One of the most ingenious devices for smuggling was detected in Russia not long ago," said O. L. Rastovitch, of St. Petersburg, as recorded by the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. "A great number of false bank notes had been put into circulation within the dominions of the czar. They could only have been imported, and although the strictest search was made habitually over every vessel entering a Russian port, no trace of the smuggling of false notes was discovered. Accident, however, at last brought the mystery to light. It happened that several cases of lead pencils arrived one day from England, and while being examined one of them fell out from a package, and the custom house officer, picking it up, cut it to a point and used it to sign the orders which delivered up the pencils to the consignee. He kept the loose pencil for his own use, and a few days afterward, because it needed a good point, he cut it again and found that there was no more lead. He cut still further, and was surprised to find a thin roll of paper nested in the hollow place where the lead was supposed to be. The paper was one of the false notes, and in this way they had been smuggled into the country."

The House of Hapsburg.

Rudolph von Hapsburg, riding to his Swiss home from hunting, came upon a priest carrying the sacrament to a sick man. The priest on foot was stopped by a river. Rudolph immediately dismounted, set the priest and sacrament on horseback and led the steed by the rein to the sick man's house. He declined to take the horse again to daily use, but gave it to the priest for the service of the church. Remembering this deed, Werner, archbishop of Mainz, in 1273, procured the election of Rudolph as king of the Romans and Kaiser. Hence we have the source and fount of the proud imperial house of Hapsburg. Schiller enhances the legend in one of the best of his ballads, "Der Graf von Hapsburg." It may be mentioned that the late heir to the imperial throne of Austria was named after his illustrious ancestor, Rudolph.

He Knew the Law.

A certain justice of the peace from the state of Iowa, having arrived previous to a trial at a conclusion upon a question of law highly satisfactory to himself, refused to entertain an argument by the opposing counsel. "If your honor please," counsel pleaded, "I should like to cite a few authorities upon the point." Here he was sharply interrupted by the justice, who stated: "The court knows the law, and is thoroughly advised in the premises, and has given his opinion, and that settles it." "It was not," continued counsel, "with an idea of convincing your honor that you are wrong, but I should like to show you what a blighted fool Blackstone was."

A "Run-down"

And "used-up" feeling is the first warning that your liver isn't doing its work. And, with a torpid liver and the impure blood that follows it, you're an easy prey to all sorts of ailments. That is the time to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical discovery. As an appetizing, restorative tonic, to repel disease and build up the needed flesh and strength, there's nothing to equal it. It rouses every organ into healthful action, purifies and enriches the blood, braces up the whole system, and restores health and vigor.

For every disease caused by a disordered liver or impure blood, it is the only guaranteed remedy. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, you have your money back.
