

A DISTURBANCE

isn't what you want, if your stomach and bowels are irregular. That's about all you get, though, with the ordinary pill. It may relieve you for the moment, but you're usually in a worse state afterward than before.

This is just where Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets do most good. They act in an easy and natural way, very different from the huge, old-fashioned pills. They're not only pleasanter, but there's no reaction afterward, and their help lasts. One little sugar-coated Pellet for a gentle laxative or corrective—three for a cathartic. Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, Dizziness, Sick and Bilious Headaches, are promptly relieved and cured.

They're the smallest, the easiest to take—and the cheapest pill you can buy, for they're guaranteed to give satisfaction, or your money is returned.

You pay only for the good you get.

It won't do to experiment with Catarrh. There's the constant danger of driving it to the lungs. You can have a perfect and permanent cure with Dr. Sage's Remedy.

"Well, Dawkins, how's politics? Going to run for office this fall?" "Nope. This is a bad time." "That's so. There are a lot of investigating committees around. A statesman can't make much more than his salary these days."—Harper's Bazar.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

While in Chicago, Mr. Charles L. Kahler, a prominent shoe merchant of Des Moines, Iowa, had quite a serious time of it. He took such a severe cold that he could hardly talk or navigate, but the prompt use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy cured him so quickly that others at the hotel who had had colds followed his example and half a dozen persons ordered it from the nearest drug store. They were profuse in their thanks to Mr. Kahler for telling them how to cure a bad cold so quickly. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton Druggists.

THE TELEPHONE NUISANCE.

How a Man Got Rid of Neighbors Who Wanted to Use His 'Phone.

"A business friend of mine has finally succeeded in ridding himself of a great nuisance," said Ernest F. Edwards, of Boston, who was at the Southern, to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. "His office happens to be on a floor in a building where there are a large number of tenants, but no other telephones besides his own. The result is he has been for months bored to death by telephone deadbeats, many of whom have used his telephone a great deal more than he has. The nuisance got so bad at last that it was quite usual to have two visitors waiting for each other at the 'phone. He tried various devices for a long time, but finally took the company into his confidence and got them to give him a new number, but not to change the plate on the 'phone. He specially notified central on no account to connect anyone who called up the old number. The scheme worked like a charm. For a day or two the nuisance was increased by the importunities of patrons of his telephone and their indignant protests when they failed to secure connection. It did not take long, however, for them to realize that the telephone was of no further use to them, and the way my friend echoed their protestations and lamentations was most interesting. He has the telephone all to himself now, and is not troubled in any way."

ANCIENT AZTEC RUINS.

Little Known Remains in the Mountain Regions of Arizona.

An old-time prospector lately arrived in Prescott, A. T., for a three months' sojourn in one of the most interesting and least-known portions of the territory, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. The wonderland from which he has returned is the country lying between the Mazatlan and Verde ranges of mountains. Mr. Court thinks that section contains more Aztec ruins than any other portion of America, evidences of human habitation being found from the highest peak to the lowest valleys. In one place he found a road or street of three miles in length, perfectly smooth and straight and sixty feet in width. On either side of the street, the entire distance, are ruins. The road was evidently built prior to some mighty earthquake, as it ends abruptly at the brink of a yawning chasm. He dug up and found lying about a great number of skeletons, which were in a fair state of preservation, the heads of all being alike, very large over the eyes and receding and almost flat toward the back of the head, jaws well developed, but front upper and lower teeth short and sharp. The ruins show the people to have been workers in stone, some fragments of work in turquoise being found. Every available foot of land had once been cultivated. The region, although little heretofore has been known about it, is very accessible, and will no doubt become an interesting resort for travelers.

ONE OF CHINA'S CITIES.

Canton, Where the Plague Comes From, and It Isn't Surprising.

A line or two from Mrs. Archibald Dunn's new book gives a striking picture of the horrors of life in Canton. "The circumference of the city walls measures from six to seven miles, and within their inclosure there exist one million Chinese people. I had been in many oriental cities and had smelt many oriental smells, but those of Canton," says Mrs. Dunn, "were giants to them all. The passage-like streets are open sewers, every description of refuse being cast into them and forming continuous heaps on either side of the way. The water supply is raised from wells in the streets, the mouths of which are on a level with the ground, and a shower of rain, or drippings from the buckets in which they lift it must carry back the surrounding filth in a way horrible to think of. Through miles and miles of these high, narrow alleys did we travel, through the most fetid, airless atmosphere that human lungs could cope with, through the most evil and noisome odors that could assail human nostrils, past the most loathsome sights in the shape of abnormal butcher meat—such as dogs and cats, skinned and dressed ready for cooking; rats, both dried and hanging alive by the tails; frogs and unmanly-looking fish in tubs of water, alive, and awaiting death and consumption."

Inconfortable Corean Houses.

The "kang," the Corean house furnace, renders the atmosphere of the inns where travelers take their rest, almost insufferable. It is pictured as a primitive, though effective, means of heating the houses throughout the kingdom. A small fire of brushwood is lighted in the small furnace at one side of the house, thence numerous flues under the mud floor conduct the smoke and hot air to an upright chimney or hole in the wall at the opposite end or side, and a little fire suffices to thoroughly heat a large house. Capt. Cavendish says he is not surprised to find coughs and colds common, for an indoor temperature of seventy or eighty degrees and an outdoor one of zero form trying extremes. Moreover, the constant warmth seems to keep alive the numerous flies, fleas, bugs and cockroaches with which most of the houses swarm.

Origin of the Chinese Cue.

It seems that it was not the custom of the ancient Chinese to shave the head and wear a cue. That was a custom brought in by the Tartar invaders, nearly three hundred years ago, and they forced it upon the conquered provinces. The result was that many Chinese were driven into Corea, and the inhabitants of that province when they yielded to the suzerainty of the Tartars stipulated that they should be permitted to preserve their ancient dress. So the Coreans do not shave the head, but wear their hair as their ancestors wore it four thousand years ago, a manner which is seen in China only on the stage.

HAD A POWER OF ETERNITY.

Mike Was Weak in Legal Lore But Strong in Dog and Gun.

"Speaking of the term 'power of attorney,'" said a well-known lawyer the other day to a New York Evening Sun man, "reminds me of a little incident that occurred to Judge — and myself last spring up in Sullivan county. We were out for a week's trouting and determined to poach on the preserves of a fishing club which had secured control of the river for a distance of several miles and where public fishing was strictly forbidden. We knew that part of the creek was guarded by an old Irishman in the employ of the club, who patrolled the banks, accompanied by a ferocious-looking bull dog and a gun identified with the revolutionary period, but we decided to take chances rather than return with empty creels. So on the following morning, just at the peep of day, we sneaked up the creek, through the woods, and struck in at a point just out of sight of the clubhouse. We had a glorious time until about nine o'clock and had filled our creels to the crowding point when suddenly old Mike, with his dog and gun, appeared on the opposite bank. 'Hey, ye devils! Come out o' thot!' he shouted. We pretended not to hear, meanwhile edging over toward the opposite bank.

"'Av yez don't come out O'll sic me dog on yez!' roared Mike. This time I looked up, but pretended not to understand.

"'Yes!' I shouted back, 'it's a fine day!'"

"'A foine day is it?' bellowed the frate Celt: 'Shure ye'll think it's a dommed bad day if yez don't come over here out o' thot!' And Mike began to finger the antique musket ominously. I began to think it was time to temporize.

"By what authority do you order us out of this stream?' I asked as severely as I could.

"'Be what authority is it?' screamed Mike, 'be what authority? Shure an' I'd have yez know thot I've full power av eternity over the creek, an' av yez don't come out I'll blow the top o' yer heads off!'"

"This was too much. We didn't mind the dog or the gun, but a full power of eternity was something we didn't want to contend with, so we yielded and left the stream."

WHY HE QUIT GAMBLING.

A Virginian Who Was Ashamed of Himself for Winning.

That a man should look after money lost in gambling with penitent eyes and vow never again to be tempted to like sinful foolishness seems not so strange. But Gen. Maury, in his "Recollections of a Virginian," tells how he was led to a similar decision by an opposite experience. The occurrence took place while he was an instructor at West Point.

We had a very jovial and humorous set of young officers at the academy for several years after the Mexican war, and great kindness of feeling prevailed. We played whist, dime points, faro and brag at the same moderate rate. It was noted that at faro we almost invariably broke the bank.

One winter I was laid up for many weeks by an injury to my leg, received while riding, and my room, during all that time, was the gathering place after dinner. The card table was drawn up to my bed, and I played my hand until tired and sleepy.

One night we were playing brag, and as I became drowsy, little Frank Clarke said he would play my hand for me while I slept. When I awoke, the next morning, I found under my pillow the greatest amount I had ever won at cards.

I reflected that it was a demoralizing amusement; that avarice, the basest of human passions, was its moving impulse; that often, at the card table, I observed some show of feeling that left an unpleasant remembrance against a comrade, and that none of us could afford to win or lose even a few dollars; so I ceased all play for money, and have been glad of it ever since.

DO FISH FEEL PAIN?

Analogy Points to the Conclusion That Hooking Is Not Pleasant.

There is little doubt, remarks the Pall Mall Gazette, that the talk about fish feeling little pain when they are hooked and killed, or hooked and lost, is chiefly cant. All analogy points to the conclusion that it must be extremely unpleasant for a fish, however cold-blooded a creature he be, to be caught on a hook and dragged out of his element. At the same time it seems to be an established fact that fish in many cases soon forget the wounds inflicted by a hook.

A pike struck hard by a many-hooked minnow has been known to come again at the bait in a few minutes; and Mr. Halford, in one of his books, tells us that he once left a wickham in a grayling of about three pounds, which about a quarter of an hour later he hooked and killed with another fly. An autopsy having been performed the wickham was discovered in the stomach of the grayling, together with a great mass of partially digested natural flies. A treacherous hook broke in the mouth of a Wye trout the other day. Yet the fish rose again in about an hour's time, and was duly brought into the creel—a beautiful healthy pouter, with a wound in the mouth, caused by the broken hook, it had managed to dislodge.

How Beetles Defend Themselves.

Beetles have other defenses than their cuirass, such as nauseous or caustic liquids which they expel on provocation, and an English scientist has found that certain beetles actually exude their blood, charged with noxious products. So far he finds the practice confined to the chrysomelids, some of the timarcha, adamonia, the coccinellids and the meloidae. The blood of the coccinellids has a strong disagreeable odor like that of the whole insect; that of the timarcha is odorless but has an astringent flavor, and in the case of the timarcha primeloides is venomous. The blood of the meloidae contains much cantharidin.
