THE INCOME TAX.

Every person with an income of $4,000 per year and every business corporation has to face the income tax of the tariff bill. As showing what is considered a person's income let us quote some items from the law:

Interests upon notes, bonds and other securities; profits realized within a year from sales of real estate purchased within a year from sales of real estate purchased within two years previous; interest received or accrued upon all notes, bonds, mortgages or other forms of indebtedness, whether paid or not, if good and collectible, less the interest paid by such person during this year; all interest on bonds, notes or coupons; receipts from live stock, sugar, cotton, wool, butter, cheese, pork, beef, mutton, or other meats; hay, grain or other productions of produce of the estate of such person, less the amount expended in the production of such stock or produce; all other gains, profits or income derived from any source whatever, except that derived in salary from the United States.

The following deductions are allowed:

1. Necessary expenses to carry on business.
2. All interest paid during the year.
3. All taxes paid during the year.
4. All losses actually sustained not compensated by insurance or otherwise.
5. Debts ascertained to be worthless.

Another provision is that: In computing the income of any person, corporation or association, there shall not be included the amount received from any corporation, company or association if the tax of two per cent has been paid upon its net profits of such organization as required by law.

The last clause given above would include all employes or corporations, although not intended to do so. Every corporation will be obliged to make a sworn statement, in which it will be forced to state:

1. Its gross profits.
2. Its expenses, exclusive of interest, annuities and dividends.
3. The net profits without allowing for interest, annuities or dividends.
4. Amounts paid for interest, annuities and dividends.
5. Every person who receives a salary in excess of $4,000, and the amount.

The O. R. & N. Co. is endeavoring to have its taxes reduced from $4,500 to $4,000 per mile. Its claim for a reduction is based upon the deterioration in values caused by inability to earn interest on the amount invested. The fact is no doubt true, but what is true of the railroad is also true of every other industry. The O. R. & N. is certainly getting rich just as fast as the wheat grower or the stockman. If the assessment of one is reduced so should that of the other be. This would prove gratifying to everybody were it not for the fact that just so much money must be raised, and if all assessments were reduced, the rate of taxation would have to be increased. The only question to be considered in dealing with the company's application is, "Is their assessment as compared with that of the balance of the property in the county, too high?"

The entire press of the state has had something to say concerning the book trust; each presuming that what the other said was true. Now we do not know anything concerning this alleged octopus, and would like some information. Who and what is the American book trust. What do they propose to do, and how do they intend to do it? We believe in having a good selection of books, and then sticking to them, and if we have not that kind now, in the name of common sense why haven't we? If the books selected by the last batch of school superintendents are no good, what guaranty have we that another batch selected by the present superintendents would be any better. But in the meanwhile who knows anything about the alleged "book trust?"

The latest news from China is decidedly interesting. The Chinese troops at Wiju are said to have mutinied. The army is lacking in two things, one is patriotism and the other ammunition. At Wiju the troops mutinied and threw away their arms, because they had no ammunition. Peking is said to be in a state of panic, the mention of the Japanese being sufficient to make the whole city tremble. The Japs on the contrary are full of fight and enthusiasm, and that they will march on Peking is a certain fact. China is already whipped, her armies are demoralized and her people in a state of terror. The next month will show great things in the Chinese empire.

If it is, it should be reduced; if it is not, it should be left as it is, or raised until it bears neither more nor less than its proper share of taxation. That $4,500 per mile is not an exorbitant assessment, is a self evident fact, and especially is this true when it is taken into consideration that the rolling stock is assessed at only $750 per mile. In computing the amount of interest that must be earned the value of the road is put at several times $5,000 per mile, and it should pay at least on thirty per cent of its value.

President Cleveland has issued a proclamation granting amnesty to all Mormons who have violated the laws concerning polygamy. The president gives as a reason for his action that the church authorities have instructed their people to obey the law and to cease the practice of polygamy, and the president, believing that the practice has been abandoned, pardons all who have violated the law.

The Florida storm, the particulars of which are just becoming known, did a great amount of damage to orchards and orange groves, but fortunately no lives were lost. The prediction of this storm and the two days' warning given those who lived within its area is the most noteworthy thing the weather bureau has ever done.

TIMES ARE CHANGED.

An Old Woman's Reflections on the Virtues of Long Ago.

"Law," said one of the wealthiest old ladies in Clarke county, Ind., the other day, according to the Louisville Commercial, "girls are not what they used to be. This is the first time that I have been in town for thirty years, and I had no idea that there was any such carryings-on. Why, there is a man who works for a living at so much per week, and his family has a carriage, and they spend nearly everything he makes. The dinners they have at their houses are nicer than I have, and their children are dressed finer than any I ever saw before. I reared fifteen children myself, but none of them ever had such clothes as these children of this man have. Still, all of mine now have good farms and bank accounts, and go to church, and try to be Christians. When I was married my husband had a horse and I owned a cow. They were all that we had. We rented a place, and now we not only own that place, but several more in that neighborhood, besides some business property in Louisville. I have never worked hard, and have enjoyed myself in a quiet way. These people who are spending everything they get, and would be in a bad fix if the husband were suddenly thrown out of work, can hardly be having a better time than I am, because they must be continually worrying as to how long they can keep it up. I am positively alarmed when I think of it myself. These are the kind of people that fill the almshouses. Everybody can save, unless there is sickness in the family."

A THREE-EYED LIZARD.

One of the Most Striking Curiosities of the Reptilian Kingdom.

"Speaking of lizards, the queerest one we have seen for a long time reached us the other day from New Zealand," says a scientist in the Washington correspondence of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. "It is named the 'cyclopean lizard' because it has a third eye on the top of its head. However, it is not a true lizard, but a sort of connecting link between the lizards and the turtles. The species is limited to a small island near New Zealand, and it has been rendered almost entirely extinct by hogs with a taste for its flesh. It attains a length of three feet, but all of the big ones were eaten up long ago. The third eye is rudimentary, but a dissection of its structure plainly reveals the eye socket, the lens, and a strand of nerves connecting the visual tract of the brain."

"This eye is interesting chiefly because it corresponds to the third eye with which every human being is provided. The so-called 'pineal gland' is actually an eye that has become rudimentary. The gland is about the size and shape of a pea, and is situated in the middle of the head. Place the end of your finger just above the bridge of your nose, on a level with the eyes, and directly behind that point five inches is the gland. It still retains somewhat the structure of an eye. The ancients supposed it to be the center of consciousness and the seat of the soul."

PERT PARROTS.

Cute Sayings Attributed to the Talkative Birds.

There is no end to the stories about parrots. We all doubtless remember the cheeky bird at the parrot show, which, uncovered last of all among the competitors, placed his head knowingly on one side, and ejaculated: "My eye! what a lot of parrots!"—of course securing the prize. A Boston man has a parrot that puts its claw before its face, and shyly croaks: "Polly had a letter this morning—an offer of marriage for Polly!" and a Philadelphia parrot earnestly adjures the children to "Hurry up to school—last bell is ringing—you'll be late!" Another poor parrot was owned by a young man who tried to teach it to welcome a rich relative with the words: "Good morning, uncle!" The bird was slow to learn, so he lost his temper, took the bird by the neck and shook it, exclaiming, angrily: "Say 'good morning, uncle,' you fool!" The next day the young man heard a terrible noise in the henry. On making his way there, he found three hens dead on the floor, while on a perch in the corner was the parrot, holding a hen by the throat, and shrieking: "Say 'good morning, uncle,' you fool!"

A Little Daughter

Of a Church of England minister cured of a distressing rash, by Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Mr. RICHARD BIRKS, the well-known Druggist, 207 McGill st., Montreal, P. Q., says:

I have sold Ayer's Family Medicines for 40 years, and have heard nothing but good said of them. I know of many performed by Ayer's Sarsaparilla, one in particular being that of a little daughter of a Church of England minister. The child was literally covered from head to foot with a red and exceedingly troublesome rash, from which she had suffered for two or three years, in spite of the best medical treatment available. Her father was in great distress about the case, and, at my recommendation, at last began to administer Ayer's Sarsaparilla, two bottles of which effected a complete cure, much to her relief and her father's delight. I am sure, were he here to-day, he would testify in the strongest terms as to the merits of

Wonderful Cures

Ayer's Sarsaparilla
