"When I was a boy," said Mr. Hasbin Swift, "it was no trick at all for me to handle a horse. I'd take the wildest kind of an animal and run him once around the track, and then he'd be broke." "I suppose you enjoyed that more than the horse did?" "I guess so. But the horse got even. Now he runs around the track once, and when he gets through I'm broke."—Washington Star.

There is no medicine so often needed in every home and so admirably adapted to the purposes for which it is intended, as Chamberlain's Pain Balm. Hardly a week passes but some member of the family has need of it. A toothache or headache may be cured by it. A touch of rheumatism, or neuralgia quieted. The severe pain of a burn or scald promptly relieved and the sore healed in much less time than when medicine has to be sent for. A sprain may be promptly treated before inflammation sets in, which insures a cure in about one-third of the time otherwise required. Cuts and bruises should receive immediate treatment before the parts become swollen, which can only be done when Pain Balm is kept at hand. A sore throat may be cured before it becomes serious. A troublesome corn may be removed by applying it twice a day for a week or two. A lame back may be cured and several days of valuable time saved or a pain in the side or chest relieved without paying a doctor bill. Procure a 50 cent bottle at once and you will never regret it. For sale by Blakeley & Houghton Druggists.

Doctor—Your husband does not appear to be getting any better, but I think the trouble is mental or emotional, rather than physical. Isn't he worrying about something? Mrs. Blank—Let me—see. Why, of course he is, poor dear. I never thought of it. He is probably worrying over the fact that he is missing three square meals a day.—New York Weekly.

Let it run down, and your cough may end in something serious. It's pretty sure to, if your blood is poor. That is just the time and condition that invites Consumption. The seeds are sown and it has fastened its hold upon you, before you know that it is near.

It won't do to trifle and delay, when the remedy is at hand. Every disorder that can be reached through the blood yields to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. For Severe Coughs, Bronchial, Throat and Lung Diseases, Asthma, Scrofula in every form, and even the Scrofulous affection of the lungs that's called Consumption, in all its earlier stages, it is a positive and complete cure. It is the only blood-cleanser, strength-restorer, and flesh-builder so effective that it can be guaranteed. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, you have your money back.

Perfection is attained in Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. It cures the worst cases. Only 50 cents; by druggists.

Perez Galdos, the Spanish novelist, has written a play entitled "The End," with the explanation that it is to be as the end of his career as playwright. He is tired, he says, of the excitement and disappointments of his career, longs for rest, and has made up his mind never to write for, visit, or read about another theatre.

See the World's Fair for Fifteen Cents Upon receipt of your address and fifteen cents in postage stamps, we will mail you prepaid our souvenir portfolio of the world's Columbian exposition, the regular price is fifty cents, but as we want you to have one, we make the price nominal. You will find it a work of art and a thing to be prized. It contains full page views of the great buildings, with descriptions of same, and is executed in highest style of art. If not satisfied with it, after you get it, we will refund the stamps and let you keep the book. Address H. E. BUCKLEN & Co., Chicago, Ill.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure in the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O. Sold by Druggists, 75c.

INDIAN RICE PICKERS.

How They Inaugurate the Season in the Wisconsin Fields.

The Exercises Include the Execution and Mock Eating of a Dog and the Welkin Is Made to Ring by the Red-men's Revels.

Up in Chippewa county, Wis., around the shores of Rice Lake, weird fires break the darkness during the August nights, and the occasional lone white man, camped in the neighboring wilderness, hears, apparently emanating from the flames, unearthly kinds of noises, echoing over the waters. This is the season of the year the Chippewa Indians come down from their settlements on Sand Lake to pick the wild rice which grows in profusion at Rice Lake, about ten miles from the village of Cartwright.

Hundreds of braves and squaws and papooses assemble on the borders of the lake, and the night is sometimes made hideous with their historic dances and revelries, says the Chippewa Falls Herald. Last season the rice picking was inaugurated with the most solemn dance in the traditions of the tribe—the dog dance. It requires a milk white dog for the occasion, whose sacrifice is demanded before the dance can proceed, and while the animal's blood is flowing from the wound which causes its death, the dance is begun and continues with the greatest fervor until the dog has breathed its last. The carcass is afterward baked in a boiling pot of water and the Indians, after going through an imitation of feasting on the remains, bury it with exaggerated ceremonies.

The next day rice-picking is commenced, and to those who never witnessed the mode of gathering the seed the operations of the Indians are certainly interesting. Several of the tribe take a canoe, and while one paddles around through the rice fields, the others knock the seeds from the heads into the bottom of the boat. After a load is obtained it is rowed to shore, where others await it to take charge of the "curing" operations. It is thrown into a large kettle, which stands over a blazing fire, and is allowed to bake there until turned into a beautiful brown. Then another set of workers take charge of it, and it is subjected to the "stamping" operation. At this part of the proceedings the spectators are liable to become a little disgusted with the work. The rice is lowered in a deer skin into a pit in the earth, and a swarthy Indian, stripped to the waist, jumps into the hole and commences to stamp with all his might. If he sees a doubtful expression on the faces of those not familiar with this method of cleaning the rice he reassures them with the statement that his "feet are heap clean, wash 'em good before getting in," and goes on with the arduous exercise amid clouds of dust. After the foreign substances are thus removed it is set away in baskets, ready for the market.

The rice is sold to stores and private families for ten cents a pound. About six hundred bushels are gleaned yearly and the tribe is amply repaid for its trouble in gathering and preparing it. This year the yield has not been so large as it has been in former seasons. The plant is said to be gradually dying out, owing to the manner in which the Indians gather it, and it may require only a few seasons more to kill it effectually. The land on which it stands is owned by a Menominee company and is donated to the Chippewa tribe for the picking.

After the rice season is over cranberry commences, and several weeks' employment is obtained on the marshes near Cartwright.

The White and Black Cross Fish.

Both China and Japan have long been known as lands where rare forms of both vegetable and animal life exist, but I don't remember of ever having seen anything in print until lately concerning the "cross fish," a piscatorial wonder which abounds in the fresh waters of both countries. The rarest specimen of the two is the one known to the Japs by a term signifying "the fish of the black cross." It is a pink-colored fish (belonging to the goldfish family), only about four inches long, and seemingly almost transparent, with the exception of a jet black cross extending down the back, with side arms pointing down and outward toward the lateral fins. The "white cross fish" appears to be but a variety of the above described species, resembling it in general outline of form. In this variety the skin is of a more decided red and the tail broader and more flattened. It takes its common name from the fact that both sides are marked with perfect figures of white crosses.

A Retrograding State. The population of Vermont was 330,551 in 1870, 232,286 in 1880, and 332,429 in 1890. In other words, the state has been practically stationary for twenty years, and during the decade preceding 1890 the gain was only 136 souls. As Burlington, Rutland, Barre and some other large towns had several thousand more inhabitants in 1891 than in 1880, the smaller towns and the rural communities, of course, lost ground, and the extent of the loss is illustrated in such facts as that during this period the number of farms shrank from 35,522 to 32,573, the total acreage from 4,23,588 to 4,705,636 and the improved acreage from 3,296,461 to 2,655,943, while the unimproved acreage increased from 1,596,127 to 1,729,703, and is now larger than in 1890.

Saluting the Princess.

An amusing scene occurred in Stuttgart the other day. The king's daughter, Pauline, always goes about in very plain attire. On this occasion she passed a sentinel who did not recognize her and neglected to perform the proper salutations. A sergeant across the street made violent gestures to make him grasp the situation, whereupon the guard said to the princess: "Say, miss, the sergeant over there wants to see you."

S. B. MED. MFG. CO.,
 Dufur, Oregon.

Gentlemen: On arriving home last week, I found all well and anxiously awaiting. Our little girl, eight and one-half years old, who had wasted away to 35 pounds, is now well, strong and vigorous, and well fleshed up. S. B. Cough Cure has done its work well. Both of the children like it. Your S. B. Cough Cure has cured and kept away all hoarseness from me. So give it to every one, with greetings for all. Wishing you prosperity, we are Yours, MR. & MRS. J. F. FORD.

If you wish to feel fresh and cheerful, and ready for the Spring's work, cleanse your system with the Headache and Liver Cure, by taking two or three doses each week. Sold under a positive guarantee. 50 cents per bottle by all druggists.
