THE MONEY GLUT.

Bradstreet's Journal calls attention to that feature of the existing financial situation in all the principal commercial countries usually described as the glut of money. It is a phenomenon in finance for which no one has an explanation. It often occurs that there is a temporary monetary congestion and money will gather to the financial centers for a specific purpose. It frequently happens that in anticipation of a big loan or of some great enterprise that is about to be inaugurated money will be called in and there will be a temporary glut, but it doesn't last long. In the present instance, however, there is no special object in view, and no particular cause can be assigned. It has been a glut of long duration, nor does the end of the situation seem to be in sight. Several attempts have been made in London and New York to institute a speculative movement which would furnish temporary employment for these accumulations, but in each it proved a failure. The money would not go out, it could not be forced out, but has continued to pile up until the banks are actually tired of holding it. As compared with this time a year ago, the Bank of England holds specie to the amount of $65,000,000 more than it held last fall, and altogether there is now about $200,000,000 lying idle in its vaults. The reserves of the Bank of France have increased $40,000,000 within the last year, while the increase in the holdings of the German Reichsbank are but little under that amount. We know what a glut there has been in New York and in other Eastern cities. According to the last report of the associated banks of New York there was an increase of $96,000,000 in the cash reserves during the year, and there is now an idle surplus of over $60,000,000 in spite of the revival of demands for money to move the grain crop. In short, money is a drug in every financial center of the world, and has been for more than a year. It is now the most unproductive property that a person can own. With its vaults filled to overflowing the Bank of England has been compelled to cut down its dividend because it was impossible to find profitable employment for its accumulations. Perhaps there has never been a time in the history of the world when such grossly abnormal financial conditions existed. This prolonged glut of money is in the nature of a freak. It is so far out of the usual order of things that financial experts confess their inability to furnish an explanation or to predict what the end will be.—Telegram.

BAPTISTS AND HOPS.

The Northwestern Baptist Association, which has associated with it the Baptist churches of Western Washington and British Columbia, 75 in all, in session at Centralia, Wash., almost unanimously adopted this preamble and resolution:
 "WHEREAS, A large portion of the fertile land of this convention field is devoted to the culture of hops for brewing purposes; and
 "WHEREAS, A large number of the members of our churches are receiving the greater portion of their financial incomes from hop culture; therefore be it
 "Resolved, That it is the sense of this convention that the raising of hops, barley or other cereals for brewing or distilling purposes is an alliance with the saloon and Satan in his work of ruin and damnation, with which no disciple of Christ ought in any way to be connected."
 Without going into the merits or demerits of the saloon question, it strikes us that the good people who passed the above resolutions would sooner take a prize for aggressiveness than for judgment or reason. It is true that hops are used for making beer, and that it could not be made without them, but it is also true that they are used for many purposes. If it is wrong to grow a crop because that crop may be put to uses that certain persons do not approve of, then the wrong will have to continue or the population will have to die. Corn, wheat, rye, sugarcane and beets are all used in the manufacture of alcohol, yet surely even so fanatical a lot as those at Centralia would hardly insist that it was unchristian to grow these articles. Money is used to gamble with, to bribe with, to tempt to crime and clear the criminal, at least to as large an extent as it is in missionary work, yet surely for that reason our friends of Centralia would not advocate the destruction of all money.
 To go further, we might add that bad men sometimes join the Baptist church, just as they do other denominations or societies, and so far as their example is concerned, bring religion into disrepute; but because of this should our Centralia friends insist upon the destruction of all men or the cessation of all religion? Most assuredly not.

Detective Joe Day of Portland is the only one who has caught onto a genuine clue to the robbery here. He has found a man who dreamed he saw the whole business. Saw the man who helped carry the box in the office, whom he minutely described. What gives Mr. Day's discovery importance, and establishes the guilt of the party named, is the fact that not only did Detective Day's man dream that he had seen the robbery committed by the man who helped carry the box into the office, but he dreamed it—twice.

"When I was a Boy,"

Writes Postmaster J. C. WOODSON, Forest Hill, W. Va., "I had a bronchial trouble of such a persistent and stubborn character, that the doctor pronounced it incurable with ordinary medicines, and advised me to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I did so, and one bottle cured me. For the last fifteen years, I have used this preparation with good effect whenever I take and I know of numbers of people who keep it in the house all the time, not considering it safe to be without it."

"I have been using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for 36 years, with the most satisfactory results, and can cheerfully recommend it as being especially adapted to all pulmonary complaints. I have, for many years, made pulmonary and other medicines a special study, and I have come to the conclusion that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral occupies a position pre-eminent over other medicines of the class."—Chas. Davenport, Dover, N. J.

Mrs. Huzwif—Do you have your cooking done with white or brown sugar now, Mrs. Richnow? Mrs. Richnow—Why, with white sugar, of course; it's so refined you know.—Boston News.

A fine head of hair is an indispensable element of beauty. Ayer's Hair Vigor maintains youthful freshness and luxuriance, restores to faded and gray hair its original color, prevents baldness, removes dandruff, and cures scalp diseases. It gives perfect satisfaction.

Mrs. Caller—What is the name of your new servant? Mrs. Wiley—We call her "Bliss." Mrs. Calley—Why? Mrs. Wiley—Because ignorance is bliss.—Tib-Bits.

When catarrh attacks a person of scrofulous diathesis, the disease is almost sure to become chronic. The only efficacious cure, therefore, is Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which expels scrofula from the system and the catarrh soon follows suit. Local treatment is only a waste of time.
