FERRETS AND FERRETING.

How the Little Animals Are Handled Where They Are Made to Work. In England ferrets are more for work than as pets and are used for making rabbits bolt from their burrows. To do this scarcely any training is necessary; the three young ferrets which we used the other day worked as well as their more experienced parents. There are various reasons why white ferrets are to be preferred as opposed to the brown polecat variety. They are usually more docile and pleasant to handle. A brown ferret is apt to be nipped up by a sharp dog in mistake for a rat or rabbit, while a white one is always apparent, even when moving among the densest herbage. This specially applies to night time, and ence poachers invariably use white ferrets. Gamekeepers who know their business prefer ferrets taken from poachers to any others. The poacher carefully selects his ferrets, and from the nature of his trade he cannot afford to work bad ones. Some ferrets cause rabbits to bolt rapidly, while others are slow.

Sometimes a ferret will drive a rab-bit to the end, of a blind burrow, and after killing it will not return until it has gorged itself with blood; and more trouble is added if the ferret curls itself up for an after-dinner sleep. Then, of course, it has either to be left or dug out; if the former, it is well to bar every exit and return with a dead rabbit when hunger has succeeded the gorged sleep. Ferreting is mostly practiced in winter; and it is to guard against such occasions as, these that vorking ferrets are generally muzzled. A cruel practice used to obtain of stitching together the lips of the ferrets to prevent their worrying rabbits and then "laying up." But the most humane method of muzzling is with a soft string, a muzzle constructed of which may be quite effective and at the same time not uncomfortable to wear. Care must be taken not to hurt the ferret, as if the string annoys him he will endeavor to do nothing but get it off. Occasionally ferrets are worked with a line attached, but this is an objectionable practice. There may be a root or stick in which the line may get entangled, when there will be digging and no end of trouble in getting at it.

SEEDS SOWN WITH ARTILLERY. How Gunpowder Helped to Plant Trees on a Rocky Crag.

Alexander Nasmyth, the landscape painter, was a man fruitful in expedients. To his mind the fact that a thing could not be done in the ordinary manner was no reason why it should be given up. His son relates the following interesting example of his ingenuity

The duke of Athol consulted him as to some improvements which he desired to make in his woodland scenery near Dunkeld. Among other things, a certain rocky erag needed to be planted with trees, to relieve the grim barrenness of its appearance. The question was how to do it, as it was impossible for any man to climb the crag, in order to set seeds or plants in the clefts of the rock. A happy idea struck my father. Having observed in front of the castle a pair of small cannon, used for firing silutes on great days, it occurred to him the village was ordered to make a number of eanisters with covers. The eaninters were filled with all sorts of suithey burst and scattered the seeds in ill directions. Some years afterward, when my father revisited the place, he was delighted to find that his scheme of planting by artillery had proved successful; the trees were flourishing in all the recesses of the cliffs.

WAYS OF THE POMPANO. He Is a Frisky Jumper, as Well as Deli-cious Food Fish.

One of the most delicious food fishes of the semi-tropics is the pompano. In size and shape he is not unlike the flounder of the northern estuaries, but. unlike the flounder, he swims edgewise instead of flat on his belly. In color his scales are gray, white, grayish blue and golden yellow, and when he leaps from the water, as he frequently does, the glinting of the golden scales in the sunlight forms a beautiful sight. A traveler just returned from Lake Worth, on the lower east coast of Florida, writes to the New York Herald: "As we approached the mouth of the canal the fish appeared to be more numerous, and they made long jumps into the air all about us. They were chiefly mullet and pompano, and once I counted five in the air at the same time.

"Before we reached the dredge boat, six miles from the foot of the lake, we had four pompano, all of which had jumped from the water and landed accidentally in the bottom of our boat. One of them struck our boatman, Ben Able, in the breast, and the blow was of sufficient force to nearly wind him for a minute. Since ice factories have been established along the Indian river and on Lake Worth, pompano are shipped to the northern markets in large quantities. They 'run' throughout the year, but make the best eating during the winter months."

A New Geographical Apparatus. The marine globe is a new physical instrument to produce currents similar to sea currents. It consists of a glass globe under the interior well of which are constructed the massive outline of continents and the hollows of sea basins. The bottom of the sea is formed of an interior sphere, concentral with the one of glass, moving on a vertical axis, and is worked by a gearing. The sea basins are filled with water containing particles of stearine in suspension, which render all its movements visible. The exterior of the apparatus does not differ much from that of a geographical globe, and its merit is that it tends directly to facilitate the study of geography, so far as the sea currents are concerned.
