WHAT SHALL COME AFTER HIM?

Man is at best an egotistical creature. Surpassing all other forms of animal life in intelligence, it is quite natural that he should draw the line between his reasoning powers and the instinct, which he credits the balance of brute creation with. Not only does he claim for himself that he is the highest type of animal creation that has ever existed, but he claims also that nothing higher is possible. The autobiography of the world, as written in the rocks, will not bear out this self-aggrandisement. In times so remote that we write of them only as an aeon, an indefinite period extending over thousands of years, and distinguished from some other indefinite aeon by the subsidence or upheaval of a continent, or some other change of the visible world; in these remote times, when the first of these indefinite aeons, of which the sedimentary rocks tell us, held sway, there was but one form of life. In the Laurentian and Huronian age the protozoans alone existed, a form of animal life so low that it would be as difficult to tell as it is with the sponges whether they belonged to the animal or vegetable kingdom.

In the Cambrian and Silurian ages a higher form of life had been called into existence, as we can prove by their remains found in the Trenton and Niagara periods. These show in the earlier system of the Paleozoic aeon, which in the Devonian system also shows a still higher type of life in the fishes, which in turn, followed by the Carboniferous systems, shows a still further advanced form of animal life in the amphibians. The Jurassic and Cretaceous ages of the Mesozoic age bring reptiles and birds upon the scene, followed in the Tertiary system by mammals, and these in the Quaternary system, which is our own, by Man.

Is it possible the end of all progress has been attained, and that the perfection of animal life has been reached in man? If so, the perfection of nature is imperfect indeed. It may be hundreds of years before the superior animal, yet in the womb of the future, shall be brought forth to rule the earth in place of man, whose history shall be in turn written in the rocks for the future, and yet higher animal to read; but we have no reason to doubt but that that time will come. The human mind cannot grasp the immensity of time since the first protozoan held sway on the earth the highest type of animal life. The first mammals existed in the Tertiary period, which is a very recent one; but yesterday, as compared to the Huronian, and yet that was long ago. To illustrate: Here at our own doors nature has written the history of that later period. The high plains on each side of the John Day river were formed in the Tertiary period, the one before that in which we exist. At one time there were vast marshes, which have been slowly filled with mud washed from the hills which have been worn away. In these mud banks the bodies of the animals that existed at the time have been preserved, petrifying or fossilizing as the mud turned to rock. In time those mud banks were covered to the depth of nearly two thousand feet, and after that was done the John Day river, patiently working, wore away the overlying rocks, cut its way down, down a thousand, fifteen hundred, aye, two thousand feet, and again brought to light the bones buried so long ago. It took a long time for nature, by her slow processes, to first cover and then uncover those relics of a race of animals extinct, as far as this country is concerned, at least. It took a long time to print and bind that book, and an equally long one to open its pages. But this happened, counting time as geology reckons it, but yesterday.

What shall succeed man? We do not know; but that wise Nature which prepared the earth for its inhabitants in turn; which, starting with nothing, has produced man, must not be considered powerless to make a yet more perfect creature. Well may man, realizing how brief his rule of the earth has been, and how vast the time that other forms of life have been the "lords of creation," exclaim with Solomon, "Who shall show him what shall come after him?"

Mr. Nathan Straus, the Tammany nominee for mayor of New York City, has declined the nomination, and Mayor Grant, the present incumbent, was named in his place. Mr. Grant was at first inclined to refuse the nomination, but, like his larger prototype, Hill, he was induced to make a sacrifice of himself.

The czar of all the Russias is dying, and the end can be but a few days distant. His physicians have given up all hope, and the Russian ministers at the different courts have admitted that the end is at hand. Under common circumstances the death of a great ruler serves to unsettle business affairs and to create diplomatic tangles, but in the present case the dangers are unusual. The succession is not settled, and its settlement involves vast interests. Europe will be fortunate indeed if the settlement is made without bloodshed.

David Bennett Hill is proving himself a wonderful politician. Out of the warring factions he is rapidly forming a solid phalanx, and those who have been most bitter against each other are united in their support of Hill. It is no safe bet that his candidacy will meet with defeat.

A tired woman, just as much as a sick and ailing one, needs Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. That builds up, strengthens and invigorates the entire female system. It regulates and promotes all the proper functions of womanhood, improves digestion, enriches the blood, dispels aches and pains, melancholy and nervousness, brings refreshing sleep, restores health and strength. It is a powerful restorative tonic and soothing nerve, made especially for woman's needs, and the only guaranteed remedy for woman's weaknesses and ailments. In all "female complaints" and irregularities, if it ever fails to benefit or cure, you have your money back.

A great many medicines "relieve" Catarrh in the head. That means that it is driven from the head into the throat and lungs. But by its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties, Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy perfectly and permanently cures.

MARRIED.
 In the pastor's study, in this city, Oct. 19, 1894, Mr. T. J. Harper and Miss Mary A. Lance, Rev. J. Whisler, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, officiating.

BORN.
 In this city, on the 20th, to the wife of J. W. Blakeney, a 9-pound boy.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure in the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address:

The frog will shortly set an example to other croakers by burying himself for the season.—Philadelphia Times.

When persons are weak and languid, from sickness or overwork, feel debilitated and depressed, it is an indication that the blood is out of order, and they need help to throw off the miserable feeling. The best remedy for this purpose is Dr. J. H. McLean's Strengthening Cordial and Blood Purifier. It restores lost strength, gives vigor to circulation, promotes good appetite and a flow of cheerful spirits. Price $1.00 per bottle. For sale by the Snipes-Kinerey Drug Co.

"When I was a Boy,"

Writes Postmaster J. C. WOODSON, Forest Hill, W. Va., "I had a bronchial trouble of such a persistent and stubborn character, that the doctor pronounced it incurable with ordinary medicines, and advised me to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. I did so, and one bottle cured me. For the last fifteen years, I have used this preparation with good effect whenever I take and I know of numbers of people who keep it in the house all the time, not considering it safe to be without it."

"I have been using Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in my family for 30 years, with the most satisfactory results, and can cheerfully recommend it as being especially adapted to all pulmonary complaints. I have, for many years, made pulmonary and other medicines a special study, and I have come to the conclusion that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral occupies a position pre-eminent over other medicines of the class."—Chas. Davenport, Dover, N. J.
